Man In Middle

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—A millionaire friend of Hubert Humphrey who carries Jerry Rubin's telephone number in his back pocket, Mayor Chuck Hall is the man in the middle as Miami Beach prepares for the Democratic National Convention.

There are many people in this city who did not want the convention to begin with, and many more who adamantly rejected any compromise with the protesters who followed it to town.

Hall, 54, with the backing of Democratic party officials, negotiated and compromised. He may have saved Miami Beach from the violence of Chicago in 1968. But many, perhaps most, of its citizens are afraid and angry.

"I was told I was sacrificing my political future," Hall said in an interview. "I believe I have already done that. I don't care. I won my fight. There should not be any violence, unless some of the local citizens react unfavorably."

Months ago, when estimates of 50,000 to 100,000 protesters were floating about, Hall began meeting leaders of groups planning convention demonstrations. He talked with the superstars of the antiwar, civil rights, welfare rights, women's lib, gay lib and other movements.

"The whole attitude of those people had changed in the last four years," said Hall.

"In the 1972 version, they are trying to accomplish something."

Hall said he became convinced there would be relatively few protesters. Police now say 10,000 protesters, at most, are expected.

Hall's efforts on behalf of the protesters won him the accolades of the counterculture. "The mayor is a good man," said Jim Linn, a Yippie camped in the park.

Hall is hardly a person likely to have been cast as a hero of the protest coalition. A silver-haired patrician who has been in public office for nearly two decades, a millionaire from real estate, hotel and stock holdings who wears tailored suits and drives a white Rolls Royce convertible, he could be viewed as the quintessential capitalist.

To help ensure that there won't be any trouble at the convention, Hall, a Democrat, has set up meetings between Democratic party officials and protest leaders. He said Humphrey, a political and social friend, also has agreed to meet those protest leaders.

From his back pocket, Hall pulled a list of telephone numbers: Rubin, Abbie Hoffman, Rennie Davis and a dozen others.

"I can get in touch with them whenever I need to," he said. "We are all working for the same thing. A peaceful week."

Bremer Trial

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP)—A federal judge postponed indefinitely Friday the start of the U.S. District Court trial of Arthur Herman Bremer on charges stemming from the attempted assassination of Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama.

Meanwhile, a Maryland judge scheduled a hearing Monday to consider a similar defense motion to delay next Wednesday's scheduled start of the state trial of the 21-year-old suspect.

In both cases, Benjamin Lipsitz, the court-appointed defense attorney, said he needed more time to prepare his case, especially psychiatric evidence to support his insanity defense.

Friday's proceedings came on the day that Wallace checked out of the hospital where he had been a patient since being shot May 15 while campaigning at a Laurel, Md., shopping center.

The decision by Chief Judge Edward S. Northrop of the federal bench cleared up, for a time at least, the problem in the dual prosecution of which court would take precedence.

The federal trial was to have begun July 17, five days after the state proceedings are scheduled to start in Prince Georges County Circuit Court in Upper Marlboro, Md.

Lipsitz, using an argument he is expected to repeat before Judge Ralph Powers in Upper Marlboro Monday, said he needs at least two weeks more just to review prosecution evidence and arrange a psychiatric presentation.

Edmond B. O'Connell, an assistant state prosecutor, said the state is opposing a postponement.

Bremer, a former busboy and school janitor from Milwaukee, is at Clifton T. Perkins State Hospital in Jessup, Md., undergoing routine psychiatric review ordered after he pleaded in state court innocent by reason of insanity.

Associated Press correspondent Dennis Need reported from the front, however, that the paratroopers and supporting armor still were battling entrenched enemy forces on the southern edge of the city.

Since the kickoff of the big government push into Quang Tri province June 28, intelligence officers have kept a close watch on the western front, a defense line protecting Hue from enemy troops dug into the mountains just to the west.

The Saigon command announced that its forces had seized most of the wrecked city of Quang Tri, but field reports and informed military sources in the North denied this.

Lt. Col. Do Viet, a top spokesman for the South Vietnamese command, claimed at a press briefing in Saigon that a paratrooper task force spearheaded by tanks had forged into the heart of Quang Tri and seized control of two-thirds of the northernmost provincial capital.

The North Vietnamese seized Checkmate, an outpost 12 miles southwest of Hue, and pounded nearby Fire Base Bastogne with 400 rounds of artillery fire. One source said this could be construed "as the beginning of a major offensive against Hue."

Demos To Decide Themselves

Court Avoids Party Issue

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court Friday blocked a lower court ruling that gave Sen. George McGovern 151 California delegates. The court's action sends the issue to the floor of the Democratic convention.

The court granted a stay of a decision by the U.S. Circuit Court here which held that McGovern was entitled to all the state's delegates because of his plurality in California's winner-take-all primary.

At the same time, the court refused application for a hearing sought by the Democratic party. But the court took no action on a similar request for a hearing by the forces of Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley.

"The court concludes it cannot in this limited time give to these issues the consideration warranted for final decision on the merits," read the majority opinion.

"In light of the availability of the convention as a forum to review the recommendations of the (party) Credentials Committee, ... the lack of precedent to support the extraordinary relief granted by the Court of Appeals and the large public interest in allowing the political processes to function free from judicial supervision, we conclude the judgments of the Court of Appeals must be stayed," the court said.

Nixon Moves On Hijacking

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. (AP)—The federal aviation administrator is being directed to trim hijacking by instituting 100 per cent inspection procedures on all U.S. commuter airlines, John D. Ehrlichman, a top presidential adviser, announced Friday.

Ehrlichman told a gathering of Southern California editors and broadcasters: "The President has followed news of the recent hijackings and has been very concerned, particularly about commuter airlines. These include such airlines as Pacific Southwest Airlines of California and the East Coast shuttle runs between Boston and New York."

He said the President had directed John Shaffer, FAA administrator, to take measures as soon as possible that would assure 100 per cent inspection of all commuter passengers. The previous government regulations on this, he said, limited inspections to only 10 per cent of commuter travelers.

While acknowledging possible delays in turnaround time and the ability to move passengers on schedule, Ehrlichman said the new rules were essential. Some 18 hijacking have occurred recently, including two in the past two days in California—both PSA jetliners, he said.

In Wednesday's hijacking, three persons—two hijackers and a passenger—were killed and two other passengers wounded at San Francisco International Airport after FBI agents stormed the plane.

Ehrlichman said, in response to questions on the possibility of more stringent measures under consideration, that the administration and the Justice Department were reviewing the recent U.S. Supreme Court decision on the death penalty "to study whether the death penalty could be applied in hijacking."

Summer Jobs Lower Unemployment Rate

WASHINGTON (AP)—The prices wholesalers and manufacturers pay for their goods—especially meat and gasoline—rose sharply last month, the government reported Friday.

A reflection in retail prices in a few months is likely. At the same time, the Labor Department said the nation's unemployment rate dipped from 5.9 per cent in May to 5.5 per cent in June, but many of the new jobs went to students turned workers for the summer.

The Wholesale Price Index rose by five-tenths of one per cent last month. Combined with the May rise of three-fifths of one per cent, it was the biggest two-month jump since last January and February.

Increases were registered in the cost of livestock, meat, gasoline, lumber, shoes, clothing, paper, drugs, rubber and plastics.

Wholesale price index increases almost always show up as increases in the cost of living within a few months. Meanwhile, wholesale prices of big household appliances including television sets, natural gas, glass, milk and chemicals all declined.

The unemployment report showed many of the 273,000 new workers last month were young people out of school.

Wallace Says He Is 'National Democrat'

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—George Wallace, looking wan but speaking firmly, arrived for the Democratic National Convention Friday and declared: "I am still an active and viable candidate even though I was sidelined for a few days."

The Alabama governor had ended 54 days of hospitalization in Maryland earlier in the day and then stopped briefly in his home state while en route to Miami.

Speaking from his wheelchair and appearing to gain in self-confidence as he went along, he told a crowd estimated at 5,000 persons at the Montgomery airport that he would continue to fight for a Democratic party platform that "recognizes that the average citizen of this country in the past has been the strength and the bulwark of their great party."

Then he flew straight to Miami, where he said in a brief airport address that he is "a national Democrat in a national Democratic Convention."

"We're back in the fight," he said. Wallace looked about 15 pounds lighter than he did before he was shot at a Laurel, Md., shopping center May 15.

Since that day he underwent two operations, one to remove a bullet lodged near his spine. Wallace had been nervous during the flight from Washington, but his voice was strong and he responded to the Montgomery crowd with obvious enthusiasm during his 65-minute stop there.

Wallace addressed the crowd while seated in his wheelchair on top of a speaker's platform. After Wallace's Air Force hospital plane, a DC9 loaned him (Turn To Page Six)

Captive Cop Convinces Hijacker To Surrender

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP)—A policeman held hostage aboard a commandeered jetliner said Friday he persuaded a young hijacker to surrender by convincing him he would be killed otherwise by FBI agents using powerful rifle scopes that penetrate the darkness.

The hijacker, identified as Francis Goodell, 21, of Manassas, Va., an AWOL soldier, walked down the gangway of a Pacific Southwest Airlines jet and gave himself up early Friday after extracting a $450,000 ransom and ordering the plane 1,000 miles up and down California.

It was the second hijack of a PSA plane in as many days and the fourth this year. The policeman, California Highway Patrol Capt. Lloyd T. Turner, said he had several opportunities to shoot the air pirate with his service revolver during the nine-hour ordeal but decided instead to persuade him to give up.

"Talk" made Goodell surrender, Turner told reporters. "That, and the fact that he knew the FBI was laying out in the darkness, and I had seen a demonstration of sniper scopes several months ago at the Army depot in Sacramento."

"I told him about observing a tunnel 400 feet long without any light, but you could see the target at the other end just as clear as daylight," explained the 42-year-old officer. "I told him, 'As soon as you step down the ramp, an FBI agent is going to squeeze one off and you're going to disintegrate.'"

The U.S. attorney's office said Goodell, AWOL for two days from Ft. Riley, Kan., would be arraigned on air piracy charges.

On Wednesday, FBI agents rushed a jet at San Francisco International Airport, killing two hijackers who demanded passage to Siberia and $800,000 ransom. One passenger was killed and two were wounded in gunfire by the hijackers, the FBI said.

Thousands Still Homeless After Pennsylvania Flood

WILKES-BARRE, Pa. (AP)—Thousands are still homeless two weeks after the worst flood in Pennsylvania's history.

And thousands of others are living under makeshift conditions in damaged dwellings while they clean up the mess and destruction which Gov. Milton J. Shapp now estimates at $2 billion.

"Three-quarters of this house is garbage, baby," said Carole Surface as she helped her husband George cart out spoiled, water-logged junk in Bridgeport, which lies along the now-quiet Schuylkill River.

"And that means it's cruddy and it's buggy and it's muddy ...," she added.

In many areas electricity and telephones are still out, and stores are shut.

Workers, bulldozing away the mangled debris or hacking at it with shovels, find more victims of Tropical Storm Agnes. At least 59 are known dead in Pennsylvania. The nationwide death toll exceeded 100.

Local, state and federal officials, marshaling hundreds of volunteers, and 5,400 National Guardsmen, are struggling to utilize all available resources to aid stricken communities and citizens across the state.

The legislature early Friday voted $150 million for flood aid.

And Congress earlier authorized $200 million, most of which is expected to wind up in Pennsylvania.

The Small Business Administration said those affected by the disaster could apply for loans, and one official said $5 million is available for that.

U.S. Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., touring the devastated areas by Army helicopter, suggested Pennsylvanians possibly could assume "a small additional tax to relieve their fellow citizens."

He promised to ask President Nixon and Congress to make more funds available, and to provide larger cash grants for repairing homes and businesses.

Indo-Pakistan Pact Fails To Settle Main Issues

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

The pool table agreement worked out by Pakistan and India went further than expected but failed to settle the main issues over which they had fought.

But, since part of the job was to bridge over 25 years of animosity, any agreement at all represented a step forward and that remaining differences between them are to be settled by peaceful means, a real triumph of negotiations.

Aside from agreeing that in the future their differences will be settled by peaceful means, for Pakistani President Zulfikar Ali Bhutto the most important issue settled was agreement on mutual troop withdrawals to international borders in the Punjab, Rajasthan and Sind. Since India had occupied more territory than had Pakistan in last year's 13-day war, the withdrawals meant the salvation of a considerable amount of trampled Pakistani pride.

Most important issues were the future of Kashmir, long contested by India and Pakistan, and Pakistani recognition of the new state of Bangladesh, the former East Pakistan. Involved in the latter was final disposition of 93,000 war prisoners held by India.

Involved also is the matter of war trials which Bangladesh Premier Sheikh Mujib Rahman plans to hold to determine punishment for Pakistani troops accused of rape, murder and pillage during Pakistan's unsuccessful attempt to defeat East Pakistani separatism.

Rahman did not attend the Simla talks, refusing to talk to Bhutto until the latter recognizes Bangladesh. This is expected to come soon.

The largest single issue between India and Pakistan remains Kashmir.

Troops Will Remain
Twice before last December, the two had battled over Kashmir. This time it was decided troops would remain at the present cease-fire line until some agreement is reached. Pakistan holds about one-third of Kashmir and India the remaining two-thirds.

Important as these issues are, they are but way points along the difficult path Bhutto treads.

He still must lead Pakistan out of economic chaos and there also are important questions regarding Pakistan's future relations with the United States, chief donor of aid to Pakistan, and with its neighbors. These include especially Turkey and Iran, partners in the CENTO pact of which Pakistan also is a nominal member.

Editorial Comment

Middle-Of-Road 'Strictness'

The Supreme Court's vaguely incisive decision to ban the death penalty was a fitting climax for the first year of President Nixon's "strict constructionism."

The recently ended session was the first in which all four of President Nixon's appointees sat on the court. And while the session showed the court definitely headed in the general direction of caution and a passive role ("strict constructionism" boils down to not reading anything into the Constitution's list of duties of the Supreme Court), it also showed that the fears of civil libertarians who worried about a massive loss of rights established by the Warren court were unfounded.

The death penalty decision was not one of the court's alltime classics of clarity. With nine separate opinions written in a case, you can find a precedent for just about anything.

The overall result, though, did lean toward banning the death penalty as "cruel and unusual punishment," which is forbidden by the Constitution. And even that less than roaring victory was something more than a lot of people would have expected when the court session began last year.

From the time last October when it upheld a lower court decision requiring racial integration quotas for construction unions on federally financed jobs to the recent decision requiring court orders for government wiretaps on citizens suspected of "domestic subversion," the Nixon court has shown that, strict construction or no, it was not about to vengefully undo everything the aggressive, individual rights-oriented Warren court had done.

There have also been enough conservative decisions oriented toward protecting society from individuals to keep the strict constructionists among President Nixon's supporters from being too disappointed.

The same decision day last October that produced the construction union ruling also found the court upholding a federal law that makes it illegal for U.S. government employees to strike. And the last weeks of the session found the court refusing to take an active role in stopping Army intelligence agents from spying on civilians, declining to change the privileged monopoly status of professional baseball and deciding that the First Amendment's guarantee of freedom of the press did not protect reporters from being called upon to testify in court on criminal information they have obtained on a confidential basis.

For the time being, we appear to have gone from a Supreme Court that was liberal-tending-toward-radical to one that is moderate-tending-toward-conservative.

This will please those who shuddered at the liberalizing impact nine men made on society during the years when Earl Warren was chief justice. It will displease those who see the court as not only the last resort protector of our civil liberties but the active force that maintains those liberties and rebuilds them where they have been eroded.

And it will not at all surprise students of the court who long ago learned that it is the least predictable of institutions.

Communication

To the Editor:

I would like to write and commend the Morgan County Fair Committee publicly. The fair was very enjoyable this year and so clean. All of the rides were so clean and the attendants were more respectable than usual. I hope our fair will continue for years to come as it means so much to the children. If we lose our county fairs we lose so much contact with things of the past.

I also would like to mention that having the fireworks at the fair grounds seems to work so much better. Since there is a lack of trees the fireworks can be seen farther away and I really believe more people get to see them without leaving their homes. At least there seems to be a better area involved and less traffic tie-up.

Sincerely,
A well-pleased fair-goer

Justice, Freedom Not Hand-In-Hand

By BRUCE BIOSSAT
WASHINGTON (NEA) — Americans today, more "democratized" than those who went before them, haven't yet got it clear that "justice" and "equality" do not flow automatically from widening freedoms.

Free men do not by definition act justly toward one another. If they did, there would be very little need for any law at all.

Author Irving Kristol, again in that new book of his, "On the Democratic Idea in America," suggests that justice is a lot harder to come by than freedom, slow as that may have been in arriving for lots of Americans and others.

He quotes the conservative Friedrich von Hayek as reinforcing this view, with the latter writer indicating that we pretty much know what freedom is, but have no generally accepted knowledge of what justice is.

A simple example. One of the most entrancing social notions, which we hear over and over through the decades, is that people in a good, well-balanced society ought to be "rewarded according to merit." Fine, fine. But who decides what "merit" is, for millions upon millions of people?

Obviously, such decisions could only be made by persons or groups holding power—power not only to decide, but to enforce decision by some means. But if such a course produced "justice," it would be a consequence of authority, not freedom in the strict sense.

The historian of civilizations, Will Durant, makes the further argument that freedom and equality do not go hand-in-hand. Quite the reverse, he says in his book, "The Lessons of History."

"Leave men free and their natural inequalities will multiply almost geometrically..."

These men are taking the long view, but what they are saying has vital meaning right now. The conflict their comment highlights is baffling some earnest Americans active in the public arena this very season.

As the more than 3,000 delegates to the Democratic national convention gather at Miami Beach, they will hear their party indulge in much self-congratulation for having reformed itself and "opened up" its presidential nominating processes. That means, clearly, making them freer, to allow more people of more and more kinds to take part.

Yet there is a hard question to be asked: Are these many different categories of Americans present at the convention because the processes are now freer? The candid answer is: Only in part.

Many of the women, young, blacks, Chicanos, Indians and others whose presence there is regarded as a "just" result of the process are in fact there because they were hand-picked.

The outcome was simply dictated by party reform rules specifically established to provide participation for these people in rough proportion to their "presence" in the population of that area.

There was absolutely no way for "freedom" to guarantee that. A vote of the people, which we are persuaded is the surest gauge of freedom, could very well produce a delegation entirely composed of women, or of white men aged 30 to 50.

Again, men acting freely do not represent proofs that justice and equality will be done. To make any decisions that even approach attainment of these goals, we need authority at work.

If there are reasonably proper numbers of women, young, blacks, etc., at the Democratic convention, authority—not freedom—saw that it was so.

Ann Landers:
Regrets Involvement
With Grandchild

Dear Ann Landers: I would like to say a few words to that woman who was mad at her folks. She called them rotten grandparents because they refused to be available whenever she wanted to dump her children so she and her husband could enjoy weekends out of town.

I am a living example of why grandparents should not get involved. Last Saturday I lost my beautiful grandson. This child meant more to me than any living creature. His mother went to work and asked me if I would take complete charge of the baby. At first I didn't know whether I had the strength at my age to accept the responsibility (he was only five weeks old), but I agreed to try. Within a month I lost my heart completely to that little boy.

Now, 18 months later, my daughter-in-law announces, out of the blue, that she and my son are getting a divorce and she is leaving in three days — with the baby — to live in another state with her parents.

I have died a thousand deaths since that day. The emptiness in my heart is indescribable. I never dreamed I could ache so much.

I am not blaming anyone, but this has taught me a bitter lesson. Never again will I become so involved with a grandchild. — Heartsick

Dear H.: Surely you don't regret having taken the child. He brought you much happiness. These are the things you should remember and be grateful for.

If you have love to give, why not take a foster child into your home? There are many youngsters who need what you have to offer. Please consider it, dear.

Dear Ann Landers: Recently you printed a letter from a 16-year-old girl whose mother humiliated her by yelling into the phone (loud enough for her boyfriend to hear) "Tell whoever it is that you aren't allowed to talk forever on a school night — then get off."

You seemed extremely sympathetic to the girl but showed no understanding whatever for the mother. Your answer was a great disappointment to me because I've always considered you a help to mothers. This time you really let us down.

I have two teen-agers who tie up our phone five days a week from 3:00 until 10:00 p.m. On weekends, it's worse — UNLESS they are out somewhere. Grandparents, doctors and friends cannot get through. I can't tell you how often I've been told, "Your phone is ALWAYS busy. I've given up trying to call you."

I am sick and tired of the younger generation being resentful when limits are put on them. My children have caused me to lose my composure many times because they abused the telephone. If teen-agers would be considerate and thoughtful their mothers would not need to scream into the telephone and embarrass them. — Sinking In New Haven

Dear Sink: If you were unhappy with my first response you're going to be a lot unhappier with this one. What's the matter with you that you haven't set up some rules regarding the telephone and seen to it that those rules are respected? A mother who would permit her teen-agers to tie up the only phone in the house for seven hours, five days a week, has abdicated her responsibility. Of course kids resent limits — but limits are essential, and beneath the resentment, kids WANT guidelines. Adolescents who can do as they please are insecure, and unhappy. They feel that no one cares enough about them to enforce discipline. So get tough, Mother. Your children will respect you for it.

Arthur Samore To Retire From State Position

At present on six-months sabbatical leave, Arthur Samore of this city has the approval of the Board of Governors of State Colleges and Universities to retire officially August 31st, after 20 years of service as financial officer and treasurer.

Arthur Samore

At the board's monthly meeting in Chicago recently, Mr. Samore was honored at a dinner and was given a walnut and bronze engraved plaque indicating dedicated service to the board and the universities it serves. At a later date, his co-workers in the central office in Springfield presented him with a 1907-24 dollar gold piece. Mr. Samore also was honored at a dinner in Bloomington given by the business managers of the four schools originally under the jurisdiction of the Teachers College Board. In addition to those attending from Western, Eastern, Northern and Illinois State Universities were Dr. and Mrs. Richard G. Browne and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Dunn of Bloomington. Dr. Browne was the first executive officer of the board and Mr. Dunn presently is its legal counsel.

Born and raised in Benton Harbor, Michigan, Mr. Samore attended the University of Michigan, going on to the University of Illinois where he received the bachelor of science degree in accountancy and the master of science degree in economics. From 1933 to 1944 he worked for Caldwell Engineering Company as field engineer and later as office manager and specifications writer. ## ASKS PROBATION AFTER PLEADING GUILTY TO CHARGE

BEARDSTOWN — Clifford Fowler aged about 40 was arraigned in circuit court at Virginia Tuesday and asked for probation after making a guilty plea in connection with a charge of forgery.

Circuit Court Judge Fred W. Reither has set July 14 for a probation hearing.

Fowler was arrested after allegedly passing a check with the signature of Glenn Tillitt at the Value Plus drug store here.

A negotiated plea was authorized by the defendant through his attorney C. G. Colburn, and at his arraignment Fowler entered a plea of guilty, waived a jury trial and asked for probation.

Two of three charges brought against Fowler were then dismissed on motion of State's Attorney Walter Farrand. The case had been continued from June 29.

BRANDON DE WILDE KILLED IN CAR ACCIDENT

DENVER (UPI) — Actor Brandon de Wilde, who gained his greatest fame when he played the role of a young boy in the 1953 western film classic "Shane," was killed in a car accident Thursday.

De Wilde, 30, was driving a camper van in suburban Lakewood during a light rain when the vehicle hit a construction truck used to install guard rails.

Lakewood patrolman Robert Ellis said the rain made it impossible to determine whether de Wilde skidded prior to impact.

He was rushed to nearby St. Anthony's Hospital where he died four hours after the accident of a broken neck, back and leg.

De Wilde, born in Brooklyn, April 9, 1942, was appearing in Denver in the Elitch Theater's production of "Butterflies Are Free."

Although he appeared in numerous pictures, he achieved his greatest acting success as the bucktoothed 9-year-old son of Jean Arthur in the film "Shane," which starred Alan Ladd.

YOUR BIRTHDAY AND HOROSCOPE

By STELLA WILDER
SATURDAY, JULY 8 — Born today, you are somewhat inclined to be arbitrary in your judgments, didactic in your opinions, and perhaps too abrupt in your pronouncements.

Though relatively slow-moving when it comes to making physical changes of any kind, you think nothing of making your decisions about life's specifics or life in general with electrifying speed. Nor do you hesitate to stick by those decisions: even when your haste has caused you to make a mistake, you will find reasons other than a change of mind to free you from the situation.

Somewhat of a dreamer and somewhat too content to let it go at that — with dreaming alone, rather than trying to bring dreams to reality — you may find in your middle years that you are quite suddenly without further opportunities for real success. If you are wise, therefore, you will begin early in your adult life — if not before — to make the effort to fulfill your wishes, to exercise your will in the interest of your ambition.

Although you are not by nature a romantic person, you very much enjoy the company of members of the opposite sex. The boy-girl relationship may not stimulate you to emotional excesses of any kind — but it does stimulate you to the exercise of your mind and all of your intuitive faculties in the interest of pleasing, understanding, and impressing the one you happen to be with.

To find what is in store for you tomorrow, select your birthday and read the corresponding paragraph. Let your birthday star be your daily guide.

Sunday, July 9

CANCER (June 22-July 23) — Express your feelings openly where the affairs of children are concerned. It would not do to allow youngsters to flounder on their own.

LEO (July 24-Aug. 23) — Your own personal creativity is important to your success with people today. Morning church attendance may put you in contact with supporters.

VIRGO (Aug. 24-Sept. 23) — The wise Virgo will ready himself early in the day for unexpected labor. A surprise move from a member of an older generation makes for peace.

LIBRA (Sept. 24-Oct. 23) — If you're unsure of the best way to go about making amends, seek out the friend of a friend for advice. Morning hours bring a variety of solutions.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) — Self-advertising is your best bet if you would see your name put forward for even a minor office. Church business takes precedence.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 22) — Personal satisfaction is highly important to your success today. Children need to feel that their "leader" knows and likes himself.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23-Jan. 20) — Take the time to work things out jointly with others who are involved in the same problematical situation that you are in. Try brainstorming.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21-Feb. 19) — A day when two heads are definitely better than one. Don't be discouraged should you discover ideas which you thought sound are quite the opposite.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 21) — Where you are desirous of changed behavior in another, take steps to gain it. Action is required, however; words avail you little.

ARIES (March 22-April 20) — Morning worship should put you in the mood for a spiritual search for bigger and better things. Know yourself and your goals before beginning.

TAURUS (April 21-May 21) — Travel may take you far from home base — but your thoughts will very likely remain where they've been for many months now. Seek other diversions.

GEMINI (May 22-June 21) — Though what you hear may not be the whole truth, it should be close enough to it to give you more than an inkling of what's going on included "Blue Denim," "All Fall Down," "Hud," "Those Calloways," "In Harm's Way" and "The Deserter." He also starred in the television series "Jaimie" in 1958 and 1954.

COUNTY PRECINCT REGISTRATION TOTALS UP 424

The voter registrations for precincts outside Jacksonville and South Jacksonville have been revised and new precinct lists are now available from the Office of County Clerk Louise Coop.

Mrs. Connie Pinkerton, deputy clerk in charge of voter records, said Friday that she had completed the entire county list and made necessary revisions and that registrations have increased 424 throughout the county.

Voter registration closes October 10, but because of the volume of work involved, it would be impossible to prepare the revised lists after the close of registration and before the general election in November.

Voters may register any time before Oct. 10 to be eligible for the fall election.

Changes at random included: Alexander, from 328 to 362; Mercedia No. 2, from 472 to 500; Murrayville No. 1, from 249 to 274; Murrayville No. 2, from 242 to 283; Nortonville, from 168 to 194; Pisgah, from 133 to 150; Prentice, from 130 to 137; Woodson, from 397 to 468.

Waverly had a net increase of 20 voters, although one precinct showed a decline and the other two precincts an increase.

Total voter registration outside the 27 "city" precincts was listed at 6,449, compared to 6,025 previously, an increase of 424.

Mrs. Pinkerton said she would start immediately on the city precincts and that they would be completed during the next couple of months.

LOCAL PAINTING JUDGED BEST IN STUDENT DISPLAY

A painting by Craig Myren of Jacksonville, a 1971 graduate of MacMurray, has been selected as the best entry in the 1971-72 CSCA Student Art Exhibit. Thirty-three works by students from 10 midwestern colleges were included in the exhibit which was sponsored by the Central States College Association. Works included in the exhibit, which were displayed at all 10 CSCA-member schools during the past year, represented the finest student art accomplishments of the previous year.

Mr. Myren's award-winning work was an acrylic painting entitled "They Came to Shoot a Western But It Rained." Voting for the awards was conducted among art department faculty members from the 10 participating schools.

Myren has received numerous exhibition and purchase awards for his works in recent years, including three first place awards in the Jacksonville rt Fair. One of his most noted works, entitled "Jet," is hung in the Jacksonville Municipal Airport Terminal.

HE'S SAFE!

Baseball is one of the few experiences of life in which you learn immediately and unquestionably whether you're safe—or out.

In other pursuits we can go on for years thinking we're safe when we're not.

Of course, in life as in baseball it is what a man attempts and decides to do, and how well he fulfills his aim, that determines whether he'll be safe. And in life, too, each venture calls for determination and a knowledge of the rules.

For many youngsters in our community the church is the sandlot of life. In the church's youth activities they find their training and experience—for one day on the "diamond" of life they'll be making decisions and pitting their strength against serious challenges, relying on the religious convictions and moral principles they gained on the way up.

In weighing your child's need of spiritual development remember this: In life, each day doesn't offer a new ball game!

Wallace Funeral Rites Held Friday For Mrs. Ball

by President Nixon, stopped, the governor was carried down the ramp by security officers, wheeled across the concrete apron and then up another ramp to the platform.

Scores of state troopers, sheriff's deputies, state conservation department officers and Montgomery city police stood guard at the airport.

The governor's prolonged absence from this state had elevated the lieutenant governor, Jere Beasley, to the status of acting governor. But Wallace automatically took back the reins of government the moment he crossed the state line.

During his hospitalization at Silver Spring, Md., the governor was able to walk with leg braces and a steel supporting bar, but he did not attempt to stand erect during his stopover.

Among those who came aboard the plane was his 74-year-old mother, Mozelle Wallace, who underwent surgery for removal of a nonmalignant brain tumor last April 10, and who learned to walk again after the operation.

The 52-year-old governor's attractive brunette wife, Cornelia, who is 33, accompanied him on the flight to Montgomery and on to Miami.

Apparently mindful that he had shown signs of nervousness at the prospect of returning home and facing an audience of well-wishers for the first time since he was wounded, Mrs. Wallace leaned over to her husband on the platform and told him, "If you can't make the speech, I can."

A public address system picked up her remark, and the crowd chuckled.

Wallace told the crowd he is grateful for the support of the people of Alabama and his followers in other states. And to the Democratic party, he said:

"I want the Democratic party to know as we go to Miami today that we will have a chance to win the election in November if they will present a platform that says what it used to say and a platform that recognizes that the average citizen of this country in the past has been the strength and the bulwark of their great party."

He said the party in recent years has paid too much attention "to a small number of non-makers" and has forgotten the average American.

His wife Cornelia and his four children took turns counting down the seconds as the crippled governor pushed himself up and down on the armrests of his seat.

He has no movement below the waist and the exercises are designed to tone his muscles so that he will be able to get around eventually in leg braces and arm chains.

He told newsmen on the flight: "As it stands now, I have no plans to go on the convention floor. I'll have to play it by ear and do whatever is the proper thing to do."

Workmen have installed ramps leading to the candidates' trailer outside the huge auditorium where the convention opens next week.

Wallace is not a delegate, but as governor he is entitled to be with the delegation.

He also was asked whether he will support the Democrat who emerges as the nominee by the end of the week.

In a reference to Sen. George McGovern, he said that even the leading candidate had threatened to bolt the party if he isn't satisfied the outcome was decided on democratic principles.

In Miami, he was wheeled up a ramp to a microphone which he used to welcome the cheering crowd of about 75 who greeted him.

Wallace, accompanied by his wife, three daughters and his son, was driven away to his physical therapy-equipped suite in his hotel.

FRANKLIN Funeral services were held Friday at 3 p.m. at Neece Funeral Home in Franklin for Mrs. Lloyd "Iris" Ball. Rev. William Boston officiated. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hayes sang at the service and were accompanied by Mrs. Carol Smith.

Pallbearers were Gregory Gerry, Richard, John, and Gordon Ball; and Stan Winn and James Wilson. Burial was in Franklin cemetery.

Parochial May Face Trial By Supreme Court

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — The Illinois Supreme Court cleared the way Friday for a full-scale trial of the state's new parochial law.

In a two-paragraph order, the court refused to consider a challenge to the $30 million in state aid to parochial schools on the ground it violates the constitutional separation of church and state.

Instead, the justices said that the degree of church-state entanglement involved in the measure "can best be assessed on the basis of a record of testimony or other evidence presented initially in an adversary action in a trial court."

But the wording of the order showed that the court expects to pass final judgement on the new law, as it has on two similar measures in the last year.

Sources close to the court said that the next logical step for the challenger, Lawrence Klinger of Chicago, would be to file suit against parochial in a circuit court.

Klinger, who won earlier decrees against state aid to nonpublic schools, filed his latest challenge Monday.

The suit named as a defendant state Auditor Michael J. Howlett, the official responsible for disbursing all state funds. Shortly after Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie signed the measure into law, Howlett announced that he would not hand out the money until parochial passed a court test.

Approved by the General Assembly in the closing days of the spring session, the parochial plan is almost the same as the one passed last fall. It was overturned by the court on procedural grounds.

It would furnish $20 million for special programs such as guidance counseling, $5 million for aid to low-income families with youngsters in nonpublic schools and $5 million to establish innovative educational projects.

The original parochial plan, passed a year ago, was nullified by the state Supreme Court on the ground that it violated the separation of church and state.

OGILVIE-WALKER DEBATE PLANNED FOR MID-AUGUST

CHICAGO (AP) — Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie said Thursday he has not ruled out more debates with his Democratic challenger, Daniel Walker, and planned to meet him in mid-August on KMOX-TV in St. Louis.

Ogilvie criticized Walker's conduct in previous debates during a television program in Peoria Wednesday. He accused Walker of refusing to discuss the issues and instead using the debates "for dramatics."

Walker said he would continue being dramatic "if that's what it takes to make the point about waste in government, about the wrong kinds of priorities that we have and about excessive spending."

Mr. and Mrs. Marc Mueller of Bluffs became parents of a son at 7:47 p.m. Friday at Passavant hospital.

Follmer Takes Donohue's Ride, Breaks Record

GAINESVILLE, Ga. (AP) — Californian George Follmer took over Mark Donohue's hot turbo-charged Porsche Friday and quickly set an unofficial lap record at Road Atlanta as practice got underway for Sunday's Can-Am road race.

Follmer, of Arcadia, Calif., was brought in as a substitute for Indianapolis winner Donohue when the latter was ordered to undergo surgery to repair damage to a knee he injured in a testing accident at Road Atlanta last Monday.

Donohue, 35, will enter an Atlanta hospital Saturday morning. A spokesman for his car owner, Roger Penske, said Saturday's surgery will be "exploratory."

A new Porsche identical to the one Donohue wrecked was provided for the 37-year-old Follmer, an experienced road racer who was picked for the 1971 All-America driving team.

With a minimum of practice in a car he had never seen before, Follmer whipped around the tricky, 11-turn, 2.52-mile layout in 1:08.8 for a speed in excess of 122 miles per hour.

By contrast, perennial Can-Am winner Denis Hulme could not do better than 1:15.8 in the Gulf-McLaren team entry he drove to victory in the Can-Am opener at Mos Port Park, Canada, three weeks ago.

Road Atlanta's official lap record is 1:17.4, or 119.2 m.p.h. set last year by world driving champion Jackie Stewart in a British-made Lola. Stewart was scheduled to drive in Sunday's race as a member of the McLaren team, but withdrew. His substitute will be 1971 Can-Am driving champion Peter Revson.

Kennedy Will Still Have 'First Refusal' On Veep Nomination If McGovern Wins

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy will still have "first refusal" on the vice presidential nomination if Sen. George McGovern captures the Democratic presidential nod, sources close to the South Dakota senator said today.

Despite Kennedy's repeated statements he won't be available, the offer will probably be made because polls show he would strengthen a McGovern ticket, the sources said.

The sources discounted the value of polls ordered by McGovern on other possible running mates, declaring it is impossible to measure the value of possible candidates who are not so well known, such as Govs. Reubin Askew of Florida and Dale Bumpers of Arkansas. Both have been mentioned by McGovern as leading possibilities.

Activity in this steaming Democratic National Convention city, which has been limited this week to advance logistical preparations by the candidates and a half-dozen protest groups, picked up Friday as the parley headed for an opening Monday.

Most of the major presidential candidates — except McGovern — fly here to start wooing arriving delegates in their bid to overtake the front-running South Dakota senator.

Sens. Hubert H. Humphrey, Edmund S. Muskie and Henry M. Jackson; Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace; and Rep. Wilbur D. Mills all scheduled afternoon arrivals. McGovern is due Saturday afternoon.

With the convention to start Monday night, two major credentials cases which involve 151 McGovern delegates from California and 50 Illinois delegates led by Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley remained in a legal limbo.

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger extended indefinitely Thursday a delaying order in the case so he could consult with his eight Supreme Court colleagues on whether to call a special session to consider appeals in the two cases.

The two cases are crucial, especially the California one, in McGovern's quest for victory on the first ballot. Including the 151 California votes, The Associated Press count shows McGovern with 1,454.65 first ballot votes — just 54.35 short of the 1,509 needed for the nomination.

Failure to retain the 151 votes, either through court rulings or convention action, would leave McGovern more than 200 votes away from the nomination, a far more difficult hurdle to overcome.

The AP count shows Humphrey a distant second with 398.55; Wallace with 367; Muskie with 219.55; and 425.65 uncommitted. The rest are scattered.

McGovern crossed verbal swords with Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird over the senator's proposals to cut U.S. defense spending sharply.

Laird issued an analysis of McGovern's proposal for a $32 billion reduction by 1975 and called it "tantamount to a

The governor said the effects of the dissension among the Democrats "remains to be seen. But the Democrats have a talent for getting together."

Ogilvie and Percy held a news conference after the caucus.

Percy, the vice chairman of the Republican group, said of the Democrats' problems, "I never like to see dissension that can weaken the two-party system. I believe they will patch up their differences."

Percy also said he would not underestimate Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., the front runner for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Percy and Hope McCormick of Chicago will serve as Illinois representatives on the GOP Rules Committee. Percy said he was looking forward to the task "to broaden the spectrum of the Republican party for 1976."

The governor also said the Republicans are opening the party to women and minority groups.

"This year we had seven women elected delegates and three others chosen at large. We also, for the first time, have a Latin American as an alternate and a black woman as a delegate."

Named to represent Illinois on the Resolutions Committee were U.S. Rep. Robert Michel of Peoria and Patricia Olson of Oak Park. Named to the Permanent Organization Committee were Catherine Rondinelli of Chicago and James McRoberts Jr. of Belleville.

white flag of surrender." McGovern rejected that characterization and said, "My proposed military budget will make certain that the United States is the strongest nation in the world."

In Miami Beach, meanwhile, heads of three largely black organizations threatened to crash the convention sessions unless 750 delegate seats are provided for poor people.

The threats were made by the Rev. Ralph Abernathy, head of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference; George A. Wiley, executive director of the National Welfare Rights Organization; and Jesse Gray, director of the National Tenants Organization.

Richard J. Murphy, the convention manager, said after meeting with the three Thursday he was unable to comply with their request "because the rules don't permit it."

In other developments: —A Terry Sanford for President Citizens Committee to boost the candidacy of the former North Carolina governor was formed by a group headed by Atty. Gen. Andrew Miller of Virginia.

—Former Gov. Endicott Peabody of Massachusetts said he has a one in four chance of winning the vice presidential nomination next week. In Washington, Sen. Mike Gravel of Alaska joined Peabody as an active contender for the No. 2 spot on the Democratic ticket.

GOP Delegation: We Will Not Be Complacent

CHICAGO (AP) — Illinois' delegation to the Republican National Convention in August caucused Friday and Sen. Charles H. Percy said the theme of the meeting was that "we will not be complacent."

Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie, chairman of the GOP delegation, said, "It will be a tough election in Illinois and nationally."

The governor said the effects of the dissension among the Democrats "remains to be seen. But the Democrats have a talent for getting together."

Business Mirror

By LINDA RUBEY

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Stock Market System, widely touted by securities industry leaders as a boon for the small investor, may instead help the phenomenal growth of institutional trading some money managers say.

"I think whatever might provide an easier method of trading large blocks of stock will produce greater concentration of ownership in the hands of big pools of money like banks, mutual funds and insurance companies," says Elmer Lyle Nicholson, chairman of CNA Financial, a Chicago financial holding company.

"I'm not 100 per cent in favor of that," he says. "I don't want to see the little guy squeezed out."

According to the New York Stock Exchange, institutional trading in the first half of 1971 accounted for 59.7 per cent of public share volume and 68.2 per cent of public dollar volume.

The exchange says that by 1980, institutional trading at the NYSE will equal all the trading done there last year.

The central market system now being assembled should facilitate the trading of institutions' large blocks through a consolidated trade-reporting system giving price and volume information on listed securities in all markets. This should give all investors, large and small, a better idea of where to find the best deals.

Other recommendations of the Securities and Exchange Commission would permit institutions to hold exchange seats through brokerage subsidiaries, if the subsidiaries do most of their business with the public.

This would give the institutions a way to save on commission charges on their sometimes mammoth trades and also would give them a greater voice in the actual running of the exchanges.

"Looking down the road, there is also no reason why institutions couldn't act as a principal, making markets in stocks sort of like a glorified super-specialist," says Bob Hendrickson, vice president of investments at the Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States.

Exchange specialists are floor traders charged with making fair and orderly markets in stocks they handle. They frequently must do this by buying or selling against the market trend and some specialists find they lack the money to handle the increasing amounts of big trades.

Money managers point out that institutions would be natural for the job because they've got the money that a market maker needs to provide depth and liquidity in a stock—making sure the stock is available for buying or selling at a price not far from the last one paid.

NON-FARM JOBS IN STATE UP

CHICAGO (AP) — The Illinois Department of Labor says the number of nonfarm jobs in the state has increased for the fourth consecutive month over the previous year. But the figures show that employment remains well below the 1970 and 1969 levels.

There were 16,200 more nonfarm jobs in mid-May than at the same time last year, according to the latest employment figures. However, employment is 8,500 below the May 1970 figure and 56,000 under that of May 1969.

All of the reported May increase was in nonfactory jobs. Government services, and wholesale and retail trade showed the largest increase over 1971.

Best Fund Up To You

By CARLTON SMITH
(First of Two Related Columns)

Would-be investors are forever asking for the name of "the best mutual fund."

Funds are classified according to their investment objectives—and this is something that's spelled out in the prospectus of the fund. Here are the main types, each pursuing a different investment objective:

— Growth funds invest primarily for capital appreciation. The portfolio manager buys stocks that he thinks will appreciate substantially in value. If they do, then each share becomes worth more—but growth stocks typically pay small dividends or none, so investors shouldn't expect much dividend income. Growth stocks also tend to fluctuate widely in price as the market moves up or down; therefore, the fund itself tends to be relatively "volatile," with share values usually swinging up and down more widely than the market averages.

— Performance funds are sometimes considered a subcategory of growth funds. They seek maximum performance and invest in more speculative, high-risk stocks. Many have achieved spectacular results in bull markets, and a number have had equally spectacular losses in market declines. As a group, they're the most volatile of all the funds.

— Growth-income funds aim for a combination objective. They seek modest growth by investing in high-grade common stocks, and mix them with generally stable income-producing securities such as preferred stocks, convertible bonds and government or corporate bonds.

— Income funds emphasize the safety and stability of the securities they invest in—largely bonds, though usually mixed with high-grade stocks paying high dividends. Growth, or capital appreciation, is largely incidental in these funds.

— Balanced funds typically invest in blue-chip stocks and senior corporate debt instruments—the main emphasis being on stability and the avoidance of risk. In general, the most conservative investment policies.

— Specialty funds invest in particular kinds of securities—as some examples, bank stocks, insurance stocks, Canadian stocks, utilities.

— Hedge funds, the newest type, use the "leverage" techniques of Wall Street's professional traders—buying on margin, selling short, using puts and calls, etc. In theory they're "hedged" against disastrous losses, while their upside leverage offers the possibility of high returns on investment. For the sophisticated.

So it's clear that there can be as much difference between two kinds of funds as between a pair of tennis shoes and a pair of patent-leather pumps. One type of fund will be more suitable for a retired couple with limited capital needing stable, assured income. Another will be more appropriate for a younger, more affluent couple who can accept higher risk in return for the possibility of substantial growth.

Decide first of all who you are, as an investor. Then you can ask the appropriate question, "What's the best kind of mutual fund—for me?" ... and answer it yourself.

WHEAT, SOYBEAN FUTURES DOWN

By ED DE MOCH
AP Business Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Wheat futures eased 2 1/2 cents a bushel and soybeans were down 1 1/2 cents on the Chicago Board of Trade Friday.

Corn and oats were irregular but soybean oil was up around 10 points and soybean meal declined some 25 cents a ton. Fed broilers were up some 15 points under good commercial support and short-covering.

Selling in the wheat pit was of a commercial nature and, as prices fell back after the mixed opening, much stop-loss selling was developed. The latter activity was largely by commission house brokers for public accounts.

There again was heavy buying of deferred options in the corn pit by some commercial interests, including export houses.

This again led credence to a trade belief that some kind of an export arrangement has been worked out for feed grains with Russia.

Corn and oats futures later turned irregular under local profit-taking.

Soybean futures opened 1 cent a bushel higher and oil was up some 10 points, but after local professionals began selling the two commodities weakened.

Meal trade was notably light, compared with previous sessions this week.

After about an hour, wheat was 1/4 to 1 cent a bushel lower, July 1.50 1/2; corn was 1/2 lower to 3/4 higher, July 1.23 1/2; oats were 1/2 lower to 1/4 higher, July 74 1/2 cents and soybeans were 1 1/2 lower to 1/4 higher, July 3.54 1/4.

OLNEY MAN HELD IN KIDNAPING DEATH OF GIRL

MOUNT VERNON, Ill. (AP) — William R. Gonder, 50, has been ordered held for a Lawrence County grand jury in connection with the kidnaping of a Lawrenceville girl later found dead.

Judge Philip B. Benefiel of Circuit Court ordered Gonder held for the grand jury investigation after hearing testimony Thursday that Gonder was in Lawrenceville the morning of June 26, the day 8-year-old Dorothy Kavanaugh disappeared. Her body was found a week later in a grave near Princeton, Ind.

Gonder, of Olney, has been charged with kidnaping but not murder.

Judge Benefiel ordered the hearing postponed Monday and transferred it to Mount Vernon, about 100 miles away, after police said they could not provide adequate security when several hundred persons gathered around the courthouse in Lawrenceville.

Police said Gonder was being held in lieu of $250,000 in a secret location for security reasons.

New York Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP) — Prices drifted slowly downhill in the stock market Friday in slow trading.

At the finish, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was off 4.07 to 938.06. Losing issues topped gains on the New York Stock Exchange 810 to 575.

The dull session put an end to a two-day rally in which the Dow had risen 13.47 points.

The government reported unemployment, after holding for three months at 5.9 per cent, was down in June to 5.5 per cent. It also reported that wholesale prices rose in June at the same rate as in May—per cent on a seasonally adjusted annual basis.

Newton Zinder of E.F. Hutton & Co. said "The two reports more or less offset each other." He said there was "profit-taking and some pre-weekend caution, but not much selling pressure. It was just a dull summer Friday."

The Big Board's most active issue turned out to be a stock that slipped in at the bell. Trading in Curtiss-Wright shares had been halted late Thursday when the price dropped 6 to 51, apparently on a published report that a Chrysler official felt the Wankel rotary engine, for which Curtiss has North American rights, might not live up to expectations.

As the Friday session was closing, trading resumed with the sale of 150,000 shares, followed by 50,000 more, at 51 1/2.

Bausch & Lomb, which had lost 4 points Thursday as witnesses before a Senate committee hearing criticized soft lenses, regained 1 1/2 to 45 1/4.

On a percentage basis, Associated Brewing was the best gainer, up 1 1/2 to 9 1/2 for a boost of 18.5 per cent. The biggest loser was Chris-Craft second preferred, off 6 1/2 to 24 1/2, a drop of 21 per cent. Directors recently voted to pay back dividends on the prior preferred.

BEARDSTOWN — One of the winners in the bike races held here on July 4 was an 88 year old man.

He is Elza DeSollar, who makes his home on West Sixth street where his son Kenneth and family live and operate the DeSollar Studio.

Mr. DeSollar retired from work on the C.B. and Q. railroad about 15 years ago. He had worked for the company fifty years and retired as a locomotive engineer.

He was the only entry in his classification for the bike races—for TRIKES—and rode a good race over the State street course as the crowd of onlookers cheered.

Mr. DeSollar received a trophy which has already become one of his most prized possessions.

He insists that the fact that his photographer son was a judge in the "race" had nothing to do with his thrilling victory.

"I'm in great shape," he said, "and wish I could have had more competition."

Swiss Bankers

Oppose Judicial Assistance Pact

BERN, Switzerland (AP) — The proposed U.S.-Swiss treaty that the Nixon administration considers a vital weapon against organized crime has run into stiff new opposition from influential Swiss banking and industrial circles. It is now certain to be delayed until next year, and speculation is growing that it may never take effect.

After four years of negotiations, officials of the two governments agreed last December on the draft of a complex "judicial assistance treaty," more than 100 pages long, that would help U.S. investigators collect evidence in Switzerland and track down funds deposited by American suspects in secrecy-protected Swiss bank accounts.

Key clauses that prompted criticism were amended, and there was confidence on both sides that the treaty could be signed early this summer.

American sources concede that Swiss officials in several meetings made all-out efforts to win industry and banking support. But they have run into renewed resistance since spring, and one influential industry source said today the draft is still "completely unacceptable." He said Swiss business wants new talks next year.

One criticism frequently made is that the present draft is lopsided in favor of the United States and would give it sweeping rights in a country where many American companies have set up subsidiaries. These critics argue that the treaty would even permit American antitrust proceedings to be carried into Switzerland, which does not have such legislation.

The chief source of concern is the provision rated most important by the Americans. It would oblige Swiss banks and authorities to cooperate with the U.S. government and open now-secret bank records when there are "reasonable grounds" to Mrs. Jean Chapman of Jacksonville has returned from a six day workshop jointly sponsored by the National Restaurant Association and the State Board of Vocational Education. She was one of 40 educators from high schools and colleges in Illinois who attended the workshop held on the campus of William Rainey Harper Junior College, Palatine, Ill.

The scope of the workshop revealed the working operations of all types of food service, including large hotel, family restaurant, country club, airline, hospital and other institutions, as well as research and sales in the food service industry. The group toured the above mentioned places and talked with various staff members.

The basic purpose of the institute was to unite industry and education to enable educational institutions to better meet the needs of the food service industry.

Mrs. Chapman, home economics instructor for School District 117, teaches a vocational class in food service at Jacksonville High School.

THE DOCTOR SAYS Gallbladder Stones Cause Difficulties

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.
Dear Dr. Lamb — My wife spent several days in the hospital having multiple X rays. After two X rays, they said they couldn't find her gallbladder, that it was clogged up with stones. I thought that the X ray would show bones, stones or solid materials. What is your opinion of this? Please advise if there is any medicine for gallstones.

Dear Reader — It is fairly common for a "nonfunctioning gallbladder" not to show on X rays. The way a gallbladder

X ray is done is to have the person take some pills which have a dye in them which will show up on the X ray. This dye material is absorbed by the bloodstream and filtered out by the liver, eventually being carried by the bile and stored in the gallbladder. Now if the gallbladder is diseased too badly, the bile will flow on out through the bile duct into the intestines and there won't be any storage of bile in the gallbladder. When this occurs since no dye reaches the gallbladder it can't be seen on the X ray.

There are really no good medicines that will dissolve stones in the gallbladder. There are some recent studies on this problem that suggest that some stones may be dissolved but this needs further study before general use. Most medicines given for gallbladder disease are for relief of symptoms. If there are a number of stones in the gallbladder, surgery is not functioning is because it has stones in it, sometimes. You may have a dental prob-lem after a rear-end auto col-lision. When the head snaps back, the mouth flies open then snaps shut abruptly. This can cause stretching or tearing of muscles and ligaments that con-trol the lower jaw. When this occurs there is pain on chewing and limitation in opening the mouth or in the movements of the jaw. The problem is treated much like any other sprained joint. The muscles must be treated with special exercises designed to regain normal range of function.

Does all the talk about cholester-ol disturb you? If so, you'll want to read Dr. Lamb's book-let in which he answers your questions about this subject. Send 50 cents to Dr. Lamb, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. Ask for "Cholesterol" booklet.

God Summer Code Ad Nobody Cares

It's happened again. A sum-mer cold. And I know what to expect. No sympathy, no compassion, absolutely no interest in my condition from friends or fam-ily.

If only it were February! They would offer me cups of hot tea and murmur words of solace. I could put on my old bathrobe and sigh and snuffle and cough and settle back and enjoy it. But, having or curing a sum-mer cold is an exercise in futil-ity. The most difficult part of it is even getting somebody to notice you have one.

Chances are, if you sneeze often enough in the summer-time, the most somebody will say is, "For heaven's sake, if you'd chop down those weeds in the backyard, you'd spare us this distasteful display!"

Sympathy for a winter cold isn't hard to come by. Friends offer you tried and true reme-dies. Acquaintances drop by with worn little books filled with folklore and quaint recipes.

Husbands have been known to bring home a new blue quilt-ed robe, the better to clothe your aching shoulders. Mothers-in-law ladle hot onion soup and supply you with coughdrops. Children enlighten you with news from their science books about rest and fluids.

But that's only when the snow is piled high or the freezing rain falls. One is allowed to enjoy the misery of a cold you only when they are in season, only, presumably, when a month has an "R" in it. If you complain about having a cold in the middle of June, you there is no ailment called A Summer Cold.

Some Information On Postage Stamp Size

By POLLY CRAMER
DEAR POLLY—I am afraid philatelists would not agree with Mrs. C. R. who objects to the size and subject matter of the many commemorative stamps. For her information, regular-issue stamps (like eight-cent Eisenhower and flag ones) are always available at the post office in sheets, booklets and coils. They are the convenient size Mrs. C. R. prefers. I believe the commemoratives more than pay their way in the number of sheets or plate blocks that are purchased to be pre-served unused. Postage rates do go up, as do prices for other services, but so that our postal employees may receive a decent wage.—RUTH

DEAR READERS—I do hope this clears the air a bit concern-ing commemorative stamps. On checking Ruth's statement that she believed they paid their own way, I learned from a knowledgeable post office official that they do indeed make a profit. However he stressed the fact they were not just made for the profit and the sat-isfaction of collectors but have educational value as they teach or inspire the seeking of knowl-edge concerning our history by children and others and are also great U.S. informational tools when sent abroad on let-ters as they portray pride in our own history.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—When I combed by little girl's hair into pig-tails the yarn or ribbon bow always slipped off until I finally found the solution. Now I make several turns with a rub-ber band around the end of the pigtail, slip the ribbon through the last loop and then tie in a bow as usual.—MARY LOU

Polly's Problem
DEAR POLLY—Will moth-balls put in my china cabinet keep the silver shiny and pret-ty? I heard this somewhere and wonder if the silver would be safe for using without first be-ing washed.—MRS. R.S.

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is with the manufactur-ers of thermos bottles. It seems to me that they could come up with one that had a large mouth and sold at a reasonable price so we could take leftovers to work for lunch and have them stay warm until lunch time.—LYDIA

You will receive a dollar if Polly uses your favorite home-making idea, Pet Peeve, Polly's Problem or solution to a prob-lem. Write Polly in care of this newspaper.

King Regains Singles Crown

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Billie Jean King outstroked Evonne Goolagong 6-3, 6-3 in a tame tennis final Friday and regained the Wimbledon women's singles crown after four years.

A victory in the men's final Saturday by Stan Smith over Romania's Ilie Nastase would give the Americans a sweep in singles.

The women's final lacked atmosphere and excitement and offered little high class tennis. But Mrs. King, 28, from Long Beach, Calif., said it meant more to her than any of her three previous Wimbledon triumphs.

"It's difficult playing a Wimbledon final," she said. "You don't have to play great tennis. You just have to be better than your opponent."

And on Friday's showing she was certainly better than Miss Goolagong, the 20-year-old Australian who came from nowhere to win the title last year.

Mrs. King played efficiently, though not as well as in earlier rounds. Miss Goolagong was frequently off target with her first service and lost many points on her soft and vulnerable second service.

A crowd of 15,000 on Wimbledon's center court watched the match quietly. Hundreds of them, in the standing areas, had camped all night on the sidewalks outside the All-England Club.

The fans had hoped for a repeat of the dramatic semifinal of two days ago when Miss Goolagong came from behind to beat 17-year-old Chris Evert of Fort Lauderdale, Fla. But after that epic, Friday's encounter was all anti-climax.

The pattern was set from the start. Mrs. King held her service in the opening game despite two double faults. Miss Goolagong then lost her service after netting three ground strokes.

The fans were all behind Miss Goolagong, who is a great favorite here. They sometimes clapped even when Mrs. King made a bad shot.

"That was unfair and it worried me," Miss Goolagong said afterwards.

But the defeat didn't appear to worry her at all. She wore her usual sunny smile as Mrs. King made the winning shot, and went on smiling and chatting with the new champion as they waited for the presentation.

At an interview later news-men asked Miss Goolagong if she thought she could ever be ruthless enough to be a great champion.

"I really don't know," she said. "It's just me. And I hope I never change."

Mrs. King first appeared in a Wimbledon final in 1963, when she lost to Margaret Court of Australia. She won the title in 1966, 1967 and 1968, lost to Ann Jones of Britain in the 1969 final and to Mrs. Court again in 1970. Last year she bowed out to Miss Goolagong in the semifinals.

"My determination to win the 1972 title really started with the handshakes after that semifinal last year," Mrs. King said.

"I had a wonderful year in 1971. I won 19 tournaments, and I thought I was the best player. It really worried me, losing that semifinal to Evonne, and I've worried about it ever since. That is why today's match means so much to me."

Miss Goolagong plans to play at Forest Hills this year for the first time.

"I'm glad people in the United States will have the joy of seeing Evonne," Mrs. King said. "She is a great player."

Mrs. King won $6,240; Miss Goolagong $3,380.

Bob Hewitt and Frew McMillan, the South Africans, beat the U. S. Davis Cup pair, Smith of Pasadena, Calif., and Erik Van Dillen of San Mateo, Calif., 6-2, 6-2, 9-7 to win the men's doubles title for the second time. They were also the champions in 1967.

Rain stopped play for the day with Mrs. King and Clark Graebner of New York City locked in a mixed doubles semifinal tussle with Ilie Nastase of Romania and Rosemary Casals of San Francisco.

Nastase and Miss Casals had taken the first set 9-8 and the second set was tied at 5-5.

A second semifinal of the mixed doubles was postponed until Saturday.

STILL RESPONSIBLE

NEW YORK (UPI)—The traditional responsibility of the housewife for family food shopping hasn't changed much, despite the fact that so many thousands of wives are working.

The working woman either does not or cannot delegate this job, says Leo Bogart, executive vice president and general manager of the Bureau of Advertising. He based his statement on a bureau study of "The Working Woman."

Mrs. King first appeared in a Wimbledon final in 1963, when she lost to Margaret Court of Australia. She won the title in 1966, 1967 and 1968, lost to Ann Jones of Britain in the 1969 final and to Mrs. Court again in 1970. Last year she bowed out to Miss Goolagong in the semifinals.

"My determination to win the 1972 title really started with the handshakes after that semifinal last year," Mrs. King said.

Eddie Jr. likes to catch his famous father, but plays short stop mostly. The two plus, Al Jackson, Gary West and Floyd Berger will be playing here Sunday at 2 p.m. at the Pony-Colt Park, facing the Jacksonville Redlegs.

Pepitone, Popovich Clip Cincinnati 2-1

CINCINNATI (AP) — Joe Pepitone cracked his first home run of the season and Paul Popovich snuffed out a Cincinnati threat with a fielding gem as the Chicago Cubs downed the Reds 2-1 Friday night.

Pepitone, back with the Cubs since June 30 after a brief retirement, blasted a pitch from Wayne Simpson, 4-3, over the right field wall to backup rookie right-hander Burt Hooton, 7-7.

Simpson had retired 12 of the first 13 batters he faced before Pepitone ended his bid for a no-hitter leading off the fifth.

Cincinnati threatened in the sixth when Pete Rose drew a walk—one of three issued by the Cub pitcher—and moved to second on Bobby Tolan's single. Johnny Bench lined what appeared to be a single to right-center, but second baseman Popovich made a leaping one-handed grab and turned it into a double play.

The Cubs picked up the decisive run in the eighth on a walk to Rick Monday, an infield out and Ron Santo's double following an intentional pass to Billy Williams.

Singles by Tony Perez and Tolan were Cincinnati's only hits until Rose, Bench and Perez singled in the ninth. Jack Aker came on to protect the triumph by striking out George Foster and retiring Denis Menke on a forceout.

Twins Owner Sees Talent In Quilici

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UPI)—Natural, the first thing Frank Quilici did was call his wife.

"Hon, I can't say anything other than I'm sitting here in Calvin Griffith's office and he just offered me the manager's job with the Minnesota Twins."

Frank Quilici got no response. His wife, Penny, had dropped the phone.

Eventually she picked it up again.

"I don't believe it," she said. By now she does. So does everyone else because Calvin Griffith, the President of the Twins, called a news conference in Bloomington, Minn., Thursday afternoon and announced Bill Rigney was out and Frank Quilici, one of his coaches, was in.

To most people, the congenial, always happy 33-year-old Quilici is the Twins' court jester and Good Humor Man because every time you run into him he is full of fun and full of laughs.

If you need a favor, any kind of favor, you don't go to The Godfather, you go see Frank; if you need the name of a guy who can get it for you, you go see Frank; if you want to hear the latest funny story, and you want to hear it told right, you go see Frank.

But Calvin Griffith sees a lot of other things in Frank Quilici, his one-time back-up second baseman.

He sees in this slender, black-haired young man who sometimes looks like a loose-leafed Rudolph Valentino a good, quick mind. He also sees an excellent personality. He sees in gregarious Frank Quilici a man almost as well known in Minnesota as Hubert Humphrey, a natural salesman for the ball club. Calvin Griffith sees an individual who can possibly stimulate the Twins.

All this crystallized in Calvin Griffith's mind as he drove the 22 miles from his home in Wayzata, Minn., to the ballpark in Bloomington Thursday morning.

"I hadn't been sleeping the last two nights thinking about the club," said Griffith. "Watching our games, I felt there was something we lacked. I realize Bill Rigney had taken over a situation that wasn't too healthy in 1970 after we let go Billy Martin. But this has been one of those years though when everything has gone wrong."

"We won the Grapefruit League 'title' in Florida with the best record. Then after the season started we were 16 and 34. The irony of the whole thing is Tony Oliva. He had a knee operation yesterday and the doctors took some particles of calcium out. If he had been healthy, we most likely would be in contention right now."

In any case, Griffith made up his mind to change managers as he drove to work on the freeway Thursday morning.

A man can do a lot of thinking driving to work and Calvin Griffith was thinking.

"I went back to 1965 for one thing," he says. "Remember when Bernie Allen got hurt? Quilici came up to us from Denver and was one of the greatest inspirational forces I've ever seen in all the years I've been in baseball. He inspired everybody. He even inspired Versalles to become MVP that year and in the World Series he hit Koufax like he owned him."

Having made up his mind to make the change Thursday, which was an off day for the Twins, he now had to implement his thinking.

The players had come to the ballpark for a workout but that was called off because of rain. Griffith first called Rigney into his office and told him he was making a change. Rigney has been managing ball clubs 18 years but he took this firing hard.

Griffith informed Rigney he intended to talk with Quilici about the job and Rigney said "You're the boss."

Quilici was summoned to Griffith's office and he was still wearing his uniform when he arrived.

"Would you like to become a manager?" Griffith asked him. Quilici thought Griffith was talking about one of the Twins' minor league clubs and he replied that managing had always been one of his ambitions and he felt he could do the job after learning a few things.

"Now, Frank," said Griffith, "I'm not talking about any minor league job. I'm talking about the Twins."

Quilici looked dumbfounded. "Actually, he never said 'yes,' the Twins' owner reveals, 'but later on we shook hands at the press conference so I guess he accepted. Youngest manager in the majors? I guess he is at that. It shouldn't make that much difference. My uncle (Clark Griffith) named Bucky Harris manager when he was only 27 in 1924 and he turned out to be the 'Boy Wonder.' He won the world championship that year. I remember. I was the batboy."

Frank Quilici promises he won't turn into an entirely different individual now that he's a big league manager.

"The only thing I don't want to lose," he says, "is my personality."

It would be a shame if he did.

League - leading Winchester clipped Fanning Oil 8-3 and Langdon Insurance edged Firemen 8-6 in Pony League play Friday night at the Pony-Colt Park.

Winchester, 9-1, got a grand slam homer from winning hurler Joe Nash, who fired a nifty two-hitter. Nash fanned a whopping 22 batters. Brad Jefferson and Nash both collected a pair of hits. Fanning Oil dropped to 5-5.

Langdon held off a late Firemen rally for its victory, moving the winners to 7-3 on the season. Mike Walker had two hits for the winners and Kelly Hall two for the losers, now 6-4.

Area Bass Are Now Hitting Surface Lures

By JIM HALL, OUTDOOR RECREATION

Having a big bass smash a surface lure is the ultimate thrill in the sport of bass fishing. This is my opinion, and a lot of bass men I've talked to sure agree with me. Fishing with topwater lures is very challenging. With an underwater lure, such as a plastic worm or spinner, you are going to the fish. With a top water lure, you have to make the bass come to you. That's the challenge, then seeing that big bass hit the lure... what a thrill.

On real calm water I usually fish a quiet lure, such as the Rapalla floater-diver minnow. If there is a ripple on the water, I usually throw a tiny torpedo or jitterbug. On clear water I use light colors. If the water is murky or off color, I prefer black. I always use black noisy surface plugs in the late evenings.

Some of the area bass men have been using surface plugs in the past week with a lot of success. I've been throwing the tiny torpedo and jitterbug in the late evenings. Charlie Brown has been catching bass up to 4 lbs. on the jitterbug. Harry Birdsell has been landing bass on his favorite surface lure, the Hula Popper. Ben Scudder has been throwing the Smithwick surface lures, and the Devil's Horse has been producing for him.

I tried out one of Ben's Devil Horse lures one evening last week. The one I used was silver in color with a red head. It had propellers on the front and tail, and really kicks up a commotion on the surface. I had one bass on between four and five pounds, but couldn't hold him. This lure is heavy and really casts way out. I had entirely too much line out when the bass slammed into the Devil Horse. Ole Mr. Bass spit that lure out in a hurry, long before I could reel in enough line to set the hook.

Remember to try some surface lures late in the evening. Stay until it's completely dark, keep casting, and you should catch bass.

Fishing News Notes

By DICK SELLARS

Many fishermen ask me about different lures to catch big bass on. With big bass you have to work hard and have lots of patience. The Lunker Lure is made in southern Illinois and has a reputation of catching big bass. When I first heard of it, some fellows were coming over from Springfield, Ill. and catching bass out of Lake Jacksonville, when no one else could. It has a big Propeller Blade on it and it buzzes on top of the water. When you throw it you must start your retrieve as soon as it hits the water. It makes a lot of noise. Old stumps and log piles you can bring it across could catch a Lunker Bass you have been looking for all of your life. Lake Jacksonville is an excellent lake for the Lunker Lure. It has a lot of big bass with a lot of stumps, they're not easy to catch, but when it comes to big bass none of them are.

Lake Jacksonville 10 Lb. 3 Oz. Bass Caught In 1950

By JIM HALL, OUTDOOR RECREATION

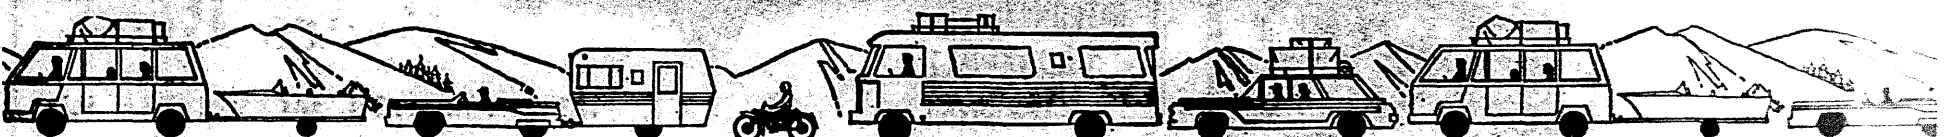

Dick Cruzan, owner and operator of Big Indian Camp, came to the Journal Courier Office last week. Dick had an article and photo that I thought would be of great interest to our area bass fishermen.

Back in September of 1950 Dick's father, Garrett Cruzan, caught a largemouth bass at Lake Jacksonville that weighed 10 pounds and 3 ounces. Garrett Cruzan's fishing partner on this particular night was Bill

Mitchel. They were fishing surface lures (a black jitterbug) on a cloudy night, around 10 p.m. The bass was packed in ice and put on display for one week in the Drexel window.

The fish was weighed and measured at the Journal Courier Office by Bob Merris, Sports Editor. There were two witnesses also, Carl Newport and Cecil Tendick. This could be the record bass for Lake Jacksonville.

Judy O'Brien caught these bass at the Sportsman Club on mepps spinners.

Thomas Lomelino (age 5) caught this 21½ lb. Carp at White Oaks. He was using some of his Grandpa's special dough balls.

they caught their fish using white jigs from the tailwater area.

Stephen Forbs, State Park has one and one-half pound large-mouth bass hitting artificial lures of all types. Lake of Egypt near Marion shows the best fishing in the state with bass a 2 lb. average. Blue Gill are hitting on crickets. Crappie are hitting on minnows. Our own local area has been very slow fishing.

This week throw small pigger bote spinners to catch fish. The Lunker Lure for big fish and never let the plastic worm set aside for too long.

Jim O'Brien caught some nice bass at the Jacksonville Sportsman Club on mepps spinner. Judy O'Brien caught a nice blue gill on a worm in a local farm pond. Jean and John Bohner caught bass on a hellbend up to 5 lb.-2 oz. in a local farm pond. Jim Phalen caught a nice crappie at the Sportsman's Club on a jitterbug that weighed 1 lb.-5 oz. Thomas Lomelino just 5 years old caught a carp as big as he was 21½ lbs. on a doughball at White Oaks with the help of his grandpa. Jean McDonald caught a 3½ lb. bass on a Creme worm.

Chess Match To Start Tuesday

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP) — Bobby Fischer lost the draw Thursday night, giving Boris Spassky the first move, and the world championship chess match will finally start next Tuesday.

Unless the American challenger or the Soviet champion pleads illness and gets another postponement.

The confusion of the past week was summarized by the old woman selling cigarettes who asked in the beginning: "Fischer come?"

Near the end it was: "Spassky go?"

"I'm very pessimistic," Dr. Max Euwe said at 10 a.m. At noon: "It's a very delicate situation." At 7 p.m., the president of the International Chess Federation sighed: "There's hope."

That was Tuesday. It could have been any day in the garbled prelude to what chess lovers say is the match of the century — Spassky of the U.S.S.R. vs. Fischer of the U.S.A.

Spassky arrived early to wait for Bobby. Saying "I came to play," he philosophically accepted the first postponement when Fischer didn't show.

Later he demanded an apology or he wouldn't play.

At one news conference, one of Fischer's lawyers said he'd come to say he had nothing to say.

Yefim Geller, Spassky's second, fielded questions with: "Kak Gavari po Angliiski," or as you say in English, "No comment."

Then there's the "Eavesdropper," a man approaching middle age with a shock of graying hair combed in careful disarray onto his forehead.

He takes voluminous notes, for a magazine piece, he says. On scraps of paper he records conversations he's overheard.

He carries the scraps in a red plastic shopping bag as he moves soundlessly about the hotel lobbies.

One final quote, from Gudmundur Thorarinsson, president of the Icelandic Chess Federation, who was under pressure from Fischer to give up a share of the gate receipts: "I have worked for more than a year to get this match to Iceland. I would do many things. But I will not bite into a sour apple."

Thanks to a rich British chess fan who doubled the stakes, he didn't have to.

FILLMORE NAMED WHIG PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATE FOR '72

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Whigs have nominated Millard Fillmore as their 1972 presidential candidate. No. 2 spot on the ticket was won by Robert E. Lee Moxley, who happened to be passing by.

"The Constitution doesn't say the candidate has to be alive," Jeffrey Amdur said after 15 delegates acclaimed Fillmore the standardbearer of the Resurrected Whig Party at an outdoor convention in a park Thursday night.

The Resurrected Whigs are an offshoot of the Students' Committee for the Glorification of Millard Fillmore, a Whig who served in the White House from 1850 to 1853 after the death of President Zachary Taylor.

Amdur, cochairman of the committee, says the selection of Fillmore was a long-overdue restoration to party favor for the man who was dumped by the Whigs in 1852.

Party leaders say they know little about Moxley, 70, the Baltimore man chosen for the No. 2 spot.

"He happened to be passing by and we asked him if he wanted to be vice president," said Amdur.

Nixon Moves To Hold Food Prices Down

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI)—President Nixon called in his economic experts to discuss ways of holding down food prices Friday after promising to veto any excessive election-year spending by Congress.

The President's moves were aimed at curbing inflation—one of the most persistent problems of his administration—and setting the stage for the forthcoming campaign debate over who is to blame for it.

Treasury Secretary George P. Schultz, Consumer Adviser Virginia Knauer, Herbert Stein of the Council of Economic Advisers and other members of the Cost of Living Council were scheduled to report to Nixon on their jawboning sessions with executives in the food industry.

He directed them last week to hold series of meetings with union officials, chain store operators and food processors and producers to enlist their support in halting mushrooming food costs.

Thursday, Nixon laid the blame for inflation on the Democratic-controlled Congress. William Timmons, the President's chief liaison with Congress, emerged from an hour-long meeting at the Western White House and accused the Democrats of engaging in an election-year strategy of passing popular but fiscally irresponsible measures.

He said Congress already had exceeded Nixon's budget limitations for the fiscal year, which began last week, by more than $6 billion.

"There seems to be a cynical strategy on the part of some Democratic leaders to deliberately send to the President proposals with good objectives, but proposals that substantially exceed his budget requests," Timmons said.

"The President made it clear to me this morning that this tactic will not work. That means that regardless of the purpose of legislation...if they substantially break the President's budget, he will veto those bills."

In addition to reviewing progress of his domestic programs, Nixon also met Thursday with two military experts who recently made independent reviews of the situation in Vietnam in preparation for resumption of the peace talks next Thursday in Paris.

SCHMIDT NAMED WEST GERMAN FINANCE MINISTER

BONN, Germany (AP) — Chancellor Willy Brandt Friday appointed Defense Minister Helmut Schmidt to replace Karl Schiller as economics and finance minister, the government announced.

Schiller, a free-marketer, resigned after the Cabinet last week adopted moderate restraints on the inflow of foreign currency. Schiller said this would lead to the extensive controls favored by France and other European countries.

Brandt accepted the resignation Thursday. Schmidt's departure from the Cabinet was considered a blow to the Socialist cause in the election this November. He was a proven vote-getter and played a major role in the 1969 election that made Brandt chancellor.

The 53-year-old Schmidt is a popular figure and is considered by many observers to be the Cabinet member most capable of handling the dual posts of economics and finance minister during campaign time.

Bomber Sticks Nose Into Blue Of Pacific Ocean

AGANA, Guam (AP) — A U.S. Air Force B-52 bomber with a crew of six crashed into the Pacific early Saturday, Guam time, en route to a bombing mission over Vietnam, the Air Force announced here.

The crew ejected from the aircraft before it crashed 300 miles west of Guam, but it was not known if they were all safe, the Air Force said.

A spokesman said rescue operations were underway with Air Force and naval units from Clark Air Force Base in the Philippines taking part. It was not known if there were any ships in the crash area.

Radio contact was established with at least one of the crew members after the crash at 5 A.M.—4 P.M. EDT Friday—he said.

The B52, part of the bomber squadron at Anderson Air Force Base, Guam, was armed with conventional bombs, the Air Force said.

The cause of the crash was not known and an investigation will be made, the spokesman said.

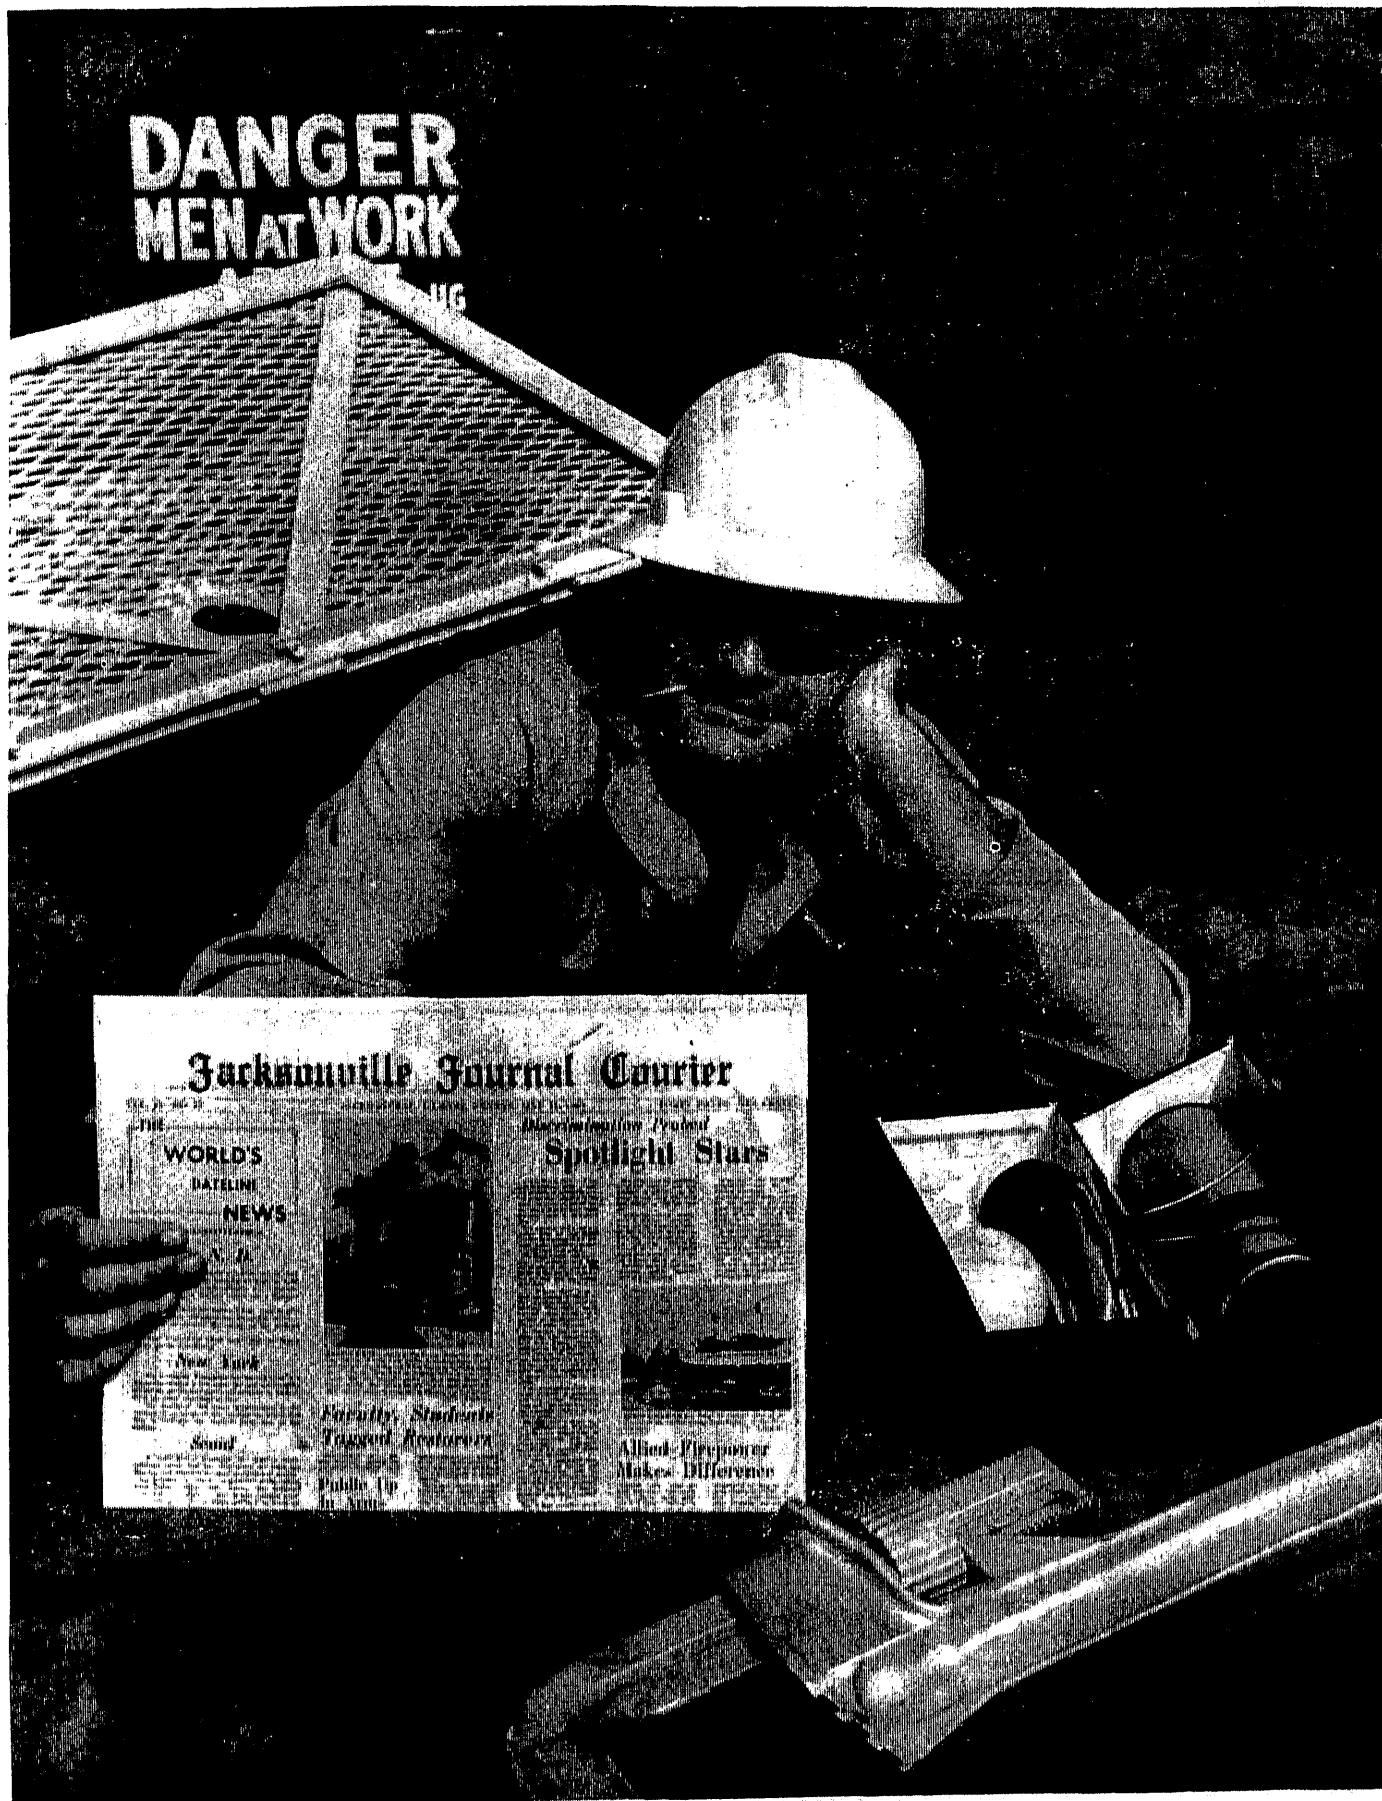

The location of the crash given by the Air Force is where the Fleet Weather Joint Typhoon Warning Center says tropical storm Rita is building in intensity.

The storm, with maximum winds of 65 miles per hour at midmorning Saturday, was expected to reach typhoon intensity as it moves west across the Philippine Sea, the warning center said.

The crewmen from the lost bomber are assigned to Anderson on temporary duty status from the United States, the Air Force said.

Small brine shrimp thrive in the water of the Great Salt Lake and are harvested and used for tropical fish food.

Youthpower Has Kids, In Crash Near Jerseyville Where Are The Jobs?

Do you need a piano tuner, a model, household or yard help, farm hands, waitresses, messengers, or umpires? Have you as a parent ever complained about the young people in the community idling away their summer vacations or groaned over your offspring's lack of knowledge about the value of a dollar? And what about employers who decry the lack of training and responsibility in youthful employees? Now is the chance for individuals and businesses in this city to aid and support the youth of this community while helping themselves.

This chance is made possible by Youthpower, Inc., the local summer work program for young people between the ages of 13 and 21. Its office opened June 3rd in the Chamber of Commerce building with a first day total of 46 applicants. The results of the first month of operation have 194 local and area teens and older youth registered and a total of 62 jobs filled. Goals set for August 25, summer closing for the project, estimate 250 applicants and an optimistic 300 job offers. Of the applicant goal, 77% per cent has been attained with 20 and two-thirds per cent of the number of jobs reached.

The types of jobs offered vary as widely as the age range and work ability of the young applicants.

One teen, Betty Dufelmeier, earned two dollars an hour by posing in a swimsuit on a paddleboat last Saturday in Central Park. She was, no doubt, the main attraction during the local boat show.

Thirty youths divided into three teams were hired by area farmers to cut corn stalks out of bean fields. One church group donated their combined day's wages of $60 to St. Peter's Lutheran church in Arenzville. It is apparent the work experience gained is as valuable as the earnings.

Several applicants over the age of 18 have been employed by Capitol Records Co. as factory help and one girl obtained a clerical position with Mobil Chemical.

A student from Illinois Braille and Sight Saving School tunes pianos and is waiting for his first call.

One of the local doctors called the Youthpower office seeking an office receptionist for Saturdays year round. The YMCA is also involved in the youth-oriented project, having hired two boys, ages 14 and 18, as umpires for the Y ballgames, and two swimming assistants for the Y pool.

One drawback of the younger applicants in the 13-15 year age group is their lack of experience, but as is often said, how can a person gain work experience if no one will hire him.

Youthpower in recognition of this need has set up a child care clinic to be held at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning, July 18, at the Morgan County Health Dept. Applicants are free to sign up for the clinic which will involve instruction by qualified persons in care of children, from infancy to adolescence. Other future clinics will center on team housecleaning and sales, giving information on applying for jobs or selling in stores or door to door.

The Youthpower volunteers manned a booth in the Merchant's building at the recent Morgan County Fair, distributing information explaining the organization and handing out cards for job orders to prospective employers. The cards were donated by several local businesses, Wade and Dowland, Rogers Office Supplies, Craig Office Supplies and Lane's Book Store. Hardin Business College contributed the printing of the cards. North Jacksonville Foods donated a case of soda for the volunteers' efforts.

Youthpower is presently involved in the process of establishing an advisory board of 10 or 12 local business and clergy members to assist with future developments. The prospective board does not include any women which is odd in the fact that both the local Manpower, Inc. and Youthpower, Inc. offices are capable managed by women. The future advice of the board would have greater scope and depth with a more equal representation.

Youthpower, Inc. is a project the community can be proud of and can profit from as well as the young job seekers. Mothers who want a free afternoon, residents who want help with yard work—these are only two examples. The possibilities of co-benefits are limitless. The main benefits, though, are the community's interest in its youths' futures and the realization by the young people of their own worth.

Award $168,600 Federal Grant To MacMurray

Sen. Charles Percy (R-Ill.) announced Thursday the award of a federal grant for the sum of $168,600 to MacMurray College in Jacksonville. The funds, which were issued by the Office of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, will be used for construction of a physical education building.

Sen. Percy said in his announcement, "These funds represent the government's continued interest in higher education. I am pleased I was able to assist in obtaining this grant for MacMurray College."

Jr. Clubwomen To Paint DAR Home Shutters

The Governor Duncan Home committee of the Jacksonville Junior Woman's Club met June 6 at the home of the chairman, Mrs. Bill Hall. Those attending included Mrs. Robert Thomas, Mrs. Carl Hamilton, Mrs. Richard Sweeney, Mrs. Tom O'Brien, Mrs. Peter George, Mrs. Roger Cannell, club President, Mrs. Bill Smith and Mrs. Hall.

The committee discussed plans for future projects to be worked on at the home. Projects completed include shutter painting, cleaning of the marble tablets in the tablet room and entrance hallway, and cleaning of the wallpaper in the reception room.

On June 12th, six members of the committee worked at the home picking weeds in the front of the home, painting a lawn chair, and cleaning the display case and labeling and placing artifacts in the case. Those working at the home included Mrs. Roger Cannell, Mrs. Pete George, Mrs. Robert Thomas, Mrs. Tom O'Brien, Mrs. Carl Hamilton and Mrs. Bill Hall.

Winner Of Local Soap Box Derby Back In 1940

If the face is familiar and you recognize businessman Harlan Lee Williamson, you were surely around Jacksonville back in 1940 when the then 14-year-old won the Soap Box Derby and made the trip to the National All-American Derby at Akron, Ohio. Williamson is shown in his racer just prior to the car being sent to Derbytown in Akron. Jacksonville Jaycees are receiving the traditional event this year, after a lapse of several years sponsorship. The 1972 Derby will be Sunday, July 16th, on Lincoln avenue. The local winner will receive the first place trophy, a plaque from General Motors Corporation; five hundred dollar scholarship and a week's all expense paid trip to Akron for the national competition, the latter compliments of the Jacksonville Jaycees.

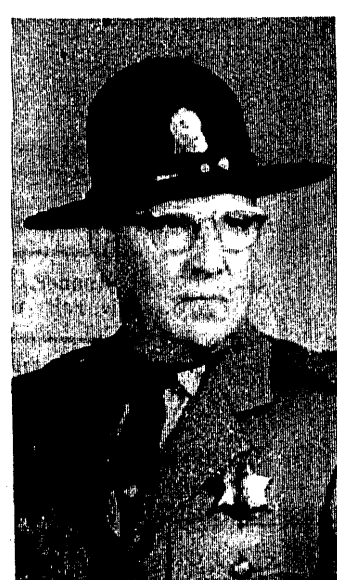

Williamson, owner of Williamson Funeral Home, retains many memories of the 1940 race and his trip to Akron. After winning the local race as a youth he advised many aspiring contestants in following derbies and later as an adult sponsored several entries. He commented several years ago "I think the Soap Box Derby is one of the best things a young fellow can enter." He continues to hold the same sentiments today, adding praise for the boys entered in the 1972 race. The actual car Harlan Lee Williamson rode to victory in 1940 is on display at Schmitt Chevrolet showroom. Williamson, presently out of the city, will be back to view this year's race Sunday, the 16th. He remarked this year, "A great deal has changed since I spent the ten dollars, allowed at that time, but the spirit and excitement will probably never change. I'll never forget being treated like a king at Akron."

Eberly Fair Retires After 30-Yr. Career

VIRGINIA — Corporal Eberly C. "Sneb" Fair of Virginia has announced his retirement from the Illinois State Police, which became effective as of June 30 of this year.

Cpl. Fair was appointed to the force Dec. 17, 1941. With the exception of serving two years with the Armed Forces in the China-Burma-India theater, he has worked for the State of Illinois for 30½ years.

Cpl. Eberly C. "Sneb" Fair

The state trooper is a native of Virginia where he attended school and has resided all of his life.

Stationed at District 9 headquarters, he has most recently supervised Cass, Mason, Menard, Morgan and Scott counties. Cpl. Fair has always taken his position seriously and consistently performed his duty to the best of his ability. If his record were checked, it is believed that he has driven more than one million miles of Illinois highway in his line of duty.

Cpl. Fair and his wife, the former Jo Caldwell of Virginia, are the parents of four children, Eddie, Tom, Bud and Alice. As for the future, he has no immediate plans. One might consider him a bird watcher, since he enjoys watching the St. Louis Cardinals play and is one of their avid fans. The state trooper plans to just enjoy being home, working with one of his hobbies, gardening.

Four persons received minor injuries in a two-car collision at 9:45 a.m. Friday at the intersection of South Main and Morton Avenue.

An eastbound auto attempting a left turn and driven by Ronald A. Henneke, 24, of Martin, Ill., and a westbound auto driven by O. A. Pires, 67, of 128 W. Chambers collided.

Four passengers in the Henneke auto sustained minor injuries but did not require hospital treatment.

City police said the accident happened when a General Telephone flagman waved the westbound auto driven by Pires to go through the intersection. Both drivers said they did not see each other until too late to stop.

Several telephone repair trucks were parked near the intersection, blocking the vision of motorists.

Both vehicles had to be towed from the scene with extreme damage. The accident was investigated by city police.

Explo '72 Attended By Local Delegates

By REV. HAROLD HENDRICK

Explo '72, the largest youth training conference in church history, was recently attended by some residents of the Jacksonville area. Among the over 75,000 registered delegates at the Dallas gathering—including 35,000 high schoolers and 30,000 college students — were Terry Schuster, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Schuster, Dennis Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nual E. Smith, and Rev. Harold H. Hendrick.

Young Schuster is a member of Grace Methodist Church, Dennis Smith and Pastor Hendrick, both of Lincoln Avenue Baptist Church, plan to present "Explo '72 Comes to You," a slide picture story of the Explo event. The presentation is to be during the church's evening service Sunday, July 9, at 7:30 p.m.

Sponsored by Campus Crusade for Christ International, Explo '72 was also the setting on its final Saturday for the biggest Jesus music festival ever, with attendance estimates ranging from 120,000 to 180,000, featuring such notables as Johnny Cash, Kris Kristoferson, and Billy Graham.

Explo, an abbreviation for the "explosion" of sharing Christ it hopes to ignite, was a combination of intense training and high inspiration. Its goal is to advance a structured plan for sharing Christ with everyone in the United States by 1976 and with everyone in the world by 1980.

Residents of 80 nations and all 50 states were at sixty-five different training sites throughout the Dallas-Fort Worth area during the week. These morning sessions were given to developing the 75,000 plus delegates in the "how to's" of sharing one's faith in Christ.

The evening saw the delegates filling the Cotton Bowl, including thousands on the playing field, in giant pep-rally style meetings. "Oh, wow, I can just feel the love and joy here" one youth exclaimed. His comment was typical. Numerous well known "name" personalities were featured the various evenings. Emotion ran high as the thousands of young people clapped hands, flashed the "One Way" sign, sent up great shouts of "Praise the Lord," whispered "Jesus is coming," and gave their program leaders thundering ovations.

Florida Governor Reubin Askew, a Presbyterian elder, obviously expressed the sentiment of the masses of the delegates when he said: "Explo has been the greatest experience of my life." Askew and his wife originally signed up only as delegates "to find out how to share our faith better," but he was later drafted to speak to the hundreds of business executives attending Explo. Asked whether he had hit the streets Crusade-style to witness, he replied with a smile, "No, but I've been doing my share of witnessing out in the hotel halls."

The impact of Explo '72 should further blanket the nation during this month. Television is scheduled to air three hours of it the third week of July, from 265 stations.

Dallas itself received the influence of Explo well. Deputy Police Chief J. M. Souther reported that "they look at you like you're a human being and not a cop. That means a lot to me." He further states that with the 80,000 to 90,000 nightly at the Cotton Bowl "You might get bumped 7,000 times, but then you'll get 7,000 'excuse me's' from them." In the door to door visitation, 5,000, professions of faith in Christ were recorded, including such successes being reported by both Terry Schuster and Dennis Smith.

Also, Big D's citizens will sorely miss all those smiles around town, a disc jockey and a newspaper editor lamented separately after the Explo crowd left.

Each of the three Jacksonville area residents report Explo '72 to be the greatest and finest experience that has ever happened to them.

Rogers Extends Tour

BELGRADE (UPI)—Secretary of State William P. Rogers said Saturday he was extending his world tour by two days in order to visit Rome for talks with Pope Paul VI and leaders of the new Italian government. Rogers, who will meet Sunday with Yugoslav President Tito, said he was making the Rome trip at the request of President Nixon. He said he would meet with Italian government leaders on Monday and see the Pontiff on Tuesday. It will be the first high-level U.S. contact with the newly formed government of Italian Premier Giulio Andreotti, who has formed a coalition cabinet of Christian Democrats, Social Democrats and Liberals. His is the first Rome government in 10 years to leave out the Socialists.

The U.S. secretary of state met Saturday with Yugoslav Premier Dzemal Bijedic in preparation for his Sunday lunch meeting with Tito on the president's Adriatic island retreat of Brioni.

Visibly tired from seven consecutive days of talks in nearly as many world capitals, Rogers then was taking a half day of rest in the Adriatic resort town of Dubrovnik.

Earlier, Rogers told Yugoslav leaders in Belgrade that a European security conference should insure Yugoslavia's "free movement of people and ideas."

"In the United States' view, the coming conference on security and cooperation in Europe can best promote that objective if it takes concrete steps toward the freer movement of people and ideas," Rogers said.

China—U.S. Strength

WASHINGTON (AP)—House Democratic and Republican leaders, just returned from China, reported Saturday that Peking is worried by the possibility that the United States will let the Soviet Union forge ahead militarily.

And they reported the Chinese concerned also about a possible U.S. pullout from international arenas such as the Pacific.

Rep. Hale Boggs of Louisiana, the House majority leader, and Rep. Gerald R. Ford of Michigan, the GOP chief, said they spoke by telephone with President Nixon for about a half-hour Friday afternoon upon their return here. Their nine-day China visit included five hours of talks with Premier Chou En-lai.

Boggs told newsmen at a joint news conference Saturday:

"We were advised by high officials that the policy of that (Peking) government is that disarmament will be not unilateral disarmament, and there was specific concern expressed rather emphatically with regard to the possibility of continued Soviet armament and American disarmament...

"As they put it, there are two superpowers—the United States and Russia—and if Russia becomes the greater superpower then much of the world is in difficulty."

The House leaders did not mention proposals by Democratic presidential contender George McGovern for deep U.S. defense spending cuts, though Boggs said Chinese officials showed tremendous interest in the electoral proceedings now going on in the United States.

Ford said that the Chinese leaders, in asking questions about U.S. intent in defense policy, did not put them "on the basis of a Democratic or a Republican policy."

Boggs said the Chinese approved the U.S.-Soviet SALT deal for a superpower missile curb, while voicing a preference themselves for total world disarmament including all weapons.

The two House leaders said Chou wished their talks to be confidential, so they would not give specific details of their discussions.

Arab Terror Head Dies

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—The Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine accused Israel of assassinating one of its leaders Saturday and vowed to avenge his death with "a most ruthless strike."

Ghassan Kanafani, 36, was killed by an explosion that demolished his sports car after he turned on the ignition outside his suburban Beirut apartment. His niece, Lamiss Nejim, 15, also was killed in the blast.

A statement issued by the Marxist-Leninist Front mourned the "martyrdom" of Kanafani and declared, "No matter who did it, the origin is the imperialist-Zionist-reactionary enemy camp."

"The front vows by his blood to take revenge... The front has proven its ability to pursue the enemy everywhere and inflict painful blows. We declare our reply this time will be the most ruthless and most painful."

Kanafani, the front's "information commissar" or spokesman and member of its Politburo, announced the front's responsibility for the Tel Aviv airport massacre May 30, in which three Japanese gunmen, trained by the front, killed 28 persons, and wounded scores more.

Guerrillas said Kanafani's death was a reprisal for the attack because some Western newspapers had described him as its mastermind.

Kanafani, editor of the leftist weekly Al Hadaf, was well known in the Middle East as an author of books, short stories and poems, many of them about the plight of the Palestinians. One collection of stories has been translated into Hebrew.

Lebanese officials, who have just settled a crisis with the guerrillas over Israeli raids in the south, began an investigation.

The possibility that a group that had split with the front earlier this year was involved was not ruled out.

A military demolition expert estimated that about 10 pounds of dynamite was wired in the exhaust pipe of the brown Austin 1100 car and went off when Kanafani started the car at 11 a.m.

The blast blew in doors and shattered windows in the middle-class neighborhood of Hazmieh, southeast of Beirut. Police said Kanafani returned home after midnight and the device was planted sometime during the night.

McGovern In Stretch Drive

'I Will Be The Nominee'

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Sen. George McGovern Saturday began his final drive to transform front-running strength into White House nomination, and declared he has no doubt that when the verdict is rendered "I will be the nominee of the Democratic party."

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey demanded that all the presidential candidates pledge loyalty to the ticket chosen by the Democratic National Convention—a challenge aimed squarely at McGovern.

But McGovern declined to say what he might do if denied the nomination. "I don't want to speculate on something that isn't going to happen," he said.

Meanwhile, the Democratic National Committee announced a convention schedule that promised marathon sessions beginning at 7:30 p.m. EDT Monday.

Party officials decided the convention will meet without recess until it has settled all delegate-seating disputes—and there was no telling how long that will take.

Delegates from 15 states are under challenge in 21 separate credentials controversies, chief among them the dispute over California and its 271 nominating votes.

In the ornate lobbies and gaudy parlors of resort hotels along Collins Avenue, the delegates were assembling and the politicians persuading as lines were drawn for the pivotal California battle.

More than 20 Democratic governors conferred with candidates at the Fontainebleau Hotel, seeking compromises to settle seating controversies.

The governors finally named a six-member committee to seek agreements where possible on credentials contests.

McGovern said he had discussed the California case with Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine, and told him "I hoped he would keep his mind open on the fairness question."

Muskie himself met with the governors and said he is still a candidate for the nomination.

"California can't be compromised," McGovern said he told the governors. "The issue has to be resolved on the floor."

The issue, vital to McGovern's hopes for first ballot nomination, and to the efforts of Humphrey and other candidates to deny him the prize:

Who gets 151 contested California delegate votes when the roll is called on presidential nomination?

McGovern said he is confident his sweep of 271 delegates in the winner-take-all California primary will be upheld by the convention. He said he does not think the party would support "a shoddy deal" to deprive him of more than half the California votes.

McGovern told a news conference he would be happy to support the nominee if the party's

Ellsberg Trial Due To Begin

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The long delayed trial of Daniel Ellsberg for theft of the Pentagon Papers gets underway Monday, more than a year after the publication of the documents dealing with the origins of the Vietnam War.

The 40-year-old former researcher for the Defense Department faces the possibility of a long prison term, as does codefendant Anthony J. Russo, if they are convicted by a jury of charges of espionage, theft of government property and conspiracy.

The main points of the defense are expected to be that the 1940 espionage law under which they were indicted does not apply to their actions and that the removal of classified documents and disclosure to the news media is a common government practice.

Ellsberg had frankly admitted that he turned over sections of the secret study to the New York Times and other papers but, contrary to a widespread impression, the "leaking" of the Pentagon Papers is not an issue in the case.

The New York Times, which won a Pulitzer Prize this year for its handling of the documents in June, 1971, is not even mentioned in the indictment which deals only with Ellsberg's allegedly illegal removal and possession of them.

Sections of the papers, some of them still unpublished, are expected to be read to the jury by the prosecution in an attempt to show that their disclosure was or could be harmful to the national interests of the United States.

Barricades Up Over Language

KARACHI, Pakistan (UPI)—Thousands of Pakistanis barricaded streets, ransacked stores and fought with police Saturday after learning that the Sind provincial assembly had voted to make Sindhi the only official language in the area.

At least three persons were killed and more than 100 others injured as rioting continued on into the night.

President Zulfikar Ali Bhutto appealed for peace, and the government banned the public assembly of five or more persons throughout the city. Most of the rioters were Urdu-speaking Pakistanis, mainly refugees from India's Uttar Pradesh and Bihar states.

The violence first broke out late Friday night when word spread to the Urdu-speaking residents of the bill making Sindhi the official language of Sind province, which includes Karachi.

Crowds fought police and put up barricades in the Liaquatabad, Nazimabad and Gollimar areas of Karachi, and authorities imposed a dusk-to-dawn curfew. The rioters ignored the curfew and looting and burning.

Demonstrators set up roadblocks around the Sind assembly hall and gathered in front of the provincial governor's house in central Karachi.

"Urdu is the national language and its importance is undeniable," Bhutto said in his broadcast appeal for peace. "But Sindhi is a centuries-old language and fully developed, but it has been denied its rightful place in the recent past."

Leader Threatens Irish-U.K. Break

BELFAST (UPI)—A militant Protestant leader said Saturday Northern Ireland's Protestant majority will break Ulster's ties with Britain, if necessary, to preserve its British heritage and way of life.

The threat came as the death toll in three years of violence between Northern Ireland's Catholics and Protestant majority rose to 407.

Lawrence McKenna, 22, a Catholic shot from a passing car in Belfast's Lower Falls area Wednesday, died of his wounds Saturday. He was the 12th fatality since a cease-fire went into effect in Northern Ireland 12 days ago.

William Craig, leader of the militant Protestant Ulster Vanguard Movement, made the breakaway threat at a rally of 20,000 sympathizers in Motherwell, Scotland.

"We hope and pray it is possible the great British public will insist and that the government will accord us our rights because we desire most earnestly to maintain the union," Craig said.

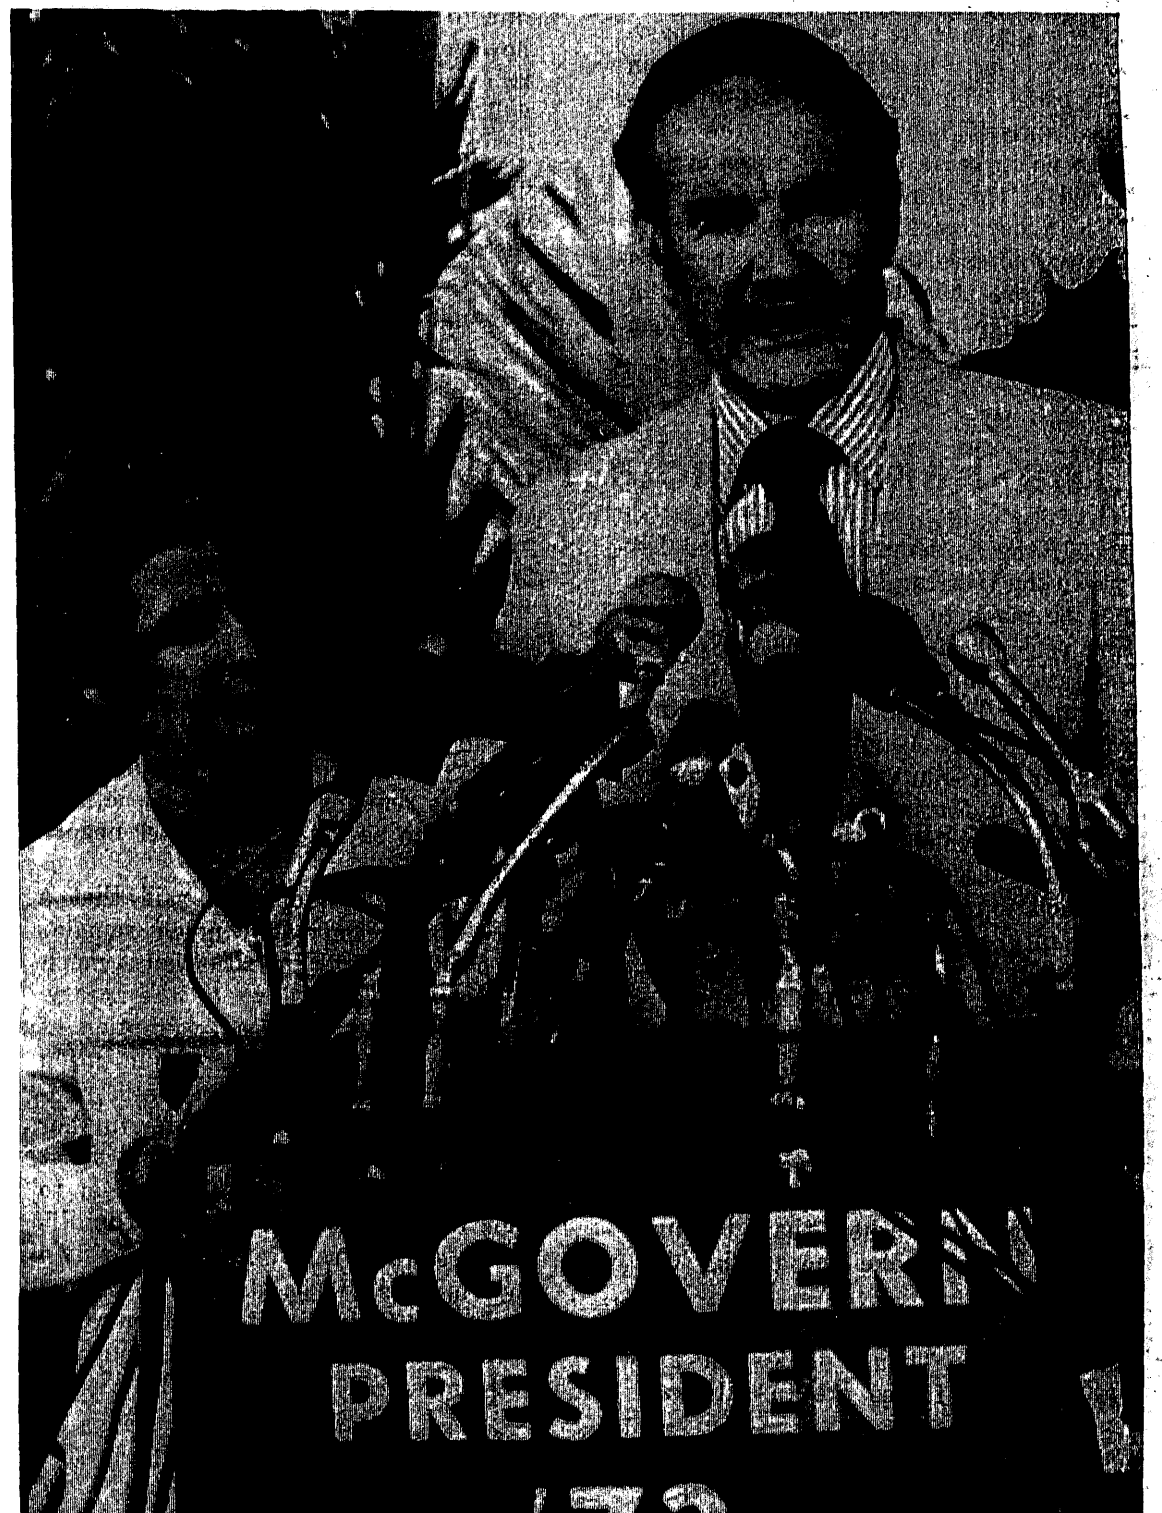

"But we must now say, and we mean it, that if this is not to be the case then we shall break with the union and we shall, through our own efforts, see that our British heritage and way of life is out of jeopardy," he said.

Craig said Britain's suspension of Ulster's parliament and imposition of direct rule March 24 had caused a breakdown of law and order requiring the Protestant majority to act. He said that unless Ulster regained its own parliament and government "we will take steps to establish a government with a constitution of our own making."

While Craig spoke in Scotland, Protestant militants in Belfast dismantled three newly built street barricades but said another would stay up to create a sixth blockaded Protestant neighborhood.

Leaders of the paramilitary Protestant Ulster Defense Association (UDA) said barriers made of oil drums, planks and other light material came down at Lisburn, a few miles southwest of Belfast near British Army headquarters, and at Bangor, 10 miles northeast of the city.

U.S. And Russia Sign Pact For Grain Sale

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI)—The Soviet Union and the United States Saturday signed an agreement under which the Russians agreed to buy $750 million worth of U.S. brown grain over a three-year period—the largest agricultural commodities transaction ever made between two nations.

During the first year of the agreement, beginning Aug. 1, the Soviet Union will purchase at least $200 million of U.S. grain—a mix of wheat, corn, sorghum, rye, barley and oats at the option of the Russians.

Presidential Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler said President

Nixon was pleased to announce the agreement which he said will give financial help to American grain farmers and to others such as longshoremen and shippers.

U.S. private commercial exporters will negotiate sales with the Soviet Union at 6% per cent interest through the Commodity Credit Corporation for repayment in three years from dates of deliveries. Total amount of credit outstanding is not to exceed $500 million.

Boost For Farmers
"It will provide grain farmers with a boost in income," said Ziegler. "It will also provide jobs for Americans involved in shipping the grain, including longshoremen, seamen, exporters, railroad and barge line workers. It will reduce the cost to taxpayers of storage, handling and other charges associated with maintaining commodity stocks.

"The President also feels that the agreement is a tribute to the immense productivity of America's farmers which makes possible export sales of this magnitude."

"Finally, in terms of foreign policy the President considers

Believe Red Forces Preparing For Big Push Before Election

WASHINGTON (AP)—Top Defense officials believe the North Vietnamese army, though battered and bled in its spring offensive, will make one more effort to score a big victory before the U.S. presidential election.

That is why there is a restrained tone to their public assessments of the battlefield situation in Vietnam, where the South Vietnamese Army is doing much better than many officials expected.

Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird told a news conference last week that "thus far, the South Vietnamese have been performing well." But Laird cautioned that the North Vietnamese "have the capability... perhaps to be successful in one other spectacular."

Asked what Laird meant, other Pentagon officials said the secretary is concerned that the North Vietnamese may mount another strong series of attacks in September and October, with perhaps a fresh shot at taking the old Imperial capital of Hue.

A similar thread of caution ran through judgments made by Adm. Thomas H. Moorer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, in an interview.

Moorer said the South Vietnamese army has been "putting on a pretty solid performance" in the 14-week-old enemy offensive and showing itself to be "more and more offensive minded."

But the nation's top military chief said "I don't want to create a feeling of euphoria."

"The North Vietnamese can probably mount a very heavy attack, if they choose to do so," Moorer said.

"I don't think they could seize Hue," Moorer said, in voicing doubts that the North Vietnamese could carry on in the future operations on the scale that marked the early stages of their push which began March 30.

While the enemy can replace rank-and-file soldiers with "fillers from training bases" in North Vietnam, Moorer said, leadership losses are difficult to make up.

Careful Scrutiny Needed On Proposed Water Rate Hikes

Having just been socked with a very substantial increase in sewer charges on his water bill, it now looks like Mr. Average Jacksonville citizen must brace himself for the shock of a big boost in water rates.

If the recommendations of the water committee are accepted by the City Council the new cost for the monthly usage of 5,400 gallons, and most people use at least that much, would be up $1.45, an increase of over 28 percent.

The proposed rates are designed to up the revenue of the Water Department by $171,000 a year.

There is serious question as to the necessity for a rate increase of this magnitude in view of the department's long history of operating in the black. The Superintendent of Utilities himself has expressed the view that no increase in water rates is justified at this time.

In our opinion the Council would be well advised to think twice, perhaps even more than that, before adopting this higher schedule of water rates.

Ample time should be afforded for careful analysis of the proposals and of alternatives. Our water rates are now considerably higher than Springfield and other comparable communities.

It is true that economies could and should be made in the operation of the water system. Surely the great loss of water could be reduced. Better metering and billing should produce greater revenue.

It has been reported that the water department would have shown a deficit last year of $11,000 if its expenses had included $17,500 paid from other sources on general obligation bonds originally issued to finance the pipe line to the Illinois river. Those bonds, however, will be finally retired after two more years and the department will then be relieved of such charges.

We all want a plentiful supply of good water and we all want to meet environmental protection standards. By the same token every citizen has a right to expect that charges will be held to reasonable levels and spread fairly.

Presidential News Meet Shrivels From Lack Of Use

By NORMAN KEMPSTER
SAN CLEMENTE, Calif.
CUPID: Backstairs at the White House

President Nixon's two news conferences in the last two weeks doubled the total for the year—from two to four. But despite the sudden burst of activity, the presidential press conference has shriveled from lack of use.

The President clearly dislikes news conferences although he usually comes off very well in them, creating a generally favorable impression of himself and his policies.

John D. Ehrlichman, Nixon's top domestic affairs adviser, recently described to a television interviewer the President's attitude on the subject.

"Well, he doesn't get very good questions at press conferences, frankly," Ehrlichman said. "He goes in there for half an hour and gets a lot of flabby and fairly dumb questions and it doesn't really elucidate very much."

Questions Wide of Mark
There is little doubt that many of the questions asked in a presidential news conference—especially in the full-dress kind that is carried live on television—are wide of the mark.

One reason for this flabbiness, however, is the infrequency with which news conferences are held. When three months elapse between news conferences, there is just too much ground to cover. Questions tend to become so general that they lose relevance. If the President met reporters weekly or once every two weeks, questions probably would be sharper and more specific.

White House spokesmen have said repeatedly that Nixon has a number of ways of communicating with the public besides the news conference. They cite televised speeches, messages to Congress, speeches to live audiences and occasional one-on-one interviews.

Asked to State Feeling
At his most recent news conference, June 29, Nixon was asked to state his feeling about news conferences, especially those that are televised live.

"It is not that I am afraid to do it," he said. "I have to determine the best way of communication...I have to use the press conference...when I believe that that is the best way to communicate or inform the people."

But the purpose of the news conference is not simply to serve the public. It also serves as a forum for posing questions to the President about administration policy.

The parliamentary question period in use in Great Britain and Canada is superior to the news conference. It permits the leaders of the opposition party to question the leaders of the government and the questioning can be sharp.

But there is no such tradition in the United States.

It's An Ill Wind--!

Japan Fears New U.S. Trade Curbs

By BRUCE BIOSSAT
WASHINGTON (NEA) — The Japanese government is deeply worried over the continuing huge trade imbalance between itself and the United States. It fears new U.S. trade restrictions may come soon if ways are not found to narrow the gap.

A high Japanese official told me that most hope is placed in the idea of increasing Japan's imports from America, since that country's exports to us have remained high despite substantial changes in the currency exchange rate and consequent price increases.

Amicable negotiations with U.S. officials go on steadily, but nothing has yet been worked out. The Japanese are even considering buying more American raw materials than they presently need and stockpiling them here against future use.

The Japanese government is said to feel that wider "home front" consumption of U.S. products is a necessary step, but it is concerned at what it believes will be the inevitable slowness of such a move.

Though Japan has made progress in lowering tariff barriers, some still remain. And their reduction or removal is tightly entangled in internal Japanese politics.

The intensity of Japan's fears is related directly to official conviction that President Nixon may feel compelled to move before the fall election to try to squeeze down the embarrassing U.S. world trade deficit.

Yet, while it is afraid the United States will drop the other shoe, Tokyo does not think any new American restrictions would have the harsh, almost hostile sounds it ascribed to our stiff trade curbs imposed in 1971.

The Japanese believe they have strong proofs of an understanding of our trade difficulties, and of a willingness to cooperate in solving them.

They think they gained basic points with us when they sided with our representatives last October in the effort to keep Taiwan (the Republic of China) in the United Nations. They also think that U.S.-Japanese relations were improved by their gulping down tough restrictions on textile imports here, and accepting sharp upward revaluation of their currency.

What shows through in all this is the same unshakable element I found in my visit to Japan last fall: The Japanese devoutly feel that their links to the United States—and to other nations in the free western world—are truly their lifeline. It never occurs to responsible Japanese officials to take any course which would imperil that indispensable connection.

This does not mean Japan is not looking about with a fresh eye. High circles suggest that not too long after a new government replaces Prime Minister Sato this July, Japan's own overtures to mainland China may be expected.

Possibly more important still, the Japanese currently are involved in negotiations with the Soviet Union over a proposed collaborative undertaking to construct an incredible oil pipeline from western Siberia to Russia's Pacific port of Vladivostok. The distance to be covered is nearly 5,000 miles.

If the deal is made, Japan would supply materials and credit. It would be a real ice-breaker in the long chilly Tokyo-Moscow relationship. But, say key Japanese authorities, it would not in any way alter Japan's fundamental reliance upon the United States.

Asks One More Airing Of Phone Operators' Gripes

Dear Ann Landers: You've been good about giving a lift to what is probably the most abused segment of society in America's working force. I refer to telephone operators. Will you print just one more letter, please?

We are all aware that on legal holidays such as Christmas, Labor Day and the Fourth of July all business establishments are closed. On other special days such as St. Patrick's Day, Ash Wednesday, and St. Valentine's Day most businesses carry on, as usual. What bugs me is when people call up and ask, "Are you open today?" On March 17 I had no less than 109 such idiotic phone calls. Finally I lost my temper and yelled, "Of course, we're open you nut, or I wouldn't be answering this phone!"

Then there's the dim-wit who wants to speak to Mr. Bigwheel and when the operator says "He's on another call" he'll ask, "Will he be long?" How in the world do I know? If I say, "I think he'll be on this call a while" the person becomes irritated because he figures I don't want to put him through. If I say, "I think it will be a brief call—please wait," he gets mad if he has to wait more than 15 seconds and he is sure I gave him a bum steer. I guess what I'm trying to say is, "Ann, you can't win." — Sign me — Centipede in Center City

Dear Cent: I hope you'll excuse me if I seem stupid, but I think it makes sense to phone and ask, "Are you open today?" Some business establishments close at noon on certain holidays which are not considered "legal."

As for your other gripes, I agree, they are valid, but unfortunately, I can think of no quick cure for super-sensitive or slightly paranoid personalities.

Dear Ann Landers: A belated thanks from a Corpus Christi, Texas reader for printing that letter about the woman who kept an iguana in the bathtub. My only regret is that you didn't print a letter like it ten years ago.

I've been running a free hotel and dining room, complete with maid service, for a pack of free-loading relatives who have the unmitigated gall to bring their friends to our home for vacations. I finally began to question my sanity when my cousin demonstrated his gratitude for my hospitality by falling asleep with a lighted cigarette in his hand. Luckily I smelled the smoke and put out the fire before he burned the house down. The only damage was a charred mattress. Instead of apologizing and offering to replace the mattress he wanted to know why I would have such a cheap, flammable thing in the house.

That incident brought me to my senses. When I asked my husband why my relatives take advantage of me so shamelessly, he replied, "Because you allow it." His answer stopped me dead in my tracks. Of course he was right. Why don't you perform a national service and pass on those words of wisdom to your readers? And, by the way, Ann, please tell me where I can buy an iguana? — Fed Up With Sponges

Dear Fed: Those "words of wisdom" have appeared in this column so often you can put them to music and dance to them. I have been telling people for 17 years that no one can impose on a person who refuses to allow it. It takes two to play that kind of game. If you heed this advice, you won't need an iguana.

Confidential To Belting On You: Sorry, you lose. I cannot listen to "all those four letter words" in mixed company without feeling uncomfortable. True this work has acquainted me with all of them (I knew a few before) but I didn't grow up with such language and I confess it bothers me.

A no-nonsense approach to how to deal with life's most difficult and most rewarding arrangement. Ann Landers' booklet, "Marriage — What To Expect," will prepare you for better or for worse. Send your request to Ann Landers in care of your newspaper enclosing 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

The Pakistan-India Pact

If the agreement just reached between the leaders of India and Pakistan can be made to stick, an era of peace and perhaps of even a measure of co-operation will have dawned on the sub-continent. The pact signed by Prime Minister Indira Gandhi and President Zulfikar Ali Bhutto does not merely bring to a formal end the December war out of which an independent Bangladesh emerged; it also pledges mutual renunciation of the use of force in settling future disputes.

Scrupulous adherence to this provision could bring a marked improvement in the relations between the two countries, which have been marred for many years by recurrent outbreaks of border violence and even outright war. Genuine efforts to reach agreement on issues through compromise of divergent interests, rather than through combat, might make the crucial difference.

Excessive optimism is not warranted, obviously. Though Pakistani and Indian armed forces are to withdraw from border territories occupied since December, troops in Jammu and Kashmir will merely be held at a standstill. Moreover, the broader Kashmir issue which has poisoned relations between India and Pakistan for a quarter of a century was not dealt with. The key issue of repatriation of prisoners of war also remains unsettled. These matters are to be taken up in later negotiations.

Thus it can only be said that a start has been made; much remains to be settled. Still, the situation is much improved. Under terms of the treaty, there will shortly be a resumption of overflights by aircraft, communication by land and sea, and diplomatic relations. The stage is being set for further talks in a spirit of amity. If that spirit can be maintained, there is reason to hope for resolution of some of the differences that remain. Then the two governments will be able to devote less energy to their disputes, and more to dealing with the enormous domestic problems faced by both of them.

SAG Hopes To Put Whammy On Rerun

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — Anybody who has a TV set knows that the rerun season keeps getting longer every year. What used to be called "summer reruns" now start showing up off the schedule in the spring and last into fall.

This makes life pretty dull for viewers and it is economically disastrous for actors. The Screen Actors Guild is currently considering what can be done about it.

Kathy Nolan, who has been on the SAG board for several years, puts on her best union manner when she talks about the problem.

"They are polluting the air waves," she says. "The public only gets about five months of new shows a year. And, for us actors, it's terrible. It means our working season on TV is only five months long."

She says SAG is considering taking two steps, or, to be more precise about it, holding out for two changes in their contract with the producers during the next contract negotiations.

First would be to demand as much money for residuals on reruns that it would no longer be economically feasible for the networks to use reruns.

They would price their rerun services so high that it would be cheaper to make new shows. That, at least, is the idea.

Second would be to attempt to force a clause forbidding a show to be rerun within a year of its original airing.

Again, this would mean fewer reruns, a consummation devoutly to be wished.

Kathy's old series, The Real McCoys, is still being rerun but, of course, she has long since run out of her residual payments. She has done two other series — Jamie, in New York, when she was very young, and Broadside after The Real McCoys.

And she has a new one in the wings — Wednesday Night Out, the pilot of which was shown not too long ago. She says she has been told that it may be a midseason replacement but it would be different from what we saw on the air.

The pilot was full of characters — too many. But, as it is now being considered, it would star only Kathy and Jim Hutton. The others would be brought in sporadically.

Meanwhile, she has just finished a movie, "Limbo," directed by Mark Robson, which is a very topical film. It's the story of a woman whose husband is a POW and it is based on the real stories of several such women.

Kathy says it's an antiwar film and many feel very strongly anti-war. Apparently the Defense Department did, because they first gave permission to shoot at Homestead Air Force Base in Florida and then, at the last minute, reversed themselves and refused that permission.

Then, too, they were all set to film at a bank in Florida when they were told they couldn't. Kathy says nobody could understand why a bank would deny them filming rights until somebody found out who owned the bank — it was Bebe Rebozo, President Nixon's great buddy.

For her part in "Limbo," she auditioned for director Robson who told her she was too young and too thin. But she insisted on reading for him and gave such a smashing reading that he said she could have the part — if she could gain some weight. Could she pick up, say 25 pounds?

"I'll do it by Thursday," Kathy said.

She didn't do it by Thursday, but by the time the cameras rolled, she had put on 30 pounds — the 25 pounds Robson wanted and five more to be on the safe side.

Blacks Want More Say

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — The name of the picture is "Trouble Man" and there's trouble behind the camera, too.

It's one of the sudden rash of black movies but this isn't another quickie designed to exploit the black market. This one has pretensions of quality and they may be forthcoming.

But the trouble with "Trouble Man" is, apparently, one of philosophical approach between the white men who wrote it and the black men who are directing it and mostly acting in it.

They don't come right out and talk about it but it's easy to see the difficulties are there. "Trouble Man" was written by John D. F. Black and he's the executive producer, with Joel Freeman the producer of record. They assembled a crew which is largely black and got Ivan Dixon to direct; it is his first feature film.

There are blacks in key positions on the technical crew and even black girls as hairdresser and make-up woman. And there is a black publicist. And the cast is almost entirely black, headed by the distinguished actors, Robert Hooks and Paul Winfield.

It's a private eye story, with Hooks a man called, simply, T. But he isn't a copy of Shaft. Hooks says he's playing a man who is more real than Shaft.

And it is in the realm of reality that the blacks differ with the whites on the film. They objected to the script's characterization of a black girl in derogatory terms, which intimidated that every black girl was cheap. They objected to some of the language used.

"I wanted to change one word," Hooks says. "The script had me saying 'Dig?,' at the end of a sentence. We shot it without that word. They made me come back and shoot it."

Dixon, who used to be one of Hogan's Heroes, has quit acting entirely. He's gained 40 pounds and a beard since his days with Bob Crane & Co. He's directed 16 TV shows (Bill Cosby, Room 222, Nichols, mostly) and this is his first feature.

"It isn't the kind of film I really wanted to do," he says, "but it's a start. I had eight scripts offered to me, but six were cheapies and one was 'Blacula' which is ridiculous and this was the eighth. I'd really like to make a picture which has more to say — and I will."

over." Dixon says he believes the only way there will be "good black films which honestly reflect black life" will be if there are films made by black producers.

"Not necessarily written by blacks," he says. "It can be written by whites who've done their homework. That was the case with 'Nothing But a Man,' the film I think was the best I did as an actor. It was written by two white men who had spent four months living with black families in Alabama."

He says there were even problems on that one, however. He was playing a black workingman, and he felt he should wear a mustache, since eight out of 10 blacks do have mustaches, he says.

"I had to fight to get to wear the mustache," he says.

The implication is that on "Trouble Man" the same situation prevails — the blacks, from the director through the cast to the crew, offer suggestions to make the film look more real, more authentic. And the suggestions are not taken by the white producers.

Despite all that, Dixon and Hooks and the rest are still enthusiastic. Basically, they like the script and feel it is generally honest. But they think it could be made more true to life.

'Man Of La Mancha' Has Some Problems

By DICK KLEINER

TARQUINIA, Italy (NEA) — You drive north and west of Rome, along the sea, past the old seaport of Civitavecchia and then turn inland at Tarquinia. You follow the signs which say "L'Uomo Della Mancha" and they take you along old Etruscan walls and down rutted roads and finally up into the hills.

And there they are shooting one of the big pictures of '72, "The Man of La Mancha," with Peter O'Toole, Sophia Loren and James Coco. Arthur Hiller is the director. He's bearded now and he comes over with a big smile.

It until Hiller explains why the company elected to shoot the film in Italy rather than in Spain.

"We needed a stage big enough for the castle and prison sets," he says, "and Rome is the only place in Europe with one that big. Of course, the countryside here isn't quite right, as you've probably noticed. It's too green. We had to burn these fields to get them brown enough for us."

And that's what's wrong. All along the road from Rome, there have been green fields. Here they are brown and parched. But it fits the mood of the piece. As O'Toole and Coco come riding along, it suddenly looks right.

O'Toole is mounted on a used white horse and Coco, as Sancho Panza, is astride a moth-eaten donkey. They trot toward the camera, singing at the top of their lungs. But O'Toole's steed, weary-looking though he is, begins acting up.

"That always seems to happen at this time of day," Hiller says, "and nobody seems to know why."

They wanted a funny-looking, skinny horse. Hiller says the Italians shrugged and said there were no funny-looking, skinny horses in Italy. So they brought one in from Yugoslavia. He's sway-backed, one ear is bent down, his jaw is lopsided.

Hiller says that once the horse got to Italy, however, he had a miraculous recovery. He filled out and even his bent ear perked up — "now we have to stick it down with Scotch tape."

Both O'Toole and Sophia Loren have done all their own singing. Hiller and associate producer Saul Chaplin both say they were amazed at how good the two stars sang. They say they may elect to dub in O'Toole's big number — "The Impossible Dream" — to give it a bigger quality, but even that is doubtful and they may stick with Peter's own voice.

"There is a precedent for dubbing only one song," Chaplin says. "In 'West Side Story,' Rita Moreno sang one song but we dubbed in another."

When Hiller was first signed to produce and direct "The Man of La Mancha," he says he got scared and began reading everything he could on Cervantes and Don Quixote. "Then I realized I wasn't doing a documentary," he says, "just an entertainment."

O'Toole's make-up, as Quixote, is remarkable — gray hair, beard and long mustache — heavy gray eyebrows, a long nose and a longer, leaner face. His make-up man, Charles Parker, does it every day — and he says it takes 45 minutes while O'Toole says it takes two hours.

"I'm a great admirer of El Greco," Parker says, "and tried to get that quality in the make-up."

City Of The Future Has Arizona Home

By LYNN SHERR
Associated Press Writer
ARCOSANTI, Ariz. (AP) — This city of the future perches high on an ancient desert mesa, the vision of a Mediterranean craftsman, the work of young American hands.

It's being built amid a landscape that calls for cowboys and Indians, with structures that speak of science-fiction, by young construction workers who look more like campus peace marchers. What's more, many of them are paying to do the work.

What inspires a long-hair to don a hard hat and spend six weeks in the middle of the desert, pouring concrete or shoveling gravel beneath a blistering sun?

The answer is Paolo Soleri, the imaginative Italian-born architect whose designs for future urban living have inspired an army of young optimists.

The elfin-sized Soleri, a former student of Frank Lloyd Wright, calls his cities "arcologies"—from architecture and ecology—because he believes human planning must include environmental factors. From his office in Scottsdale, called the Cosanti Foundation, Soleri has designed a number of arcologies—huge beehive-like piles of buildings and roadways which are actually self-contained urban living units.

By building up, not out, Soleri hopes to counter wasteful and unplanned urban sprawl.

Arcosanti is a small-scale arcology, designed to house and contain some 3,000 persons in a 30-story structure of apartments, offices and living spaces about 400 feet wide. After a model exhibit of Arcosanti traveled to several American cities two years ago, ground was broken and foundations laid.

Today, many cement bags later, it's being built—by a small, sparsely-paid staff, but mostly by students who pay $270 plus $11 a week for food to participate in a six-week construction workshop, 70 miles north of Phoenix.

With a wry smile, Soleri calls it "a crash course in sweating."

The young workers, who come from all over the country, don't mind the sweat.

"It's the beginning of a new world, hopefully. Something a little better than we've got," explained John Van Ness, 21, a student of New College in Sarasota, Fla. Learning to work the crane, he wore a handful of silencers and copper rings, a turquoise ring in one pierced ear, and a long brown ponytail that stuck out of his hard hat.

Thus far, a 34-foot-high vault of pre-cast concrete at the edge of a cactus-studded mesa is the only finished evidence of the future urban center. A tiny fraction of the proposed project, it is flanked by excavations and scaffolding for a number of other buildings: Ceramic and metal foundries, where the famous Soleri windbells, now made at Cosanti, will be cast; a restaurant; housing spaces.

Down the dusty road from the mesa, next to the dried-up bed of the Agua Fria River, a colorful camp of cubic, octagonal and domed buildings houses the workers. Most of the 20 staff members live singly in each eight-foot-square cube, a snug dwelling box with a wood plank bed and huge circle windows.

Many of the students—around twenty in each workshop, coming from February through early fall—bunk in Plywood City, a rectangular dormitory.

At 5 each morning—later during winter—a bronze bell is rung as reveille. Work begins at 5:30 up on the mesa, with a 7:30 break for breakfast—eggs, pancakes or homemade granola. Then they go back to their tasks until 11:30, when the bell clangs again for lunch. After an hour, it's back to the mesa or the kitchen for dishwashing chores. Work stops at 2:30, when the sun is very hot—up to 110 degrees in August.

Then the line forms for showers, followed by naps, beer at the local bar two miles away, or hikes to nearby Indian sites. Dinner comes at 5:30 or 6, and after a 7½-hour work day, almost everyone is in the sleeping bag by 9—or at least asked to curb the noise.

Once a week, Soleri drives to Arcosanti from his Scottsdale home and office, sometimes spending the night there in his white Volkswagen microbus. Often he'll take the students to an adjoining mesa to watch the sunrise, perching himself on a rock in his uniform of shorts, sleeveless undershirt and tennis shoes.

He usually remains somewhat aloof, reported one student, as the others gather around him to ask questions.

After the session, he speaks casually with anyone who approaches. Often as not, he'll pick up a shovel to help dig a ditch.

Everyone works at Arcosanti. No member of the project will venture an estimate of a

"I've learned about getting completion date. You can't along with people," she said. "I put a time period on it. It's had been so introverted, found it difficult to mix. Now I'm opening up and finding out how function as an individual."

Helen Boyer, 19, an art history major from Stanford who is getting school credit for her workshop, said, "I've learned that there's no particular mystery to a lot of things typically thought of as male jobs or jobs that you need skills for—like concrete work or building a septic tank," she said.

Alan Dickinson, 23, was getting $3.50 an hour to be a carpenter in Boston, but he paid to come, too. "At the present time, money is not one of my major worries," he said, stroking his curly beard and shaking his long brown pigtail.

"I believe that what Paolo is doing is very important. It's a good answer to a lot of important questions."

For Soleri, who is always referred to by his first name, it's an ideal arrangement, since he can't get funding for the project to pay professionals.

Student tuitions cover about 85 per cent of the materials. The rest either are purchased with money from Cosanti—profits from the bells or other Soleri products—or from Soleri's personal savings.

Anyway, says Soleri of his student workers, "It's important for individuals to participate in building the environment they are going to use. It's a fraud to say people should be involved and then not let them work at it."

"They need access to information and knowledge, so that when they get in they know what they're getting into, so they have pride. That's the participatory kind of process—but it doesn't mean that I have the illusion that 50,000 people are going to design it."

Far from it, Soleri firmly insists that the idea for Arcosanti is his own, that "I'm trying to autocritically make the decision about the main structure. I'm not very gentle."

PH. 243-2321

In South Dakota, He's Still 'Ole George'

(First of Two Related Articles.)

By TOM TIEDE

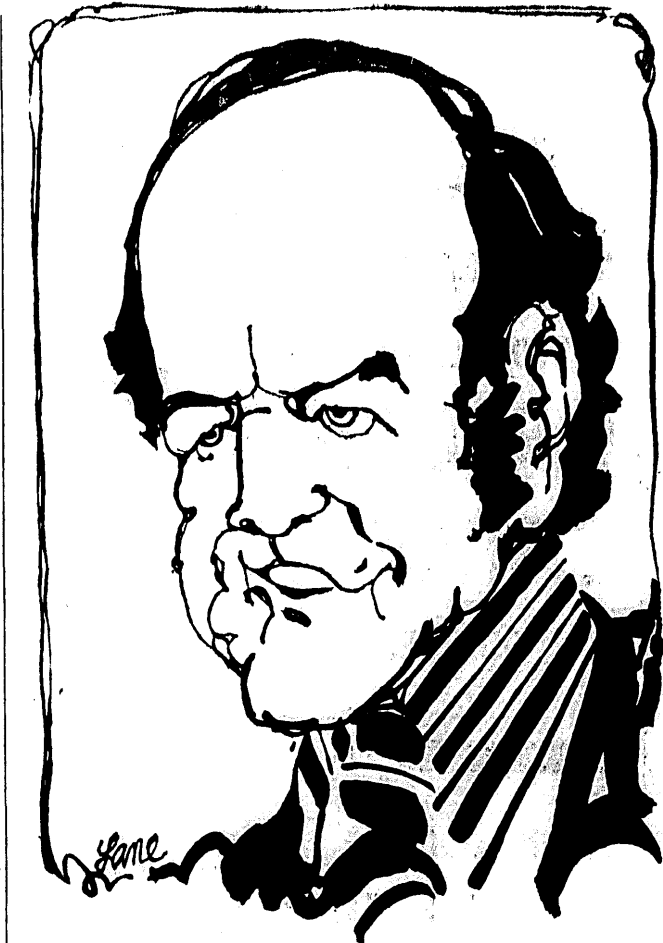

MITCHELL, S. D. (NEA) — Sen. George McGovern may be, as Robert Kennedy suggested, the most decent man in government. He may be, as his employees insist, a kind of political second coming. He may even be, if the hopes of millions of American voters are justified, the next (38th) president of the United States. But here in Mitchell, the man's hometown, George McGovern is still just George McGovern, "ole George," nice fella, a little big for his britches maybe, but, well, "Say, that looks like a thunderhead don't it? — my, oh my, it's been a wet spring here."

The 14,000 residents of this comfortable community on the eastern edge of South Dakota's ocean of prairie are not given to hero worship. They are plain and laboring folks. "Giants in the Earth" as author Ole Rolvaag called them, people who tend their lawns and churches with equal dedication, men and women who even if they want to loaf will get up for an early start. There's just no time for star-gazing.

Not that South Dakotans have had many stars to gaze at. Home-grown luminaries have always been a premium. There were some famed early Indians like Chief Crazy Horse. Former Gov. Joe Foss was a distinguished World War II air hero. And Mitchell's own Joe Robbie is now the owner of the pro football Miami Dolphins — "Or is it the Sharks?" asks a local. "I never get the nicknames straight."

So maybe this is it: Maybe George McGovern isn't heroized here, because, as a woman feeding her chickens puts it, "We haven't had much practice at heroizing."

In any event, Ole George, nice fella, is just another potato in this town's patch. There are not many suggestions in Mitchell, as there are elsewhere in the nation, that the junior senator from South Dakota is headed for sainthood. There is a small highway sign announcing this as "The Home of Sen. George McGovern," but there is also a sign announcing it as the home of Ordell Braase (a one time Baltimore Colts line-backer). McGovern's small office next to the Woolworth building remains quiet and decidedly uncrowded; his $7.65 biography is not for sale on the main street; and the only political announcements on auto bumpers are "America — Love It or Leave It."

In mostly Republican, mostly conservative South Dakota, the liberal — radical Democratic frontrunner is liked, but not loved. "McGovern?" says Gus Swanson, 83, a veteran of World War I. "I think he's all right. I mean he's done good by himself. But he shoots his mouth off too much. I don't think a public official ought to go around criticizing the government the way he does. And I don't like all this anti-war stuff. It aids the enemy, is all. If you ask me, I think George has killed more people over there in Vietnam than everybody else put together."

Still, even in this lukewarm atmosphere, even without the hoorays and hoopla, there is in Mitchell and throughout the state fair respect for the 49-year-old onetime preacher, professor and insurance salesman. "I mean he's done good for himself" is another way of saying "wow." As a leftist peacenik he may be, as the Democratic county chairman here says, "Like Jesus in Jerusalem," but even his political enemies admit their awe. Says one GOP leader, "When ole George was a kid he was so poor he went plan. And very poor. The farm barely broke even. Now he's become one of the most respected and admired men in the country. There were the days, Gaud Almighty, who would have ever thought it possible?"

Who indeed? Apparently not McGovern as a lad, as he was common as chickweed. Born in Avon, S.D., (current pop. 600) McGovern was one of four children of a respected but somewhat itinerant fundamentalist minister. As such, he was not only poor, but giggled at. The family religion, Wesleyan Methodist, was those days hinted as the Holy Rollers. Services were highly emotional. Amens. Hallelujahs. Screams and faintings. McGovern was raised on the proposition that to blaspheme was to risk eternal damnation. Mrs. Grace Kielbach, 79, lived across the street from the McGoverns then and recalls: "I won't say anything about the religion. It's changed now. George himself was a good boy, I think, but very plain. I remember him riding around in a wagon. I don't know if it was his. I don't know if they owned a wagon. Oh. Yes. He was very plain."

McGovern took to the books. He was not a brilliant student, but a plodding one. He remembers, in his biography, reading all night until the first light of dawn and then worrying about being sleepy during church service. "I know George was kind of bookish, all right," says Kenny Jones, a high school classmate. "He didn't date much. He didn't play sports. He didn't have many friends as I recall. But, hell, that's the way most of us were then. It was tough then. We didn't have time to goof off like the kids today. My old man deserted me when I was 11. I had to work since I was a kid to help support the family. I suppose George did the same."

The one McGovern attempt at whimsy was debating. Despite a generally shy nature, he became one of the best, if not the best, in the state. And even then, says Bob McCordle, now superintendent of Mitchell schools, "George was kind of a do-gooder." In college (Dakota Wesleyan) he won a statewide competition with an argument entitled And I can tell you he is still "My Brother's Keeper." The the finest fella South Dakota has ever known.

And so, There'll be no public adoration of George McGovern, ole George, nice fella, "but a hit on the flighty side isn't he?" At least not right now. No Flying Cross for saving a badly battered plane. And returned home thoroughly disgusted with death and destruction. "I remember one night after the war," says Phyllis Steichen, McGovern's sister — in — law, "George and my dad were sitting around talking. George was holding his first baby. My dad said something about the war and said that every generation had to go through it. George replied that, oh no, the next generation wouldn't, not if he had anything to do with it. I remember that very well. George hasn't changed much in all these years."

To be sure, George McGovern has not changed much. At least not to his supporters. His jet campaigns today are a far cry from his political beginnings (he started as the chairman of his state's party when there were only two Democrats in the 110-man South Dakota legislature; then became the state's first Democratic member of the U.S. Congress in 26 years). His $115,000 Washington home is light years east of the creaky "boyhood" house which has recently been refurbished in Avon. And he has strayed so far from the state's customary political sentiments that an American Legion post has tried to impeach him. "But his concern for people," says Mitchell plumber Don Swanson, "is the same as ever. Man, I've eaten plenty of beans with this guy."

Country Club Ladies Day Golf News

The big 4th of July weekend is now history and the Ladies Handicap Tournament is under way.

On the 4th of July at 3 p.m. 10 women teed off on No. 10 tee for the annual 10 women elimination tournament. The 10 women were: Betty Brown, Jeanne Rammelkamp, Dolores Floreth, Mildred Pinson, Donna Roehrs, Gratia Coultas, Helen Little, Edith Elliott, Roberta Kraushaar and Fran Chumley.

This tournament is played where one person is eliminated at each hole until one ends up on the 18th hole, victor. If ties occur, a short chipping contest is held and the one closest to the pin stays in. There was quite a gallery following and the pressure on the players was pretty great. But a lot of fun despite the pressure was had by all.

There were some mighty fine golf shots executed by these women, but the two that stayed in all the way were Dolores Floreth and Helen Little. The winner had to be decided by chipping to the green and Helen Little is the Champ for 1972.

The handicap tournament has been under way for a week now and I am not going to try and list them each week. I'll print the finals as they come up. Good Luck to all still hanging in there. The 2nd round of the tournament must be played by the 15th of July.

Wednesday, July 12th will be a "Criers tourney". 18 holers revert 2 holes back to par and 9 holers, one hole back to par. These will be your two worst holes.

Post scores AS PLAYED, the chairman will do the rest. It will be a low net event.

The pairings are as follows: Lillian Bunch, Fran Chumley, Mary E. Glisson; Leona Bailis, Irma Carbone, Gert Hohmann. Betty Brown, Marge Howard; Gratia Coultas, Ellen Gross; Betty Krushas; Helen Little; Maureen Zachary, Pat Wahl; Rigi Fay, Dolores Floreth, Mildred Pinson; Trudy Walker, Edith Elliott, Jeanne Rammelkamp; Verna Duerwer, Sally Harris, Donna Roehrs.

Marion Doyle, Sally Moss, Sarah Warner; Dorothy Busche, Emma Grant, Maxine Cumby; Betty Price, Marge Hamilton, Nicki Murphy.

9 holers: Marge Walker, Wilma Jackson, Vivian Casler; Betty Dawdy, Roberta Kraushaar, Dorothy Floreth; Ruth Wilson, Vera Sue Schneider, Margaret Bellatti.

Ruth Wade, Jo Caldwell; Ruth Linebaugh, Catherine Rice, Greta Snow.

Judy Grojean, Margaret Hill, Dorothy Ware; Bev Blue, Joyce Steagall, Jeanne Newman; Helen Colvin, Jean Mathew, Helen Foote; LaDora Ruby, Carolyn Colton, Evelyn Gonzales, Enid Magnan.

The winners for last Wednesday are as follows:

18 holers: Mildred Pinson, net 74; Betty Price, net 76.

9 holers: Ruth Wilson, net 34; Carolyn Colton, net 44.

Low Putts: Marge Howard, 29; Nicki Murphy, 29; Ruth Wilson, 17; Betty Dawdy, 17; Vivian Casler, 17.

There were no chip in's, but three birdies, Mildred Pinson on No. 11, Betty Brown on No. 7, and Vivian Casler on No. 16.

Sign up sheet for the "Best Ball Threesome" event to be July 25th will be posted plus sign up for the Championship Tournament. Aug. 1st and 2nd. Check the bulletin board.

Speaking of signing up, there will be a "Baby Sweepstakes" (two men and one woman), July 18th. You can sign up on the door of the Pro Shop. LET'S SIGN UP. I just can't understand why the ladies won't participate in these activities. They are fun events. When Pete has to make phone call after phone call and practically beg people to play in an event, it's a darn shame. Enter these activities, they were planned for your entertainment, so get with it and enter. Sign up now.

Now for the rule of the Week: On the green, if your ball strikes an unattended flagstick you incur a penalty of loss of hole in match play or two strokes in stroke play. In match play if your ball hits the pin that is laying on the green, you lose the hole. In stroke play, you have to take a two stroke penalty and you must play the ball as it lies.

Just for the record, (not on ladies day) but Sarah Warner had a record 26 putts for 18 holes. If we ask her nice like, maybe she will give us some lessons.

See you there, Fran Chumley

YOUR BIRTHDAY AND HOROSCOPE

SUNDAY, JULY 9 — Born today, you possess a quality of nature that makes it difficult for you to know yourself — much less for others to know you. On the one hand, you are highly philosophical, able to take things as they come and, generally, to find some good even in the most ill of circumstances. On the other hand, you are extremely critical of yourself and everything and everyone about you, so that it is very difficult for you to take your own philosophical advice and to accept things as they are. Fond of all things beautiful, you are continuously disappointed by the ugliness you find in the world at large. Still, your ability to find beauty in the most mundane of things, to see grace and distinction in much that others find merely ungainly and plain, makes it possible for you to indulge your sense of beauty and satisfy your urge for harmony when and where those others never could. You women, of course, will fulfill much of your yearning for beauty through your homes. One who can take criticism as well as disperse with it, you find it hard to grant to others the kinds of dispensation where work and results of work are concerned that you would not grant yourself. As a leader, you demand excellence from followers; as a co-worker, you demand that others share absolutely with you whatever is required to make a success of whatever project is at hand. To find what is in store for you tomorrow, select your birthday and read the corresponding paragraph. Let your birthday star be your daily guide.

DAVID POLING

What Young Folks Are Thinking Of

David Poling

By REV. DAVID POLING
Polls, questionnaires and reader sampling is always a revealing assignment, especially when it covers a national audience. Youth Magazine conducts such surveys of its readership from time to time and the June issue has put this question to its subscribers: What worries you most about the future and why?

In answering this question, Ronnie Luedke of Waco, Tex., admitted that "people worry me most. When we are going to learn from our past mistakes and plan intelligently for the future? And when is everyone going to come to his senses and quit fighting and work together for a better world?"

World problems dominated the thinking of youth. Said Kim Tyner of Washington, Pa.: "I am most worried about what state the earth is going to be in when I am ready to raise a family. Will there be parks so we can get out in the country, even just for a vacation?"

Next to the perils of war, pollution seemed to be the largest concern of those who responded to the question of future worries. Wrote Mark Wakefield of Annandale, Va.:

"My biggest worry about the future is concerned with the quality of environment we will have. We've already irreparably polluted much of the water, land and air and are continuing on a course that will lead to certain extinction."

War and anxiety over racism saturates the communications received from young people. Lee Roberts, a 17-year-old from Newtown, Conn., put it this way:

"War worries me. America is supposed to be a peaceful place, yet when one stands up and speaks of peace, and is told that she is a Communist and that peace is un-American — what are we coming to? Is war American?"

In the same vein, Jeffrey Braden of Brown Deer, Wis., expressed a future concern that "there will be full-scale war because the nonwhite peoples of the world hate us for what we, white America, have done. This hate has a good foundation. I only hope that the youth of the U.S. will be able to reconcile the problem before it's too late."

Youth Magazine has a very wide reach and might easily be the top journal in the youth field, religious or secular. Sponsored by The United Church of Christ, the United Presbyterian Church, the American Lutheran Church, the Moravian Church and recommended by the Anglican Church in Canada, it is one of the shining examples of what the ecumenical movement can accomplish.

While most of the young people who replied expressed fear over pollution, war and racism, quite a few were in touch with the central themes of the Jesus people, such as the second coming of Christ.

Said Leanne Walters of Vancouver, Wash.:

"I believe that the second coming will be soon and very bad. I'm afraid of living in a Communist nation, of polluting ourselves to death. I worry a lot about becoming money-crazy like some people, but I also worry about being poor."

The urgency of decision was voiced by Kim Stevens of Elkhart, Ind., "that Jesus will come back very soon. I will be glad, but so many of my friends will be left behind. I'm scared that so many people will not come to Jesus in time." Being young is no exemption from the problems of humanity and Youth reveals that some plan to participate before they are 40.

Opening lead—♠ A

We were watching our old friend the unlucky expert play in a team match when he picked up the West hand.

The bidding started out tame-ly but all of a sudden South jumped to four spades and he was faced with a real problem. Should he bid five hearts and risk the probable penalty or should he pass and try to beat four spades?

He decided on the latter course and passed as did North and East. Then he played his ace of clubs and positively beamed when he saw dummy hit the table with one heart and no ace of spades.

At trick two he carefully underled his ace-king-queen of hearts. Led produced the jack and led back a club for our friend to ruff.

He still was sure of the king of trumps and gleefully chalked up 50 points on the plus side.

"Pretty good wasn't it?" he asked. "I would be down at five hearts."

"Brilliant, but probably un-successful," was our comment. We turned out to be right.

The bidding started the same way at the other table but West bid a cheery five hearts over South's four spades. North, caught in the swing of things went right to five spades and West doubled when the bidding got back to him.

West also opened the ace of clubs but did not risk the underlead in hearts and only got five spades one trick, but did score 100 points instead of 50.

LET'S GO BIRDWATCHING

By Emma Mae Leonhard

Birdwatchers' Games
According to reports from Massachusetts Audubon Society there are 796 species of birds in North America. Among them 74 species are hunted. According to some birdwatchers numbers speak interest and satisfaction. A few in the nation have become eligible to join the 600 club. This means that they have, without any question, seen and identified at least 600 species of birds in the United States, including Alaska and Canada. Some birdwatchers keep annual lists, trying to break their own records. Others restrict their counts to their own gardens or immediate area. We respect these goals or games.

On The Street

The 1972 Morgan County Fair completed its four day run last Tuesday. The Journal Courier interviewed people who had been to the fair to determine what they liked and disliked about this year's fair and to get suggestions for improving next year's.

Mel Schnake
Beardstown

"There didn't seem to be anything there. For the middle-aged, there's absolutely nothing. A fairly well known band would draw the younger people."

JoAnne Jackson
Jacksonville

"Most of the fireworks were better. They needed more rides for the young kids."

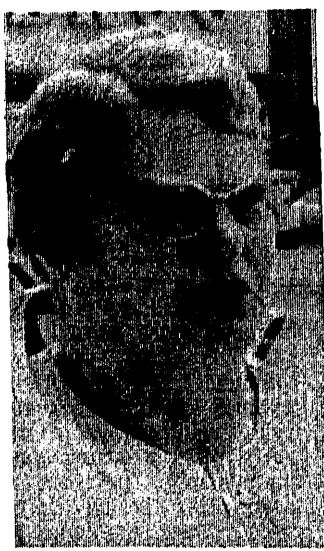

Mrs. Orlin Anderson
Jacksonville

"I'm a little disappointed in it. I would like to see the merchants display more."

Marjorie Hart
Bluffs

"I thought the area where the kids were was nice and clean. We enjoyed the fireworks and thought it was a great idea to end with them."

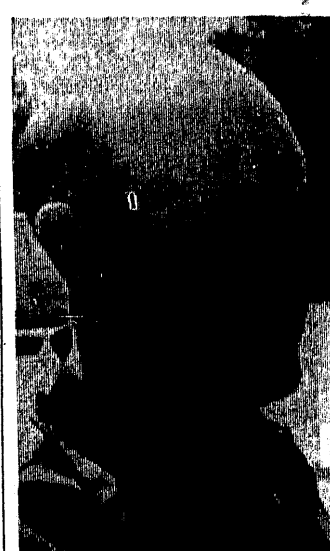

Mrs. Earl Jones
Jacksonville

"It was pretty nice. They did a pretty good job. I liked the textile work and clothing."

Shelba Hoots
Jacksonville

"It was just a carnival. Merchants participated more earlier. I heard older people say they enjoyed the harness racing" (which they used to have).

Dale Wilcox
Waverly

"It was fun, the best I ever saw. We went out to see the fireworks."

Doug Holt
Jacksonville

"I didn't like anything but the motor bike races. They ought to have a few more rides—most of them are old rides."

Bicentennial First Day Cover—PNC

The American Revolution Bicentennial Commission has announced that an official Bicentennial Philatelic-Numismatic Combination issued on the Fourth of July, 1972, is through the co-operation of the U.S. Mint, the U.S. Postal Service and the American Revolution Bicentennial Commission.

The PNC First Day Cover includes the first metal of an annual series of congressionally approved National Commemorative Medals, as well as the 1972 set of Bicentennial Commemorative Stamps on a Philatelic-Numismatic Combination envelope.

The medal, described in an earlier Money Clips column, will be enclosed behind a plastic window in the PNC envelope displaying both sides of the medal. The four stamps affixed to the envelope bear the official U.S. Postal Service First Day of issue cancellation. The Treasury seal will appear on the back just opposite the window for the reverse of the medal.

As illustrated in the artist's conception, the eight-cent Bicentennial Stamps, which will be postmarked from Colonial Williamsburg, Va., will honor craftsmen of the Revolutionary era.

With a July 4 cancellation date, the stamps are of the normal commemorative stamp size and each depicts a specific craftsman—glassmaker, silversmith, wigmaker and hatter. Each of the four eight-cent stamps bears the same inscription, "Colonial American Craftsmen" across the top and "United States Postage 8 Cents" across the bottom.

The medal, for issuance initially on July 4 (and to be made available as a single piece later in 1972) will be made of bronze measuring approximately 1 1/2 inches in diameter. The obverse and reverse designs were more thoroughly described in a previous column. The design was developed by Ralph Menconi and Frank Gasparro, chief engraver for the U.S. Mint in Philadelphia.

The mint will issue a limited number of these First Day covers not to exceed two million.

Orders will be accepted during July only or until the maximum issue has been reached.

FREE PNC ORDER BLANKS

For the convenience of our readers, we asked for and received an ample supply of official order blanks and descriptive literature from the office of the American Revolution Bicentennial Commissions Coins and Medals Panel to be distributed to anyone sending a 9-inch or 10-inch stamped, self-addressed envelope to MONEY CLIPS, c/o MORT REED, P.O. Box 555, Wooster, Ohio, 44691.

A limit of three PNC First Day Covers may be secured with one order blank. No more than two order blanks will be available for each stamped, self-addressed envelope received by this column. You may request more with each additional envelope.

The deadline will be July 20, after which it would be fruitless to attempt to order the PNCs from the Mint since processing will not extend beyond July 31.

Carelessness, Poor Prevention Blamed For Most Fires In U.S.

By PAUL ROBBINS

BOSTON (UPI) — Fires killed 12,200 persons and maimed 330,000 others in the United States last year while causing property losses of $2.8 billion. There were 500,000 house fires in which about 6,600 persons — one-third of them children — died.

The statistics add up to making the United States one of the most fire-prone nations in the world — and authorities blame two major factors: carelessness and inattention to, or ignorance of, proven fire prevention methods.

The saddest factor in the high American toll of lives and property from fires, according to Charles S. Morgan, president of the Boston-based National Fire Protection Association (NFPA), is that "it is really unnecessary."

Howard Tipton, executive director of the National Commission on Fire Prevention and Control, in Washington, cites many factors for the high rate of fires in the United States, among them:

—Law Enforcement Slack —City and state fire codes are often inadequately enforced;

—City fire inspections cover industrial and commercial buildings but may omit residential dwellings, where most fire deaths occur;

—Houses are not required to have early fire-warning detection systems — not even in federally assisted construction;

—Fire departments do not conduct enough prevention and education programs to supplement their fire-fighting efforts;

—No national institution has been established to train firemen the way the National Police Academy trains policemen; —Not enough research has been done on fire-safe construction and on the nature of fire itself, nor has any national information system been set up to facilitate such research.

On the personal level, NFPA's Morgan cites also the traditional American "land of plenty" concept that makes Americans wasteful of their resources.

"We are a profligate country in respect to our resources," he said in an interview. "We have lived for 300 years in an area that appeared to have boundless resources. Cut down a tree and two will grow. Burn down a house and you can build another."

The first secretary of the NFPA, Frank H. Wentworth, described the country's casual approach to fire safety as "a national disease."

Americans are great to express horror and provide sympathy when there is a fire tragedy, Morgan said. In other countries fire victims get sympathy, too, he said, but in the case of a home fire "they also get a speedy visit from a police or fire inspector to determine how much the homeowner was at fault."

Man At Fault

"That idea that a fire is 'an act of God,'" he said, "is for the birds. It's not—it's a human failure."

One problem today, Morgan said, is that home construction often tends to be more open inside and windows are not the larger, traditional kind.

Creston Whitaker resumes his quest to make professional football his immediate profession this week when the former Jacksonville High School athlete reports to the training camp of the New Orleans Saints. Whitaker was activated from the taxi squad for the last two games of last season, and has high hopes of making the varsity this campaign. Whitaker, a wide receiver who graduated from North Texas State as a basketball standout, commented this week, "I am very confident I can make it. I feel I have the ability and I have the confidence this year. It will be tough competition, as they will probably carry only four wide receivers and they have some good veterans. I have become convinced in the past two years that the biggest part of making it in professional sports is having the confidence and thinking you can do the job." According to a pre-season NFL report, the Saints will have Danny Abramowicz, whose 269 receptions over the last five years are more than any other NFL player caught over the same period; veteran Al Dodd and newcomer Margene Adkins (from Dallas) as Whitaker's chief competition. The Saints figure to do some throwing, as ex-college great Archie Manning is pointed to as a big part of the New Orleans offense.

WHITAKER ALSO offered another comment of interest. "I have been reading about Ken Norton, Abe Brown, Rod Jackson and some of the local athletes doing well and I just hope that it gets some of our local athletes thinking bigger about what they can accomplish if they only think they can. I have been around good athletes enough in recent years to know that making it in college and pro ball is mostly a state of mind."

ANOTHER APPEAL for tickets for the fifth annual Jacksonville Night at Busch Stadium next Saturday night, July 15. The Chamber of Commerce reports that ticket sales are still under 400, far below the previous four years when Jacksonville set the one, two, three and four-year records for community nights at Cardinal games. The seats are good, and it is still hard to beat a night at the ball park. Tickets not sold by Tuesday, July 11, will have to be returned to the Cardinals and Jacksonville will not receive credit for their sale. The usual pre-game and first-pitch ceremonies will be in effect again. The Cards and their opponents, Cincinnati, have both been hot recently and you couldn't ask for a better matchup for the 7 p.m. contest.

A NOTE FROM National Baseball Hall of Fame and Museum Historian Clifford Kachline this week asks for information on one Charles Dwight "Red" Dorman, an outfielder with Cleveland in 1928 who presumably came from Jacksonville. Hall of Fame records show that Dorman was born in this city on Oct. 3, 1905, although some records show his birth place as Merritt, Ill. The records show that Dorman won the league batting championship with Tyler, Tex., in 1928, and then finished the season with the Cleveland Indians. Subsequently he was with New Orleans, Kansas City, Indianapolis, Chattanooga and Terre Haute. Anyone having information on this player is asked to contact this writer, who will in turn report the same to the Hall of Fame. The group is currently attempting to obtain a completed questionnaire on every man who ever played major league baseball.

ALL LOCAL AND AREA slow pitch softball teams interested in becoming registered with the Amateur Softball Association (ASA) and thereby becoming eligible for regional and state tournament play, take note. You must register immediately in order to be assigned to a Regional. It costs $20 to become eligible, and teams will then be assigned to Regional play, at Jerseyville or Decatur if a tourney is not held in Jacksonville. Those interested in becoming registered should contact District Commissioner Ed Killam in Jacksonville by Tuesday of this week. It will be too late after that. Killam reports that if enough local and area teams, probably over four, become registered, there is a possibility that the Regional will be held here and the winner advancing to the state 'A' state tourney in Caseyville the second and third weeks in August. At present none of the local teams are POUL POPIEL, a summer resident of nearby Franklin and a veteran of the National Hockey League, reports that Houston of the new World Hockey Association is still negotiating with him to join their club next season. Popiel, who played the last two seasons with Vancouver of the NHL, says that Houston continues to show interest in him and that his decision will rest with the offer made by that club. Popiel has not signed his next year's contract with the Vancouver club as yet.

BOB PARKER, a native of Taylorville and a former resident of Jacksonville, is getting another shot at professional football. Parker, who attended Memphis State University and has had trials two years with the Philadelphia Eagles, in March was invited to try out as a free agent with the Miami Dolphins. Parker, who revealed he received a small bonus for the tryout, leaves this week for the Dolphins' training camp in north Miami and reports he will be trying out at offensive guard after a shot at linebacker with the Eagles last season. "I am more optimistic this year than the past two seasons," says Parker, now just over 240 pounds. "Miami has two veteran guards back but they didn't draft any this year. They had the rookies and free agents in for a couple days earlier, and I think it looks good. They learned of me through a former teammate who was drafted by them." Parker returned to Memphis State this past year and has only his practice teaching remaining toward a degree.

FOR THOSE who watched the show last year, we don't have to recommend world-famous "King and His Court" four-man softball team which appears at the Pony-Colt Park this afternoon. The team packed Nichols Park last year and put on a fine show despite being rushed by an approaching storm. Very likely the show won't be back through Jacksonville in some time.

TWO MORE prep basketball standouts have indicated they will be attending Illinois College next season, according to IC coach Bill Merris. They are 6-7 Keith Hutchinson, a reserve center on state champion Thornridge, and 6-3 Greg Marr from Springfield Southeast.

LARRY DICKSON, driving a car sponsored by Dr. Ward Dunseth of Jacksonville, has regained the points lead in the USAC sprint car division prior to today's program at New Bremen, Ohio. Dickson has 384 points, seven in front of previous leader Sam Sessions. Rollie Beale is 20 off the pace and Johnny Parsons 39 back.

OUT SLIDING: St. Louis' Matty Alou is forced out at home as Houston catcher Johnny Edwards takes the throw from third baseman Doug Rader in the sixth inning of the Cards-Astro game, which the Redbirds won 2-1 with the help of some last inning heroics. (UPI Telephoto)

Reds Nip Cubs 3-2 As Nolan Wins 12th

CINCINNATI (AP) — Johnny Bench, the major leagues' RBI leader, drove home two runs with a pair of singles and Gary Nolan, who became the National League's first 12-game winner, singled in another as the Cincinnati Reds defeated the Chicago Cubs 3-2 Saturday.

A nationwide television audience saw the Reds snap a four-game baseball losing streak to the Cubs.

Sox End Skid With 5-2 Win

CHICAGO (AP) — Dick Allen raised his American League-leading homer total to 17 Saturday with a two-run, fifth-inning blast that helped the Chicago White Sox to a 5-2 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

Chicago scored three runs off loser Bill Slayback 1-3, in the second. The Sox filled the bases with none out on a walk, a single by Mike Andrews and an error by first baseman Norm Cash.

Melton Lost To Chicago For Season

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago White Sox announced Saturday that 1971 American League home run champion Bill Melton will undergo surgery for an injured back and will be out of action for the rest of the 1972 season.

Melton, who was placed on the 15-day temporary disabled list effective June 29, last saw action on June 23.

The third baseman was batting .245 with seven home runs and 30 RBIs in 57 games this season.

The team said a club physician diagnosed Melton's back problems as a herniated disc.

A White Sox spokesman said Melton, who led the league with 33 home runs last year, will return to his San Jacinto, Calif., home and return to Chicago next week for surgery.

No decision about putting Melton on the permanent disabled list had been made, the team said.

Zora Folley Dies Saturday In Accident

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Zora Folley, who pursued the world heavyweight title for nearly 10 years as a top-ranked contender, died early Saturday when he fell in a motel pool and struck his head.

A clerk at the Sands Motel said Folley, 40, William Folley, 40, of Phoenix and two women companions were in the pool after it was closed for the night when the former boxer slipped in the wading pool.

The handsome black fighter with a classic profile and equally classic boxing skills became the idol of Arizona fans shortly after he turned professional following his discharge from the Air Force in 1953.

Modest and somewhat shy, Folley was devoted to his wife Dolly and their nine children, the youngest only 4 years old. Even on his worst nights he was always receptive to sports writers and reluctant to make excuses.

Chicago tied the score again in the sixth. Randy Hundley led off with a double and scored when Don Kessinger singled with two out.

The Red broke the tie again in the seventh after Nolan opened with a single and Rose drew a one-out walk. Dan McGinn replaced Reuschel and got Bobby Tolan to bounce into a force at second, but Bench greeted reliever Tom Phoebus with a run-scoring single to center for his 63rd RBI of the baseball season.

Bucs Nip Atlanta By 5-3

ATLANTA (AP) — Willie Stargell singled home the deciding run in the fifth inning and Steve Blass recorded his 10th victory as the Pittsburgh Pirates, helped by three unearned runs, trimmed the Atlanta Braves 5-3 Saturday night.

The victory kept the Pirates three games ahead of the New York Mets in the National League East.

The Pirates got consecutive singles by Vic Davalillo, Roberto Clemente and Stargell in the fifth, but a throwing error allowed Davalillo to go from first to third on Clemente's hit, making the run unearned.

Blass, 10-2, yielded a two-run homer to Ralph Garr, his fifth, in the third inning, and a solo blast to Darrell Evans, his 11th, in the sixth.

Pittsburgh scored another unearned run off Ron Reed, 7-9, in the first when Rennie Stennett reached on Marty Perez error and later scored on Stargell's grounder.

Ryun Makes Olympic 1500

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Jim Ryun, running the last lap in a blistering 51.5 seconds, won the 1,500-meter finals Saturday night in the men's U.S. Olympic Track and Field Trials and earned a berth on this nation's team for the Summer Olympics in Munich.

Ryun's winning time was 3:41.5.

His arms raised high in joyous excitement, Ryun crossed the finish line ahead of Dave Wottle, the 1972 NCAA champ, and Bob Wheeler of Duke.

Ryun was last in the field of 11 with 500 meters to go, moved into the middle of the tightly-bunched field with 300 meters left and then raced into second with 200 meters remaining as Wottle briefly assumed command.

Golf is a popular sport in Argentina, with about 20 courses in the outskirts of Buenos Aires alone.

Cards Hold Back Astros, Win 2-1

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Reggie Cleveland of St. Louis won his sixth straight game with a seven-inning Saturday night as the Cardinals defeated Houston 2-1 in a National League baseball game.

The victory was the Cardinals' 16th in their last 18 games and raised Cleveland's record to 10-4. He struck out five Astros and walked one.

St. Louis got its first run in the first inning as Matty Alou beat out a high hopper to second baseman Tommy Helms and Joe Torre scored him with a double to right off former teammate Jerry Reuss, 5-7.

Reuss worked seven innings, striking out nine and walking one. The Cards added what proved to be the winning run off reliever Tom Griffin in the eighth on Ted Sizemore's double, a sacrifice and Ted Simmons' fly ball.

The Astros got their lone run in the ninth on singles by Jim Wynn, Bob Watson and Johnny Edwards, but when pinch-runner Bob Fenwick also tried to score on Edwards' hit, he was thrown out at the plate for the final out of the game.

Wild Pitch Lets Mets Triumph 4-1

NEW YORK (AP) — Los Angeles reliever Pete Mikkelsen threw a wild pitch as New York was about to try a suicide squeeze play, allowing John Milner to score from third base with a seventh-inning tie-breaking run that helped the Mets to a 4-1 National League victory over the error-plagued Dodgers Saturday.

The Mets, who managed only five hits over 23 innings in their two previous starts, collected only two off starter Tommy John, who left for a pinch hitter in the top of the seventh.

But with one out in the bottom of the seventh and the score tied 1-1, singles by Milner and pinch hitter Ed Kranepool put runners on first and third. With Ted Martinez at bat, Milner broke for the plate as Martinez squared around to bunt but Mikkelsen's pitch was wild, the baseball sailing past catcher Chris Cannizzaro.

The Dodgers had tied the score in their half of the seventh against Jim McAndrew on Wes Parker's double and Manny Mota's two-out pinch single. McAndrew, 6-3, left for a pinch hitter in the seventh and Danny Frisella protected the lead to end New York's three-game losing streak and the Dodgers' three-game winning string.

The Mets nipped John for an unearned run in the third. Duffy Dyer led off with a double and McAndrew sacrificed.

AD Choice Down To 3 At U Of I

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Athletic Directors John Toner of the University of Connecticut, Cecil Coleman of Wichita State and Bob Brigham of Northern Illinois University remain in the running for the University of Illinois athletic directorship, it was reported Saturday.

An Illinois spokesman said Toner is among the three final candidates. Toner earlier had been identified as a finalist by the Hartford Courant in Connecticut.

In Storrs, Conn., however, Toner termed reports that he had been offered the job "speculative."

"I am not seeking the Illinois position, although I am not disinterested, and I expect to hear from them again soon," Toner said after returning from a trip to Champaign.

The Urbana Courier said the other two were Coleman and Brigham.

The job has not been offered to any of the three, the university spokesman said. He said the decision may be made next week when Chancellor J. W. Peltason returns from a European vacation, or on July 19 when the board of trustees meets.

Reveal Records By Chamberlain

NEW YORK (AP) — Wilt Chamberlain, who led the Los Angeles Lakers to their first National Basketball Association championship last season, also set 14 league records during the 1971-72 campaign, it was announced Saturday.

Over-all, 41 NBA records were broken and three tied in regular season, playoffs, and the All-Star Game.

The records by the 7-foot-1½, 275-pound Chamberlain included: most career points, 30,335; most seasons leading NBA in rebounds, 10; most seasons leading NBA in field goal percentage, 8; most rebounds career, 22,298; most minutes played career, 44,319; most field goals made career, 12,255; most field goals attempted career, 22,933; and most consecutive games, career, no disqualifications, 963.

In British Open

Jack Looms As Favorite

MUIRFIELD, Scotland (AP) — Jack Nicklaus is acknowledged even by the Scots as a standout favorite to win the British Open Golf Championship this week and increase his chances for the Grand Slam.

A victory for big blond Jack would be a matter of rejoicing rather than a bagpipe lament in this home of the game, where national pride yields only to golfing genius.

The popular American's pursuit of all-time golf glory has produced an extra dimension of drama to the 101st championship over Muirfield's fearsome links.

Swarming crowds of up to 100,000 are expected for the tournament that the British call "The Open," blandly ignoring the existence of any other. Nicklaus, 32-year-old grand master of American golf, already has won the U.S. Masters and Open. He needs the British Open and the PGA at Birmingham, Mich., to gain a one-year Grand Slam, sweeping all four crowns in the same season.

Bookies made Nicklaus 9-4 favorite to capture the British title against a talented array of world stars. The four-day tournament begins Wednesday.

His main challengers shaped up as defending champion Lee Trevino, former titleholder Gary Player of South Africa, steady Billy Casper and Tony Jacklin, the local boy who made good.

Trevino was second favorite at 7-1, Player third at 12-1 and Casper and Jacklin at 16-1.

Arnold Palmer, still a magic name on both sides of the Atlantic, was rated a 20-1 shot along with New Zealand left-hander Bob Charles.

A record 572 hopefuls, including 43 Americans, entered for the 72-hole championship, shooting for prize money totaling another British record—50,000 pounds, or $130,000 at the official rate of exchange.

The winner gets 5,500 pounds, or $14,300, and the runner-up claims 4,000 pounds, or $10,400 dollars.

After the qualifying rounds over four adjoining courses, the field was cut to 150 for championship play over Muirfield's par 36-35-71 layout.

It's a course that can squeak like a mouse or roar like a lion, depending on how the wind blows. The fairways are narrow, but immaculate. The rough, like on most seaside links in Scotland, is something to stay out of. The par 5s are easy one day, diabolical the next.

Nicklaus, looking bronzed and fit, arrived at Muirfield a week before the start of the championship with plans to play at least one practice round every day.

"Now that I've won the Masters and the U.S. Open the odds against bringing off the Grand Slam have been greatly reduced," he said.

"I came early because there's a lot to do. It takes three to five days to get over the time change and I have to learn Muirfield again."

Nicklaus won the British crown at Muirfield in 1966 by one stroke over Doug Sanders, who has entered the lists again this year. If Jack wins again he will become only the second American to capture the title on the same course.

His predecessor was the late, great Walter Hagen, who triumphed at Sandwich in England in 1922 and again in 1928.

Trevino, whose wisecracks conceal a keen ambition, faced a different challenge. He was out to achieve something that only three other Americans have accomplished—winning the title in two successive years.

Bobby Jones, the peerless amateur, did it in 1926 and 1927. Hagen won in 1928 and 1929. More than 30 years later, Palmer scored in 1961 and 1962.

But no one in the past half century has matched Australian Peter Thomson's record of winning in three consecutive years—1954-5-6.

Thomson, trying to win the title for the sixth time, was listed by the bookies as a 33-1 shot this year.

Player, the sturdy little South African who has won everything that matters in golf, also has a chance to join the elite with British Open victories on the same course. He won at Muirfield in 1959 and took the title again at Carnoustie four years ago.

Among the other top Americans in the field are Tom Weiskopf, Bert Yancey, Frank Beard, Dave Stockton, Johnny Miller and Jerry Heard.

The bookies listed Heard at 20-1, Weiskopf at 25-1, Stockton, Miller and Beard at 33-1 and Yancey at 50-1.

NEW YORK (AP) — Key To The Mint, one of two 3-year-olds in the 12-horse field, took the lead shortly after the break and kept it Saturday in winning the $118,100 Brooklyn Handicap at Aqueduct by two lengths over Autobiography.

The winner ran the 1 3/16 miles in the track record-equaling time of 1:54 4/5 under 112 pounds, including Braulio Baeza.

Autobiography, 122, finished three lengths ahead of West Coast Scout, 114, who got the show by 1 1/2 lengths over Metropolitan winner Executioner over a fast track.

Key To The Mint, owned by Paul Mellon, paid $12,400, $6,400 and $4,400 in winning his third stakes of 1972.

The first money of $70,860 boosted Key To The Mint's career bankroll to $238,546. The son of Graustark-Key Bridge now has won four of eight 1972 starts and eight of 18 career outings.

Executioner's defeat meant there will be no fourth winner of the New York Handicap Triple Crown this year. The handicap series consists of the Metropolitan, the Brooklyn and the Suburban, which will be held July 22.

Albatross captured Roosevelt Raceway's $91,000 Realization Pace in world record time and raised his earnings to $932,161.

Hohmann Captures Club Championship

The Jacksonville Country Club golf championship was recently decided as E. P. "Red" Hohmann captured the championship title for the sixth time.

Hohmann also took first place finishes in 1956, '57, '60, '66 and '69. This year, he defeated Ralph McNaughton in his first match, Bob Neff in the second, and was two under par when he defeated Jim Dowland three and two in the final match.

The Class A championship was won by Larry Huot, who downed John Ware, Con Rourke and Bob Perkins on his way to the title.

John Murray took top honors in Class B by defeating Henry Busche, Don Douglass and Larry Flynn, respectively. In Class C, Lynn Ferguson emerged with the championship by defeating Tobie Carbone, Ralph Withee and Ken Price.

The Class D championship was won by Frank Foote, who at 79 years of age downed Earl Horeth in his first match, went 21 holes to defeat Bill Chalk in the semi-finals and then beat Sam Pack for the title.

Chuck Murphy, in his second year of playing golf, won the Handicap championship at the country club. Murphy, playing with a 20 handicap, was one of the low 32 qualifiers who started in the handicap division. On the way to the handicap championship, Murphy defeated George Hardesty, John Murray, defending champion Paul Snow, Bud Walker and Al Pearce.

McLaren Vs Porsche At Atlanta

GAINESVILLE, Ga. (AP) — It will be the durable, time-proven cars of Gulf-tem McLaren versus a hot, new L&M Porsche and an assortment of other hopefuls Sunday in the Canadian-American Challenge Cup race at Road Atlanta.

The race goes for 195 miles, or 75 laps around the twisting, 2.52-mile layout that features a dozen mind-boggling turns. The purse is $75,000 and the start is scheduled for 2:45 p.m.

George Follmer, an experienced 38-year-old driver from Arcadia, Calif., will be at the wheel of Roger Penske's twin-turbocharged Porsche as replacement for Indianapolis 500 winner Mark Donohue.

Donohue, 35, of Media, Pa., underwent surgery in an Atlanta hospital Saturday to repair damage to his left leg, injured in a practice crash at Road Atlanta last Monday.

Doctors said that Donohue, who was committed to drive in about 30 races the remainder of the season, will be out of action at least 13 weeks. They said he should recover fully from the injuries.

Fulmer matched speeds with the McLarens of Dennis Hulme and Peter Revson, the 1971 Can-Am champion, and appeared ready to challenge the orange and black British-made cars that have won the series five straight years.

Other jumpers who qualified for Sunday's finals were Gene White, who is on leave from a Pennsylvania jail where he is serving a term for forgery and Reynold Brown, America's second highest jumper, who missed badly on his first two attempts but cleared the bar on his third try.

Texas Sweeps Two From Birds By 2-1 And 3-1

BALTIMORE (AP) — Lenny Randle clubbed a three-run homer in the eighth inning to lead the Texas Rangers to a 3-1 victory over the Baltimore Orioles for a sweep of their American League twilight double-header Saturday.

Texas struck for two first-inning runs and Rich Hand made them stand up with a seven-hit that gave the Rangers a 2-1 triumph in the first baseball game.

Doyle Alexander, losing his fourth straight game as his record sagged to 3-5, was working on a two-hit shutout going into the eighth inning.

But Hal King and Joe Lovitto stroked one-out singles and then Randle, who had taken over at second base in place of Ted Kubiak in the fifth inning for defensive purposes, swatted his second homer of the season.

The Orioles had taken a 1-0 lead in the second inning on singles by Bobby Grich and Brooks Robinson, and Paul Blair's sacrifice fly. But Casey Cox settled down to record his second victory without a setback, with relief help from Paul Lindblad.

The twinnish losses cut Baltimore's East Division lead over Detroit to one-half game.

Wimbledon Finals

Rain Advances Play To Today

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Stan Smith practiced forehands and backhands in the locker room of the All-England Club Saturday. But that was the nearest he got to playing his Wimbledon Final against Ilie Nastase.

Rain washed out the scheduled final day for the first time since 1963.

The crowd waited around on the center court for three hours until the official announcement that play was postponed until Sunday. Rain had then been falling steadily for eight hours and the covers never had been taken off the court.

Hundreds of fans had camped all night on the sidewalks for standing room. They were soaking wet when they paid for their tickets.

Smith, 25-year-old U.S. Army corporal from Pasadena Calif., is in the final for the second straight year. Last year, he lost to John Newcombe of Australia, who, with other stars of World Championship Tennis, is not competing this time.

Nastase, also 25, is a lieutenant in the Romanian Army. He is in his first Wimbledon final.

Smith appeared less worried by the delay. "It happened to me at Forest Hills last year," Smith said. "I waited around two days for the rain to stop before I beat Tom Okker in the semifinals."

He went on to beat Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia in the final. Nastase said he was nervous about the big match anyway.

"I didn't sleep much last night," he said. "That is usual for me when I have an important match. I shall go to bed late tonight because I know I shan't sleep otherwise."

"I shall go to the movies," Nastase said. "Maybe I can see a movie about Godzilla and monster."

Godzilla is Nastase's pet name for Smith.

There's a prize of $13,000 for the winner, with $7,800 for the runner-up.

Smith, as a soldier, has to give his prize money to the U. Davis Cup team.

The American team plays Chile next week and is due to leave New York for Santiago Wednesday.

"So it doesn't affect my schedule even if I have to stay and play the final on Monday," Smith said.

He might have to do that. The forecast for Sunday was bad too.

Also rescheduled for Sunday were the women's doubles final pitting singles champion Billie Jean King of Long Beach, Calif., and Betty Stove of the Netherlands against Judy Dalton of Australia and Francoise Durr of France.

And still to be completed were the mixed doubles semifinals. In one match, Mrs. King and Clark Graebner of New York were leading Nastase and Rosemary Casals of San Francisco 9-8, 5-5 when rain halted their match Friday. The other mixed doubles semifinal had yet to start. Kim Warwick and Evonne Goolagong of Australia were paired against Peter Cramer and Pat Pretorius of South Africa.

Football Camps Getting Started

Veterans of the Super Bowl champion Dallas Cowboys—bolstered by the return of most of the stars who propelled the team to pro football's biggest prize last season—begin workouts Wednesday as National Football League training camps open.

Some teams ordered rookies to report as early as last Friday while some veterans are not expected in camp until July 18.

"I feel our team has reached the quality area that we have been seeking for many years," said Dallas Coach Tom Landry. "Since the middle of 1970, when we turned it around, we have won 21 of 25 games."

Roger Staubach, the former Heisman Trophy winner who quarterbacked the Cowboys on their closing 10-game victory streak last season, again is expected to be at the helm with Craig Morton as his back-up man.

Powerful running backs Duane Thomas, Calvin Hill and Walt Garrison will add to the Cowboys' offensive punch along with wide receivers Bob Hayes and Lance Alworth and the tight end duo of Billy Truax and Mike Ditka.

"Offensively, I don't see any young players overtaking our veterans," Landry said. "We do have a little age in our secondary defense. There are possibilities of young people breaking in."

The American Football Conference has undergone some coaching changes with John Ralston, coach of two Rose Bowl champion Stanford teams, assuming the top spot with Denver, replacing Lou Saban, who is returning to Buffalo. Bill Peterson, former Florida State and Rice mentor, takes over at Houston and Harland Svare begins his first full season with San Diego after serving the final four contests of 1971.

Baltimore, 10-4 in regular play last season, has retained the awesome front quartet of Fred Miller, Bubba Smith, Billy Newsome and Roy Hilton, which helped mold the Colts into the No. 1 overall defensive team in the NFL.

Peterson feels his Oilers can improve on their 4-9-1 record of last year if they can fortify the offensive line and strengthen their running game.

Brewer Ups Lead To Three

FORT ERIE, Ont. (AP) — Graying veteran Gary Brewer, who scored his last regular tour victory in the 1967 Masters, fashioned a three-under-par 68 and swept into a three-stroke lead Saturday after the third round of the $150,000 Canadian Open Golf Championship.

The 40-year-old Brewer, chain-smoking cigarettes despite ulcers that hospitalized him earlier this year, posted a 54-hole total of 205—eight under par on the 6,751-yard Cherry Hill Golf Club course.

A trio of tour-tested regulars followed at 208. Phil Rodgers, a non-winner since 1966, had a 68 and was tied for second with Bruce Crampton of Australia and Lou Graham.

Crampton, who has threatened to win a tourney at least a half-dozen times this season, managed a 70 in the bright, warm sunshine and Graham shot a 72.

Dave Hill, who shared the 36-hole lead with Graham, slipped to a 73 for 209 and was tied with former champion Tommy Aaron, who had a 70.

Lee Trevino, the defending champion, made an eagle three on the final hole to finish with a 70 but was seven strokes away from the lead at 212.

CARDS GET 2 PICKS

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals will receive two high 173 draft choices from the San Francisco 49ers as compensation for defensive end-tackle Rolf Krueger, who signed with the 49ers as a free agent Friday.

Krueger, 6-feet, 4-inches and weighing 250 pounds, played out his option with the Cardinals during the last season and had not come to terms with the club for the 1972 campaign.

He will join his older brother, Charlie, on the San Francisco defensive line.

Krueger, 25, who spent three years with the Cardinals after being All-America at Texas A&M, will be used as a defensive end for the 49ers.

CFL To Be Aired On U.S. Network

The field is bigger, there are 12 men on a side instead of 11, a team gets three downs instead of four, the scoring and penalty rules are slightly different—but that brown oblong spheroid is still a football.

The Canadian Football League, largely unknown south of the border, will display its product before U.S. football fans this season via a series of 20 weekly telecasts of CFL games.

Tomorrow Syndication Inc., hoping to approach the success the National Football League has enjoyed with television, has lined up a network of 109 U.S. TV stations for weekly Wednesday night telecasts. Some games will be shown live in prime time, others on delayed tape.

The series made its debut with the June 28 game between the CFL champion Calg-ry

Stampeders and an all-star squad composed of players from the league's eight other clubs, with Calgary winning 23-22.

Preseason exhibition games will be televised until July 31 when the league starts its regular season. After that, one game a week will be shown through Nov. 8.

There are nine clubs in the Canadian Football League, which is divided into Eastern and Western Conferences. The winners of each conference meet at the end of the regular season for the Grey Cup, symbol of the CFL championship.

Joining Calgary, last year's Grey Cup winners, in the Western Conference are the Saskatchewan Roughriders, Winnipeg Blue Bombers, Edmonton Eskimos and British Columbia Lions.

The four teams in the Eastern Conference are the Toronto Argonauts, Montreal Alouettes, Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Ottawa Rough Riders.

American football fans will find the Canadian version of the sport not all that different from what they're used to.

The basics of the Canadian game are familiar, and the few differences tend to make the Canadian sport more wide open than its American counterpart.

The Canadian field is larger—110 yards by 65 as opposed to the American 100 by 53. This encourages more outside running plays, and gives scrambling option quarterbacks and swift running backs an edge over pocket passers and straight-ahead runners.

The Canadian end zones are 25 yards deep instead of 10, giving the offensive team more room in which to run pass patterns close to the goal line and making it riskier for a defensive team to go into a tight, goal line defense.

In Canada, an offensive team gets three downs—instead of four—to make 10 yards. This leads to a more daring style of attack geared towards the "big play," since the plodding "three yards and a cloud of dust" offense would come up short.

In the CFL there are 12 players on each side, the extra man usually being a flanker or cunning back on offense and a halfback on defense. All offensive backs may be in motion in any direction before the ball is snapped, whereas in the NFL just one back may go in motion, and he may only move laterally or away from the line.

Any punt or unsuccessful field goal in the CFL leaves the ball in play. It must be fielded by the receiving team, and the punt returner's teammates are not permitted to block for him.

The kicking team receives one point—a "single"—if the ball is kicked into the end zone and not run out by the receiving team.

These differences are relatively subtle and tend to be obscured as the game progresses. Some American observers have felt that football has reached the saturation point on U.S. television.

But Tomorrow Syndication, the U.S. distributor of the CFL television package, is counting on American fans tuning in to the CFL brand of football, and finding it exciting enough to stay tuned.

Japan Wins 6-3 In College Series

TOKYO (AP) — Takashi Yamaguchi struck out 13 batters as Japan defeated the United States 6-3 Saturday in the opening game of the first U.S.-Japan collegiate baseball World Series.

Yamaguchi, ace of the all-Japan champion Kansai University, scattered seven hits before 35,000 spectators, including Crown Prince Akihito and Crown Princess Michiko and U.S. Ambassador Robert S. Ingersoll.

The teams will play six more games in their series.

Error Enables Tribe To Win 2-1 Over Royals

CLEVELAND (AP) — An unearned run which scored on a throwing error by centerfielder Amos Otis gave the Cleveland Indians a 2-1 American baseball victory over the Kansas City Royals Saturday.

Otis' error came in the second inning when the Indians scored both their runs off loser Roger Nelson.

Graig Nettles walked with one out and came around on singles by Alex Johnson and Ray Fosse. When Otis tried to catch Johnson at third on Fosse's hit, the throw struck Johnson and deflected into the Kansas City dugout, allowing the runner to score.

"The Royals' only run was Lou Piniella's sixth homer of the season in the third off winner Mike Kilkenny, who required seventh-inning relief help from Phil Hennigan."

"When Kilkenny walked two men with two out in the seventh, Hennigan came on to retire Piniella on a fly ball."

Hunter Blanks Brewers By 7-0

OAKLAND (AP) — Catfish Hunter pitched his second straight shutout and was backed by four home runs as the Oakland A's blanked the Milwaukee Brewers 7-0 Saturday.

Hunter, 10-4, pitched a five-hitter against the Brewers, who gave Vida Blue the worst beating of his major league baseball career Friday night.

"Joe Rudi hit a two-run homer in the third inning and Sal Bando and Mike Epstein hit back-to-back homers in the sixth off rookie Gary Ryerson. 1-1. Dave Duncan slammed a three-run shot off Ken Sanders in the eighth."

The victory snapped a three-game losing streak for the A's, who remained five games ahead of Chicago in the American League West.

King Regains Singles Crown

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Billie Jean King outstroked Evonne Goolagong 6-3, 6-3 in a tame tennis final Friday and regained the Wimbledon women's singles crown after four years.

A victory in the men's final Saturday by Stan Smith over Romania's Ilie Nastase would give the Americans a sweep in singles.

The women's final lacked atmosphere and excitement and offered little high class tennis. But Mrs. King, 28, from Long Beach, Calif., said it meant more to her than any of her three previous Wimbledon triumphs.

"It's difficult playing a Wimbledon final," she said. "You don't have to play great tennis. You just have to be better than your opponent."

And on Friday's showing she was certainly better than Miss Goolagong, the 20-year-old Australian who came from nowhere to win the title last year.

Mrs. King played efficiently, though not as well as in earlier rounds. Miss Goolagong was frequently off target with her first service and lost many points on her soft and vulnerable second service.

A crowd of 15,000 on Wimbledon's center court watched the match quietly. Hundreds of them, in the standing areas, had camped all night on the sidewalks outside the All-England Club.

The fans had hoped for a repeat of the dramatic semifinal of two days ago when Miss Goolagong came from behind to beat 17-year-old Chris Evert of Fort Lauderdale, Fla. But after that epic, Friday's encounter was all anti-climax.

The pattern was set from the start. Mrs. King held her service in the opening game despite two double faults. Miss Goolagong then lost her service after netting three ground strokes.

The fans were all behind Miss Goolagong, who is a great favorite here. They sometimes clapped even when Mrs. King made a bad shot.

"That was unfair and it worried me," Miss Goolagong said afterwards.

But the defeat didn't appear to worry her at all. She wore her usual sunny smile as Mrs. King made the winning shot, and went on smiling and chatting with the new champion as they waited for the presentation.

At an interview later news-men asked Miss Goolagong if she thought she could ever be ruthless enough to be a great champion.

"I really don't know," she said. "It's just me. And I hope I never change."

Mrs. King first appeared in a Wimbledon final in 1963, when she lost to Margaret Court of Australia. She won the title in 1966, 1967 and 1968, lost to Ann Jones of Britain in the 1969 final and to Mrs. Court again in 1970. Last year she bowed out to Miss Goolagong in the semifinals.

"My determination to win the 1972 title really started with the handshakes after that semifinal last year," Mrs. King said.

"I had a wonderful year in 1971. I won 19 tournaments, and I thought I was the best player. It really worried me, losing

STILL RESPONSIBLE

NEW YORK (UPI)—The traditional responsibility of the housewife for family food shopping hasn't changed much, despite the fact that so many thousands of wives are working. The working woman either does not or cannot delegate this job, says Leo Bogart, executive vice president and general manager of the Bureau of Advertising. He based his statement on a bureau study of "The Working Woman."

Owners Back Kuhn, Speed Bargaining

CHICAGO (AP) — Major league baseball owners, hoping to avert future strikes, have liberalized and streamlined their collective bargaining processes and added to Commissioner Bowie Kuhn's powers.

The owners and their general managers met in a quick joint meeting Friday which was presided over by Kuhn and presidents Joe Cronin of the American League and Charles Feeney of the National League.

Also present was John Gaherin, the owners' negotiator in labor-management disputes. Junked was the old Players Relations Committee of 10 members. In its place will be a six-man committee consisting of Cronin and Feeney, one member of the Executive Council of each league and additional members to be selected by each of the league presidents.

Cronin will have either Bob Reynolds of the California Angels or Calvin Griffith of Minnesota from the AL Executive Committee and Feeney will have either Walter O'Malley of the Los Angeles Dodgers or John McHale of the Montreal Expos.

that semifinal to Evonne, and I've worried about it ever since. That is why today's match means so much to me."

Miss Goolagong plans to play at Forest Hills this year for the first time.

"I'm glad people in the United States will have the joy of seeing Evonne," Mrs. King said. "She is a great player."

Mrs. King won $8,240; Miss Goolagong $3,300.

Bob Hewitt and Frew McMillan, the South Africans, beat the U. S. Davis Cup pair, Smith of Pasadena, Calif., and Erik Van Dillen of San Mateo, Calif., 6-2, 6-2, 9-7 to win the men's doubles title for the second time. They were also the champions in 1967.

Rain stopped play for the day with Mrs. King and Clark Graebner of New York City locked in a mixed doubles semifinal tussle with Ilie Nastase of Romania and Rosemary Casals of San Francisco.

Nastase and Miss Casals had taken the first set 9-8 and the second set was tied at 5-5.

Allison Claims Pole Position

BRISTOL, Tenn. (AP)—Bob Allison of Hueytown, Ala., whipped his 1972 Chevrolet around the high-banked Bristol International Speedway at 106.097 miles per hour Friday and won the pole position for Sunday's Volunteer 500 Grand National stock car race.

It was the second time this year Allison had won the pole for a National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing-sanctioned event on the .533-mile oval. He started first in this spring's Southeastern 500 and went on to win the race.

Richard Petty of Randleman, N. C., NASCAR's all-time top money winner, won the outside pole in his 1972 Plymouth with an average speed of 105.151 m.p.h.

Trailing the pace-setters were Leroy Yarborough of Columbia, S. C., in a 1971 Ford at 104.612 m.p.h., Cecil Gordon of Horsehoe, N. C., in a 1971 Mercury at 103.347 m.p.h. and Benny Parsons of Ellerbe, N. C., in a 1971 Mercury at 103.111 m.p.h.

Eddie Jr. likes to catch his famous father, but plays short stop mostly. The two plus, Al Jackson, Gary West and Floyd Berger will be playing here Sunday at 2 p.m. at the Pony-Colt Park, facing the Jacksonville Redlegs.

Pepitone, Popovich Clip Cincinnati 2-1

CINCINNATI (AP) — Joe Pepitone cracked his first home run of the season and Paul Popovich snuffed out a Cincinnati threat with a fielding gem as the Chicago Cubs downed the Reds 2-1 Friday night.

Pepitone, back with the Cubs since June 30 after a brief retirement, blasted a pitch from Wayne Simpson, 4-3, over the right field wall to backup rookie right-hander Burt Hooton, 7-7.

Simpson had retired 12 of the first 13 batters he faced before Pepitone ended his bid for a no-hitter leading off the fifth.

Cincinnati threatened in the sixth when Pete Rose drew a walk—one of three issued by the Cub pitcher—and moved to second on Bobby Tolan's single.

Johnny Bench lined what appeared to be a single to right-center, but second baseman Popovich made a leaping one-handed grab and turned it into a double play.

The Cubs picked up the decisive run in the eighth on a walk to Rick Monday, an infield out and Ron Santo's double following an intentional pass to Billy Williams.

Singles by Tony Perez and Tolan were Cincinnati's only hits until Rose, Bench and Perez singled in the ninth. Jack Aker came on to protect the triumph by striking out George Foster and retiring Denis Menke on a forceout.

Sutton Checks New York By 6-1 On Three-Hitter

NEW YORK (AP) — Don Sutton limited New York to three singles, one a bunl, in pitching the Los Angeles Dodgers to a 6-1 National League victory over the hit-starved Mets Friday night.

Sutton, 10-4, was nicked for an unearned run in the first inning when Bud Harrelson opened with a bunt single and continued to second on Sutton's throwing error. He went to third on an infield out and scored as John Milner bounced into a forceout following a walk to Dave Marshall.

After a one-out walk to Harrelson in the third, Ken Boswell grounded into a double play and Sutton retired the Mets in order until Ed Kranepool singled leading off the eighth. The slumping Mets, who have lost three in a row, were held to two hits Thursday in a 14-inning 1-0 loss to San Diego.

Los Angeles tied the score against loser Jon Matlack, 8-5, in the fourth on Chris Cannizzaro's double and Maury Wills' single and took the lead with a pair of unearned runs in the fifth on singles by Lee Lacy and Frank Robinson, a throwing error by third baseman Jim Fregosi and sacrifice flies by Willie Davis and Jim Lefebvre.

In running their baseball winning streak to three games, the Dodgers added two more runs in the sixth. Wes Parker hit his second home run of the season in the seventh to complete the scoring.

Kubiak's Double Boosts Rangers Past Birds 5-4

BALTIMORE (AP) — Ted Kubiak's tie-breaking, two-out double in the fifth inning carried the Texas Rangers to a 5-4 victory over Baltimore Friday night, snapping the Orioles five-game winning streak.

Ted Ford and Joe Lovitto singled and Kubiak belted a double off loser Roric Harrison, 0-2, to end Texas' three-game losing streak.

The Orioles' largest crowd of the American League baseball season, 43,851 T-shirt Nighters, was on hand to see Texas jump to a 4-0 lead in the first two innings, Baltimore errors making all the runs unearned.

Don Mincher knocked in two of the four runs with a sacrifice fly and single. The others scored on a Boog Powell error and a wild pitch.

The Orioles got two back in the third, hits by Johnny Oates and Paul Blair doing the damage after an error by Toby Harrah set the stage and made the runs unearned.

Brooks Robinson's fourth home run in an inning later followed a double by Terry Crowley and tied the score. Crowley, who had two hits in two at bats, left the game in the fifth inning with a groin injury.

Jim Panther relieved Texas starter Dick Bosman at the start of the fifth and picked up his fourth victory in seven decisions with five shutout innings.

Gibson Records 8th Straight Win, 3-1

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Bob Gibson of the St. Louis Cardinals pitched his eighth consecutive victory Friday night, beating the Houston Astros on a four-hitter 3-1.

Gibson, who lost his first five decisions, now has an 8-5 record and the surging Cardinals have won 15 of their last 17 games.

The Cards came from behind to score all three runs in the fifth inning on five singles. Donn Clendenon opened with a single and Luis Melendez beat out a bunt. Dal Maxvill then singled in Clendenon, tying the score.

After Melendez was forced at third base and Lou Brock flied out, singles by Ted Sizemore and Matty Alou produced two more runs.

The Astros opened the scoring when Jimmy Wynn hit a long homer, his 13th of the season, in the fourth inning.

By losing, the Astros wasted a chance to gain on Cincinnati which lost to Chicago, and remained 1½ games behind the Reds in baseball's National League West.

Braves Wins 2nd, Split With Bucs

ATLANTA (AP) — Dusty Baker's two-out single in the seventh inning drove in the tie-breaking run as the Atlanta Braves posted a 3-2 victory over Pittsburgh Friday for a split of their National League two-night doubleheader.

Gene Alley drove in four runs with a homer and a single to lead a 20-hit attack that gave the Pirates a 10-2 victory in the opening baseball game.

The twinnill split, coupled with New York's loss to Los Angeles, widened the Pirates' East Division lead over the Mets to three games.

Darrell Evans' single off Pittsburgh starter Bruce Kison, 3-2, started the decisive rally in the nightcap. Mike Lum singled Evans to third, then Baker scored him with his single to center that extended his hitting streak to 14 games.

It gave the victory to Jim Hardin, 2-0, who spaced seven hits en route to his first complete game in the National League.

Al Oliver's double and Richie Hebner's single gave the Pirates a second-inning run but the Braves took a 2-1 lead in the fourth on Earl Williams' 10th home run, a walk to Baker, a wild pitch and Felix Millan's single.

Hebner was hit by a pitch in the sixth. Then Milt May, who played in place of Pirates first-string catcher Manny Sanguillen in both games and got seven hits, doubled to score Hebner and tie the game.

Singles by Hebner and May and Alley's second homer of the season gave the Bucs three runs in the second inning of the opener against Tom Kelley, 5-6. They got two more in the third on a single by Vic Davallio, a stolen base and singles by Oliver, Hebner and May.

Gene Clines doubled home a run in the sixth, Pittsburgh made it 9-0 in the seventh-on a walk, singles by May and Alley and Dave Cash's two-run double, then wrapped up the rout in the eighth on a run-scoring single by May, who had five singles in the game.

Luke Walker, 3-4, lost his shutout in the ninth on singles by Paul Casanova, Williams and Baker and Marty Perez grounder.

BEARS SET TO START

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Bears will open their football training camp next week-end at St. Joseph's College in Rensselaer, Ind., for the 29th successive season.

Between 75 and 80 players will report to new head coach Abe Giron who replaced the fired Jim Dooley following the 1971 campaign.

Giron, who has been a member of the Bear staff for seven years before getting the head job, will have veteran centers, quarterbacks, receivers and running backs along with all rookies reporting Friday July 14. The rest of the veterans must be in camp by Sunday, July 16.

NEW ORLEANS: The FBI said Friday it has arrested former pro football quarterback Karl Sweetan, 29, and another man in connection with an alleged attempt to sell a National Football League play book. They were charged with interstate transportation of stolen property and fraud by wire. (UPI Telephoto)

Sweetan Accused In Fraud Charge

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Unemployed quarterback Karl Sweetan was accused Friday of trying to peddle pro football secrets by selling a Los Angeles Rams playbook to the New Orleans Saints for $2,500.

Sweetan, 29, and his first cousin, Wayne M. Boswell, 31, both of Dallas, were held in lieu of bond on federal fraud charges after a brief hearing before a U.S. magistrate.

They were arrested at 3 a.m. in a motel here while dickering with Saints coach J.P. Roberts, not knowing that he had called in the FBI when first contacted by telephone two days ago.

A court affidavit filed to back the charge said agents were watching the dealing.

A playbook is a large notebook of diagrams of all offensive plays, defensive alignments, audibles and keys—a veritable encyclopedia of a team's secrets.

Presumably, being privy to such secrets would give an opposing team an edge and the Saints play the Rams in the first game of their 1972 National Football League season.

However, whether the notebook involved here would be of any real use depended on whether it was current.

Federal officials, who took possession of the notebook, said Rams assistant coach Tom Clain was to fly here to examine the material and see if it is old or new.

Meanwhile, the notebook was valued, for legal purposes, at $5,000 or more.

Sweetan, who played college ball at Wake Forest, played in the NFL with Detroit, New Orleans and Los Angeles. He was traded by the Saints to the Rams shortly before the 1969 season and was cut by Los Angeles last year during training camp.

He recently was dropped by Edmonton of the Canadian Football League.

Both Sweetan and Boswell were charged with fraud involving interstate telephone communications, which carries a maximum punishment of $1,000 and five years prison; and interstate transportation of stolen wares having a value of $5,000 or more, which carries a maximum penalty of a $10,000 fine and 10 years prison.

Should the notebook be deemed out of date and of no monetary value, only the first charge of fraud involving wire communications would apply, officials said.

Twins Owner Sees Talent In Quilici

NEW YORK (UPI)—Natural Quilici came up to us from Denver and was one of the greatest inspirational forces I've ever seen in all the years I've been in baseball. He inspired everybody. He even inspired Versailles to become MVP that year and in the World Series he hit Koufax like he owned him."

Having made up his mind to make the change Thursday, which was an off day for the Twins, he now had to implement his thinking.

The players had come to the ballpark for a workout but that was called off because of rain. Griffith first called Rigney into his office and told him he was making a change. Rigney has been managing ball clubs 18 years but he took this firing hard.

Griffith informed Rigney he intended to talk with Quilici about the job and Rigney said "You're the boss."

Quilici was summoned to Griffith's office and he was still wearing his uniform when he arrived.

"Would you like to become a manager?" Griffith asked him.

Quilici thought Griffith was talking about one of the Twins' minor league clubs and he replied that managing had always been one of his ambitions and he felt he could do the job after learning a few things.

"Now, Frank," said Griffith, "I'm not talking about any minor league job. I'm talking about the Twins."

Quilici looked dumbfounded.

"Actually, he never said 'yes,' the Twins' owner reveals, 'but later on we shook hands at the press conference so I guess he accepted. Youngest manager in the majors? I guess he is at that. It shouldn't make that much difference. My uncle (Clark Griffith) named Bucky Harris manager when he was only 27 in 1924 and he turned out to be the 'Boy Wonder.' He won the world championship that year. I remember. I was the batboy."

Frank Quilici promises he won't turn into an entirely different individual now that he's a big league manager.

"The only thing I don't want to lose," he says, "is my personality."

It would be a shame if he did.

Allen Remains Top Vote Getter For AL Squad

NEW YORK (AP) — Dick Allen, the Chicago White Sox first baseman, remains the top American League vote-getter in the fan's balloting for the July 25 All-Star baseball game at Atlanta.

The controversial slugger has received 664,173 votes to hold a wide margin over Detroit's Norm Cash for the starting first base job. Cash has 440,459 with the voting to end Sunday.

The latest figures released by Commissioner Bowie Kuhn's office Friday also shows the other infield positions are apparently set with Rod Carew of Minnesota far ahead at second base, Brooks Robinson of Baltimore at third, and Boston's Luis Aparicio at shortstop.

In the outfield, Reggie Jackson of Oakland drew the most support with 561,957 votes. Carl Yastrzemski of Boston with 371,879, and Bobby Murcer of the New York Yankees with 335,653 are the other front-runners. Carlos May of the White Sox is No. 4 with 261,077.

The final starting teams for the American and National League squads will be announced next week. The pitchers and remainder of the squads are chosen by the managers.

Winchester, 9-1, got a grand slam homer from winning hurler Joe Nash, who fired a nifty two-hitter. Nash fanned a whopping 22 batters. Brad Jefferson and Nash both collected a pair of hits. Fanning Oil dropped to 5-5.

Langdon held off a late Firemen rally for its victory, moving the winners to 7-3 on the season. Mike Walker had two hits for the winners and Kelly Hall two for the losers, now 6-4.

Kirby, Kendall Let San Diego Split Twinbill

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Clay Kirby scattered eight hits and Fred Kendall belted two home runs to lead the San Diego Padres to a 6-1 victory over Philadelphia Friday for a split of their National League twin-night doubleheader.

The Phillies won the opening baseball game 4-2 with a three-run sixth inning, capped by John Bateman's two-run single, and gave major league strikeout leader Steve Carlton his 11th victory.

Kirby struck out 11 Phillies, walked one and was helped by two double plays in the nightcap as he raised his record to 6-8. He was nicked for a seventh-inning run on singles by Willie Montanez, Deron Johnson and Denny Doyle.

The Padres pounced on Jim Nash, 1-5, for three unearned runs in the first inning when Derrell Thomas was safe on Doyle's error at second base. Dave Roberts doubled and both runners scored when right fielder Joe Lis dropped Leron Lee's fly ball.

Lee made it to third on the misplay and scored on a wild pitch. Kendall hit his first homer in the second inning. San Diego made it 5-0 in the third, and Kendall hit his second homer of the game and third of the season in the sixth inning.

A single by Larry Bowa, only the Phils' second hit off Mike Corkins, 0-5, opened the decisive sixth inning of the opener.

Deron Johnson drew a two-out walk, Greg Luzinski singled for one run, then Bateman lined his two-run hit over shortstop to put the Phillies ahead 3-2. Luzinski's ninth homer added an insurance run in the eighth. San Diego 000 110 000-2 9 0 Philadelphia

Three-Way Tie In First Round Of Washington

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Sandra Palmer and Sandra Haynie, who live about eight blocks apart in Fort Worth, Tex., and Betsy Cullen, playing out of a Texas country club, tied for the first round lead Friday in the $32,000 George Washington Golf Classic.

Each shot a three under par 70 over the 6,150-yard Hidden Springs Country Club course to take a one stroke lead in the Ladies Professional Golfers Association event over Gerda Whalen Boykin, a German born golfer who makes her home in Texas.

Joann Prentice of Birmingham, Ala.; controversial Jane Blacklock from Portsmouth, N.H., and Susie McAllister of Beaumont, Tex., were deadlocked at 72 in the three-day 54-hole tournament which carries a $4,500 first prize.

Mrs. Susie Maxwell Berning, winner last week of the Women's U.S. Open Championship, was way back in the pack with a 38-41-79, following her pre-tournament statement that she never plays well two weeks in a row.

Betty Burfeindt, who with Miss Blacklock and Carol Mann are the only 1972 double winners on the LPGA tour, carded a one-over par 39-35-74. Miss Mann was a stroke back at 38-37-75.

Kathy Whitworth, second to Miss Blacklock in tour money winnings this year, shot a 73, as did Pam Higgins, Mrs. Donna Caponi Young, Peggy Wilson, Gloria Ehret, Judy Kimball and Judy Rankin.

The 31-year-old Miss Palmer carded 35-35 for her share of the lead in the tournament won last year by Miss Blacklock.

The seventh-leading money winner on the tour and a winner five weeks ago in Atlanta, Miss Palmer said she putted well, recalling she had 12 three-putts greens last week in the Open.

Miss Haynie said she played her best round of golf since tearing ligaments in the right thumb and wrist in early May, when she struck a rock while hitting a shot in San Antonio. She still wears a bandage, but it didn't keep her from a 37-33 round, including five birdies on the back nine.

Hull Will Play For Canada vs Russian Squad

HALIFAX, N.S. (AP) — Bobby Hull, former Chicago Black Hawks star who recently joined the Winnipeg Jets of the new World Hockey Association, said Friday he will play for Canada in this fall's hockey series with Russia.

Hull said that Ben Hatskin, owner of the Jets, had given him permission to play with the Canadian pro team in the eight-game series with the Russians.

Hull was recently signed as playing coach with the Jets when he jumped from the National Hockey League.

Hull, here on a promotional tour for an auto company, said national team coach Harry Sinden had asked him to play with the squad and Hatskin had agreed.

He said he expected the full team roster will be announced by Sinden next week.

Hull said he does not believe Canadian players will suffer any special pressure while representing their country.

"We're all pros and we've experienced pressure before," he said.

Hull also said there is little chance of the series developing into a brawling fiasco. He suggested the ill feeling during the early days of challenge to Canada's hockey supremacy will be replaced by a feeling of "mutual respect" between the two sides.

The 14-year NHL veteran said the WHA will present a more offensive brand of hockey that will make the game more appealing to fans.

One of the stronger points of the new league, said Hull, will be parity among the teams.

Singleton Leads Montreal To 7-2 Win Over Giants

MONTREAL (AP) — Ken Singleton drove in three runs with a single and double and Bob Bailey scored three times as the Montreal Expos bombed San Francisco Giants 7-2 in National League action Friday night.

Bailey led off the second inning with a walk and went to second on Ron Woods' bunt single. After Ron Fairly forced Woods, Singleton lined a double to deep left-center, scoring both runners.

The Expos teed off on McDowell, 8-6, for three more runs in the third inning, chasing the left-hander.

Ron Hunt was hit by a pitch for the second straight time to lead off the inning, but was forced at second by Tim Foli. Clyde Mashore followed with a base hit, moving Foli to third, and both runners scored when Bailey singled to left and the ball got past Dave Kingman for an error. One out later, Fairly scored Bailey with a single.

San Francisco pushed a run across in the fifth but the Expos came back with two more runs in the same inning.

Nervous Maxvill Accepts Advice

NEW YORK (UPI) — Dal Maxvill was a little nervous and it was perfectly understandable.

Everyone is his first day in the big leagues.

Nobody breaks down the manager's door and comes barreling in hollering here I am! Babe Ruth never did, nor did Dizzy Dean. Dal Maxvill didn't figure he ought to do it either.

"Sit down a minute, son," said the late Johnny Keane, managing the St. Louis Cardinals then and doing his best to put tight, young Dal Maxvill at ease.

"We got you here to play shortstop. We want you to catch the ball when they hit it to you. Don't miss any, and don't worry about your hitting or anything else. Let some of these other people take care of hitting the ball."

Maxvill nodded.

"I think I can hit the ball well enough, Mr. Keane, so I won't embarrass anybody," he said.

"We know that," Keane comforted the Cards' new 23-year-old kid, "and we're not concerned about it. You don't worry yourself about hitting the ball, you just catch it."

The first impulse is to say maybe Dal Maxvill took Johnny Keane a little too seriously.

In 10 seasons with the Cardinals he has ripped the ball apart for a murderous .219 lifetime figure and he hasn't neglected the home runs either. He has managed five of them.

One night this past winter Joe Torre got up at a banquet in St. Louis which Maxvill also was at and said to him:

"Maxie, you've been playing 10 years up here and you've got five home runs. That means we can expect half a home run outta you this year."

Maxvill delivered it at Shea Stadium Saturday.

He tore into one of Ray Sadecki's pitches and chased John Milner, the Mets' leftfielder, all the way to the fence, getting a double on the blow.

Dal Maxvill's reputation with the bat is such that when he hit his first major league homer, in the old Polo Grounds, naturally, against the Mets, some of those 1962 Cardinals like Bill White, Ken Boyer, Carl Sawatski and Larry Jackson were so overcome by the feat that they flopped on the floor of the dugout as if they had passed out.

"That ball was hit pretty well," laughs Maxvill. "It went 320 feet. Into the upper deck, too!"

Slugging never has been Maxvill's long suit, but there is nothing wrong with his glove, which is as good as you'll see around. It's so good that you've probably read in the papers where the Cards pay him $52,500 for his defensive ability alone.

That's inaccurate on two counts.

For one thing, Maxvill never has received $52,500 a year from the Cardinals. His high with them has been more like $45,000.

The average ballplayer undoubtedly would be annoyed over the fact his salary was so frequently mentioned in what generally turns out to be a negative vein. Maxvill never shows any resentment, possibly because he's essentially a quiet, peaceful little guy.

But he doesn't think of himself as an out man up there at the plate.

He did get as high as .253 for the Cards one year and .244 another year. His .225 last season bettered marks coming by such men as Jim Wynn, Johnny Callison, Bernie Carbo, Don Money and Roger Freed, all regarded stronger hitters.

Yet every time someone mentions "good field, no hit," the name that's automatically associated is Maxvill's.

"I'm not insulted," he says. "I look around at the other shortstops and second basemen in the league and most of them are hitting in our around the eighth slot and their averages are usually between .230 and .250. There always are exceptions" like Wills, but you take the two shortstops you generally think of first in our league, Kessinger and Harrelson, and what do you think they hit last year? Kessinger hit .252 and Harrelson, .241. I realize my .225 is nothing to brag about but at least it's an improvement over the year before."

The year before Maxvill hit a cool .201, but it also was the year he led all National League shortstops defensively with 12 errors in 654 chances. Think of that a moment. Only 12 errors! Some shortstops make that many in infield practice.

Each year there's talk about the Cardinals finding themselves a new regular shortstop, one who can really hit the ball, and each year when it's all over, who do you think winds up with the job?

You're right, Maxie. Ed Crosby started this season at short for the Cards and they feel they've got a real comer in young Dwain Anderson, who used to be with Oakland, but do you know who the St. Louis shortstop is right now? Right again, it's Maxie. .180 batting average and all."

Johnny Keane, it turns out, gave him the straight dope. Just catch the ball and let other people worry about hitting it.

Two Oldtimers Spark Detroit By Sox Friday

CHICAGO (AP) — Manager Billy Martin was happier to see his friend Frank Quilici get off to a winning start as a manager than he appeared to be over his Detroit Tigers' 6-4 triumph over the Chicago White Sox Friday night.

Martin immediately dispatched a congratulatory wire to Quilici and admitted he was more interested in Minnesota's 5-2 victory over the New York Yankees than Baltimore's 5-4 loss to Texas.

Be that as it may, the Tigers climbed within one game of Baltimore in the race for first place in the American League West but Martin did not seem impressed.

"Sure I like winning the game," said Martin. "But I don't like to be three runs ahead and then have to struggle. That's the way it has been all year."

A couple of Old Timers — 37-year-old Al Kaline and 36-year-old Tony Taylor — were instrumental in the Tiger victory. Kaline smashed the 370th homer of his career to tie the game at 2-2 in the sixth and Taylor broke that tie with a run-scoring triple in the eighth and then scored on a single by Aurelio Rodriguez.

The White Sox, who suddenly seem to have lost their magic at home, went spinning to their fourth straight defeat but didn't give up.

They scored one in the eighth to make it 4-3 but the Tigers came back with two more in the ninth on run-scoring singles by Taylor and Kaline after two were out.

The Sox came back with one in the ninth and had the tying runs on base when Mike Andrews bounced into a game-ending double play.

Kaline's homer put him ahead of Ralph Kiner in 18th place on the all-time list and he boosted his total of runs batted in to 1,458 to push him into second place past Harry Heilmann for the No. 2 spot in Tiger history.

Kissinger Expects Easier Sledding At Peace Talks

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI)—President Nixon's chief diplomatic strategist said Saturday it appeared Hanoi would take a new and more reasonable approach to negotiating an end to the Vietnam War when peace talks resume next Thursday.

Dr. Henry A. Kissinger told newsmen he expected Le Duc Tho and Xuan Thuy, Hanoi's two top negotiators, would be in Paris for the talks and left open the possibility that he also would go to the French capital for secret negotiations.

Kissinger met with newsmen following a week-long review of the Vietnam situation with President Nixon at the Western White House. He said his chief deputy, Maj. Gen. Alexander Haig, had found during a fact-finding trip to South Vietnam last week that the Communist offensive there had passed its peak and that the North Vietnamese do not now appear to have the capability to launch another such massive attack.

Kissinger said the period since President Nixon's Moscow summit had been one of intense diplomatic activity during which the United States had conveyed to Hanoi through direct and indirect contact that the time for serious negotiations has long been overdue.

Systematic Discussions

He said the United States was approaching the talks, which were broken off May 4th after North Vietnam launched a massive offensive in the south, with the idea of holding systematic discussions to find a just solution to the war.

He added: "We have some reason to believe that perhaps they will approach these negotiations in something like the same spirit, at least we have some reason to believe they have a new approach."

He said that while the U.S. side was prepared to discuss a comprehensive settlement of the Vietnam problem, the President thought the best approach would be to concentrate the negotiations on ending military hostilities and leave a political solution on the future of Vietnam to the North and South Vietnamese.

"We are prepared to discuss with them means of giving the people of Vietnam an opportunity to determine their own future," Kissinger said.

"However, our experience has been that the political issue is an extremely complex one and in the light of our experience we believe it would be better to have it discussed by the people of Vietnam themselves."

U.S. Rejects Coalition

He said the United States still rejected Hanoi's insistence on a coalition government in the south as "simply a thinly veiled device to bring about a Communist controlled government."

President Nixon, in a speech

May 8, offered to pull out all American troops from South Vietnam within four months after an Indochina-wide cease-fire and a return of all American prisoners of war.

Kissinger appeared guardedly optimistic about chances for success at Paris and left the impression that both Moscow and Peking have had a role in urging Hanoi to take a more reasonable approach.

Asked about a report by UPI European Diplomatic Correspondent K.C. Thaler from London that Hanoi's two chief allies had urged Hanoi to be more flexible, Kissinger replied:

"It seems conceivable to us that just as we brief our allies about the content of high-level discussions so perhaps the Soviet Union and Peoples Republic of China have informed Hanoi of the discussions they have been having with us."

Commodities Hit Highest Mark In Several Months

By ED DE MOCH
AP Business Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — Commodity futures prices pushed ahead sharply this past week on the Chicago Board of Trade, marking the greatest concerted move in months.

A growing demand for agricultural commodities, the weather, improved exports and concern over the new crops all combined to influence buying and selling during the week.

When trade ended for the holiday-abbreviated week on Friday, wheat futures were 4 1/2 to 5 1/2 cents a bushel higher, July 1.50 1/2; soybeans were 1 1/2 to 4 1/4 cents higher, July 3.52 1/2; corn was 2 to 2 1/2 cents higher, July 1.23 1/2 and oats were 2 1/2 to 3 cents higher, July 73 cents.

Soybean oil was 27 to 43 points higher, July 10.64; soybean meal was 85 points lower to 175 higher, July 107.15; and ice cream was 30 to 135 points higher, July 29.40.

Abundant rain and sunshine helped the corn, oats and soybeans crops greatly in recent days, state reports indicated, and this influenced sellers in futures. When some lack of precipitation was found, buyers moved in.

The strongest factor in grain futures price movement, however, was the big question whether Russia and the United States had really negotiated an export agreement for feed grains and wheat. Strong commercial and export interest buying during the week indicated a deal might have been consummated.

On Friday, there were unconfirmed trade reports that Russia had negotiated for the purchase of some 350 million bushels of corn, oats, barley and wheat at a cost of $400 million to be repaid over a 10-year period.

The strong demand for soybeans, meal and oil continued with very little sidetracking efforts.

Meal futures on Monday reached the highest price ever quoted for this commodity on the exchange at $109.10 a ton for the July option. This price was exceeded Wednesday.

Oil shared this buying interest, to a degree. The government noted that oil stocks had eased in May, and buyers came out in force for this commodity, with shorts covering as prices rose.

Ice cream improved at week's end under a strong commercial demand and short covering. Stocks were adequate, trade sources reported.

Stocks Ahead During Slow Trading Holiday

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock exchanges were open four days during the past week, but nothing much happened on two of them.

On Monday so many investors were away taking a four-day holiday weekend that trading was inconclusive, and on Friday there were minor losses in slow trading.

Wednesday was a small rally that was characterized by Newton Zinder of E.F. Hutton & Co. as "partly a rebound from an oversold condition that has persisted for several sessions" and partly an anticipation of "good second-quarter earnings reports."

Thursday was livelier. An unconfirmed report from London that China and the Soviet Union were telling the Hanoi government to make an early settlement touched off a flurry. Turnover hit 7.08 million shares in the first hour of business and the Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks shot up nearly 18 points.

When diplomatic sources received the peace report skeptically, prices settled back, but the market kept nearly half of its gains.

The Dow closed the week at 938.06, up 9.03 during the four sessions. The New York Stock Exchange index of more than 1,400 common stocks was ahead .84 to 60.15.

Volume for the week on the Big Board was 55.27 million shares, compared with 68.09 million in the preceding week, which had five sessions.

The Big Board's most active issue for the week was Curtis Wright, which has the North American rights to the Wankel rotary engine. As the most active issue on Monday it continued its recent climb by gaining 3 1/2 to 56 1/2. Again Wednesday it was the most active issue, up another 1 1/2 points. Thursday, after an unfavorable comment from a Chrysler official, it dropped 6 to 51 and led the list again, though trading was halted, Friday, with trading resumed as the bell rang, it

Morgan County residents purchased a total of $42,942 in Series E and H United States Savings Bonds in May 1972 according to Arthur J. French and Gilbert H. Todd, volunteer county chairmen of the savings bonds committee.

Sales in the state of Illinois totaled $35,466,253 according to Clarence S. Sochowski, North Central Market Director, for the Department of the Treasury's Savings Bonds Division. This is 9.7 per cent more than sales for May 1971.

Auto Industry Brightens July 4th Business Scene

By CAROLE MARTIN
AP Business Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Predictions that 1972 may be the best year on record for the U.S. auto industry brightened the business scene during the July 4th holiday-shortened past week.

In other developments, a record $1.44 billion rise in consumer installment credit was reported for May by the Federal Reserve Board, and Boeing Corp. got a $150 million export license covering the proposed sale of 707 jet airliners to China.

Record or sharply higher sales were reported for June and the first six months of the year by major domestic automakers this past week, prompting optimistic predictions for the year.

Industry analysts estimated that domestic dealers sold about 875,000 cars in June, up some 9.8 per cent from a year earlier.

On Wednesday, it was announced that the Commerce Department had granted an export license to Boeing for the sale of Boeing jets to the People's Republic of China.

China reportedly is interested in establishing civilian airline routes from Peking to points in Europe and Africa, and has been negotiating with Boeing for several months.

Also on Wednesday, the membership of the New York Stock Exchange voted into office a new 20-member board of directors which had been proposed to replace the old 33-man Board of Governors.

The new board is composed of 10 public representatives, including the first woman and the first black to serve on the Big Board policy body, and 10 representatives of the securities industry.

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the Springfield office of the U.S. Internal Revenue Service. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q. I plan to make a $20 political contribution this year. How much of this can I take as a credit against my tax?

A. You can claim as a credit against your tax one-half of your total political contributions, but no more than $12.50 if you are single or $25 if you are married filing jointly. In your case, you could claim a $10 tax credit.

In some cases, it may pay to claim political contributions as an itemized deduction rather than as a credit. If you claim a contribution as a deduction from gross income, it does not have to be halved. Deductions for political contributions, however, are limited to a total of $50 ($100 if you are married filing jointly).

Q. Will contributions to a campaign committee be eligible for a deduction or credit if the committee engages in political activities not directly related to a campaign?

A. No. The tax law requires that such a committee be organized and operated exclusively for the purpose of influencing the nomination or election

Partial Solar Eclipse Monday

By JOAN HANAUER
NEW YORK (UPI)—A piece of the sun will be blacked out throughout the continental United States Monday in a partial solar eclipse—but it will be more exciting for scientists than casual sun-watchers.

The casual observers must practice safety precautions for viewing the eclipse or run the very real risk of blindness, but for them there will be none of the dramatics of totality.

The total eclipse will describe a 113-mile wide arc from the Sakhalin Islands off northern Japan, the coast of Siberia, northern Alaska and across Canada and the Maritime provinces.

All of the United States except Hawaii will be in the west-to-east path of a partial eclipse when the moon comes between the sun and the earth.

"A partial eclipse isn't very dramatic," said Dr. Franklyn Branley, chairman of the Hayden Planetarium in New York. "As a matter of fact, unless you knew about it, you'd think it was just getting a little dark—a decrease in light from the sun."

"Now a total eclipse—that's really an awesome sight. There's a gradual diminishing of light and increasing darkness. Just before totality there's a beautiful diamond-ring effect. Then totality and—bang!—darkness. Not as dark as midnight but pretty darn dark. The chickens go to roost, the birds are still, the temperature drops."

The scientists, according to Dr. Branley, will be looking for some special aspects. "There's the planet Vulcan," he said. "French astronomers in the 18th century said they saw a planet between the Sun and Mercury (the planet closest to the Sun). Astronomers have been looking for it ever since. There was another report during the eclipse of March 7, 1970. Some astronomers are going to be looking for it again, and they'll be photographing the area. It could be a comet—comets that close in are only visible during an eclipse."

Sun's Halo Examined
Scientists also will be checking on the shape of the sun's corona—the halo that will be visible as the moon blocks out the body of the sun. The corona gives clues as to the level and location of solar activity, according to Dr. Branley, and he added that they also will be looking for the precise timing of the approach of the moon and covering of the sun to see if it checks with computations.

"They also will be looking for spicules," he said. "The sun's surface is very active, boiling, seething. Explosions of hot gases, or spicules, are shot out into space and they can sometimes be seen during totality."

The shadow cast by the moon will travel across the earth at an actual speed of 2,100 miles per hour. But since the earth's rotation will be in the same direction (1,040 miles per hour) the shadow's apparent speed will be 1,060 miles per hour.

Dr. Branley said that much of the scientific work this year would be a dress rehearsal for next year's eclipse because this year's solar blackout would last only about two and a half minutes, while the 1973 eclipse would be about seven minutes. "It will be on June 30, 1973," he said, "and totality will be across the Sahara Desert in Africa. It will be a great one—except for the ground accommodations."

"It's an interesting thing about eclipses. There are all the preparations and astronomers getting ready, waiting for a few precious moments. Then a cloud comes in or something goes wrong, a gremlin in the camera, and it's all for nothing. That's why a lot of research is done with rockets."

Dangers For Amateurs
For amateur observers on the ground, weather allowing, eclipse watching should be done only indirectly—such as viewing the sun's reflection in a pool of water. A direct viewer can be made of two layers of metallic silver black and white (NOT color) photographic film which has been exposed and developed. Do not view for prolonged periods.

Robert Elwood Logan, chief photographer for the American Museum of Natural History, has these tips for photographers of the partial eclipse.

Do not use the view finder and do not use a camera with a focal plane shutter without a reflect viewer. Use a tripod.

HUMORS of the day

July, 1872
Men are like bugles; the more brass they contain, the more noise they make, and the farther you can hear them.
Farmers are like fowls. Neither will get full crops without industry.
They call an Indiana judge "Old Necessity," because he knows no law.
Not Amish — A pretty widow. Killing Indians in some parts of the West is considered justifiable blood-letting.
Wild cats are said to be the only crop that grows by gas-light.
Rheumatism is sometimes a joint affair, but yet there is only one party to it.
— Harper's Weekly

FOREIGN

July, 1872
A woman's medical college is to be established at Gottenburg, Sweden.
Lord Dufferin, the new Governor-General of Canada, gets $50,000 per year and house-rent.
The prize poem at Cambridge University, England, was on "The Destruction of Chicago by Fire."
Tally one for little Switzerland, as being the only country on the face of the earth where there is more money spent on education than on the army.
A telegram from Madras, published in the London Times, states that a court of inquiry is being held, behind closed doors, on the conduct of Mr. Pogson, the Government's astronomer, who seems to be held responsible for the damage done by the late disastrous cyclone.
The Japanese Government has engaged Henry M. Smith, a graduate of the school of mines of Columbia College, New York, to open a coal mine and erect a blast furnace in Japan.
— Frank Leslie's Newspaper

DOMESTIC

July, 1872
An impudent varnish peddler has been annoying the residents of the north part of the city for a day or two. The existence of such nuisances is the only excuse for keeping dogs.
A liquor license in Chicago costs $52.
The market for new wheat promises to open at $1.30 to $1.40.
The society of the Christian church will meet in the state house (representatives' hall) for a few weeks, while repairs are being made on the church.
James Wilson, who amused himself on the Fourth by parading the streets with a shot gun, breathing out threatenings and slaughter, was yesterday brought before Justice Wood and fined $100 and costs.
George Jaeger, a prominent German in Lincoln, Ill., committed suicide on the night of the 4th, by drowning himself in Salt creek. Domestic difficulties, and inability to make bond as a saloon keeper under the new liquor law, were the causes.
The new temperance law, printed in full on cards, can be had at the REGISTER counting room.
The hay crop in this county will be very heavy.
The name of Allensville, on the Gilman, Clinton and Springfield road, has been changed to Chestnut.

And now the nuisance of chicken coops on the sidewalks offends the public nose.
Early apples are quite plenty in the market.
The Quincy preachers want the horse cars to cease running on Sundays.
Live local news is very difficult to get these hot, sultry, calm days.
— Illinois State Register

News, Views Century Ago

From the Illinois State Register:
Ain't it hot. The mercury, which rose to 101 yesterday, touched 104 to-day.
We may expect to hear reports of sunstroke in the harvest fields to-day.
The city marshal says he is going to impound all the stray swine and geese.
We haven't had a runaway to chronicle for several days. Too hot to even walk away!
Mr. Isaac Withrow lost a valuable mare last night. The animal appeared to be all right when he accepted his last meal at supper time, but this morning was found stiff and as cold as anything can get in such weather as this.
We are always thankful for any items of county news, either personal, local or political. Cut this out and paste it in your hat.
From the Quincy Whig:
The Fair Grounds were the great place of resort among pleasure weeks Saturday; the evening was spent dancing and perspiring.
Monday the Parke Painter passed down with two barges of ice and the Buckeye passed down with an immense raft of saw logs, cord-wood and shingles.
A man with a telescope is in town making his honest nickels by exhibiting the sun by day and the stars by night.
The Sister Superior of St. Mary's Hospital purchased a "Beach Wagon" yesterday from Messrs. E. M. Miller & Co. for the use of that institution. It will be covered and be made to answer various purposes, carrying sick to the hospital, etc.
Everything is all ready for the great Fourth of July jubilation. There will be two orations during the day — one in English and one in German.
From the Virginia Gazette:
W. J. McDonald has moved into his fine new residence on north Main street.
Hon. Joseph Rayworth, of Chandlerville precinct, is still on the war-path, and proposes to make it red-hot for the delegates that sold him out in the county convention.
A special election will be held on the first Monday of August for the purpose of allowing the citizens of Virginia to vote on the proposition to organize the town of Virginia as a city under the new statutes of the state.
Last Monday was one of our disagreeable days, as there was not one nook or corner that the dust did not penetrate, and to be out for a half hour was to be transformed into a moving mass of sweat and dust, and every pedestrian one met was a forcible reminder that "dust thou art, and to dust thou shalt return."

Hatching A Column Filler

The more I read old newspapers the more I admire the "Locals Editors."
Most of them, nearly all, a hundred years ago, had a column and a half to fill. When things were booming, people getting murdered, etc., etc., a good fire around the block, well, it was easy to fill the space.
But somedays things just don't happen. But Ye Ed had to fill up the space somehow, anyway.
And he did. Or got fired.
The best of the city editors in this part of the land a hundred years ago was Lyman Beecher Glover, 22, editor and co-owner of the Jacksonville DAILY JOURNAL. But he had some wonderful cohorts in Springfield, Peoria, Decatur, Carlinville, and especially the guy from the Springfield Register.
Right now I hear the rhythm of two newspapers, AP and UPI, dealing out information at the rate of 140 words per minute. Things are easy these days; if you don't want to corral and write a story, so what; we've got an abundance of stuff to fill.
But on Saturday, July 8, 1872, Ye Ed of the State Register had nothing to write about except the loafers on the corners, that sweet corn was coming into the market, that there seemed to be a good crop of blackberries, that grass was good and hay cheap, and that it was hot outside of any saloon.
So, nothing going on. How could he fill his space?
Work on the new state house was at a standstill, until the Legislature passed along more money.
"Add-On" hadn't been invented yet.
But Ye Ed wrote — fabricated — two good stories that day and filled his column.
He first took notice of his good friend Glover:
The city editor of the Jacksonville JOURNAL is puzzled by the question of a correspondent: "Whether Mr. Jefferson, who is playing 'Rip Van Winkle' at the theatre is the same man who was president of the United States, or is it his son?"
The anxious inquirer of the question should be put in the same category with the New Jersey newspaper man, who, having heard that Columbus was in Ohio, immediately started west to interview the old man about the voyage which resulted in the discovery of America.
Well, that didn't come close to filling the space, so he had another brew at Jake Jaggi's joint and wrote this, a piece I love:
A MOST SINGULAR AFFAIR
— In the course of a long editorial experience we have heard of many strange affairs, but the most singular of all occurred last night.
A worthy citizen, who lives in the most thickly settled part of town, went home as usual at eventide, and after eating the supper prepared for him by his faithful helpmate, read the REGISTER, told his children he "hoped they had been good all day," and went to bed.

The household was soon locked in the arms of Morpheus, but about midnight was aroused by a tremendous noise in the yard, made by a mass meeting of cats, who were celebrating the full of the moon.
Our worthy friend arose from his couch, invested himself with that of which he had been divested when he sought repose, took a double-barreled shot-gun in hand and sallied out the back door, determined to exterminate a part of the feline breed.
He got a good range on the squalling cats and let fly one barrel, when he was horrified to hear feminine screams from the next house, and a female voice exclaimed, "Run, Freddy dear, it's my husband!"
In the twinkling of an eye, from the next house a manly form, clad in the apparel of the bed chamber, dropped out of a second story window and rushed around the corner, shouting: "Don't shoot again, she invited me to call!"
Our worthy citizen shouldered his ordnance and walked back into his own house, greatly astonished at what he had heard and seen, and was smartly raked by his own wife about "not minding his own business."

The lord and master of the next house will return to the city by an early train tomorrow morning, and he will probably be astonished too. This reporter certainly is, and there is no doubt the man who jumped from the window was equally surprised.
Well, he got it pieced out. And a hundred years later I'm piecing out my Sunday piece. No sweat.
— Cecil Tendick

HOSPITAL SIGNS — Signs are being erected this week on farms owned by the Passavant Hospital Association, to identify and memorialize donors of the land. The property is held in the permanent Endowment Fund, from which interest is used to improve the hospital and aid its patients. Ed Brewer of the hospital maintenance staff is shown with the painted wood signs.

One of the markers was installed some weeks ago at the Passavant site on West Walnut street, which was the farm home of Charles Rowe. He bequeathed it, along with another farm near Alexander, to the hospital at his death in 1928.
Two other farms were left to Passavant in the same year by Thomas Tisington. Mr. Tisington specified in his will that income from his Murrayville area land shall be used to aid the worthy poor of Morgan County to pay for medical care. A sign also will be placed on the Nellie Rice farm, which was received by the hospital in 1959 at the death of her brother.
Two other pieces of farm ground bequeathed to Passavant in recent years will be transferred to the hospital association after periods of time specified by the wills of the donors. The properties are handled for the hospital by the farm departments of local banks, under the direction of the hospital's board of trustees. Cary Strang is chairman of the board's farm committee, which has included Marvin L. Martin, Paul Nickel, Herman Brown, Harold Oakes, and Lloyd Anderson. Other board members with agricultural experience serve as advisers to the committee.

... THIS WEEK AT DIXON SPRINGS

Flock to Sheep Symposium
People from all over the country flocked to the three day Intensive Sheep Management Symposium at Paducah and the Dixon Springs Agricultural Center on June 20-22. More than 250 from 31 states and Canada registered. They came from California to Maryland and from Louisiana to Minnesota to learn profitable new ways of growing sheep.

Researchers, farmers, and ranchers told how to use genetics and hormones to push ewes into extremely high lambing rates on more than once a year lambing schedules. The Symposium audience learned how to artificially rear the extra lambs from the intensive breeding programs, how to feed and house the early weaned lambs, and how to reduce labor costs and disease problems in farm and ranch flocks.

Jack Lewis, researcher at Dixon Springs, showed tour visitors a new, slotted floor lamb feeding barn. The barn has a capacity for 1000 lambs, or a lamb for every four square feet of floor space. The slotted floor design permits this heavy concentration. Many of the visitors from all over the nation, even those from range states, expressed interest in plans for a similar type barn.

It is a good barn. It does reduce labor and bedding costs. It does have a huge storage pit so that manure may be properly disposed of without stream pollution. Healthy lambs grow rapidly in this new barn.

Feed Sawdust?
Lambs at Dixon Springs gained well on rations containing sawdust. Jack Lewis reports that rations with 10 percent sawdust produced average daily gains of three-fourths of a pound. The 10 percent sawdust, 90 percent concentrate rations produced gains as high as gains from 10 percent hay, 90 percent concentrate rations.

Lewis says, "Lambs need some roughage in their feed. If the nutrient requirements are met by the concentrate part of the ration, sawdust serves as well as more conventional types of roughage in meeting the needs of the fattening lamb."

Using Unconventional Herbicides

Would you believe that no-till soybeans thrive on herbicides that normally kill beans, herbicides like simazine and 2,4-D? They do at Dixon Springs.

George McKibben, Dixon Springs Agronomist, used these weed killers in precise and careful amounts on research plots. You will want to see the results. Plan to visit the plots during the Dixon Springs Agronomy Day on August 10.

Local Charolais Bull Ranks 5th In Nat'l. Show

The first International All-Polled Charolais show and sale was held at Columbia, Mo., June 29 through July 1.

Several Morgan county cattlemen were present as well as exhibitors from 26 states and Canada.

The winners were chosen "by computer on 10 areas of performance and visual data" — patterned after the Las Vegas Expo show.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Lawless, rural route 2, Jacksonville, were awarded the fifth place ribbon on their 12 months old bull, J.F.L. Sam 103. He was sold to Dr. Calabina, Majic Valley Ranch, Dallas, Texas, for $2,000.

Green Bean Harvest Bountiful In Mason

By John B. Martin

Back in the foothills of Mason County, Illinois, somewhere near Kilbourne and a little farther from Havana, a dozen or so mechanized "wetbacks" are engaged in one of the biggest green bean harvests ever experienced.

In an area dotted with wheat fields and windbreaks to keep the blow-sand in place, one finds a large man-made fertile valley. Floyd Koke and his neighbors patiently watched the mechanical harvest of his first crop of green beans for this year move to market on the Fourth of July.

Three tractor-trailer units loaded with about 22-tons of green beans each moved down the sand path toward Irma, Wisconsin. One such rig, apparently geared for highway use only, had to be towed by Koke and his friends. The sand piled up in front of the big rig's tires and it couldn't move. If you're a sand farmer this sort of thing is bound to bring a smile. After all, someone has to teach those city folks how to drive in sand.

An enterprising family named Nicklaus from Irma, Wis., and a few others such as the Jolly Green Giant and Libby's, has turned Mason county into a pretty good sized producer of green beans.

Grading of the beans is important, but the going price for most varieties range from about $33 a ton for 4 and 5's to as high as $96 per ton for number ones. Koke was hopeful his crop would cash in on the high side and one of the Nicklaus brothers confirmed that it was about the best crop he had seen.

Nicklaus Enterprises account for about 100 million pounds of green beans every year, and they're getting bigger they say. Similar crews are working in Maryland, Arkansas and Iowa.

But will be all pulled into the Wisconsin area starting July 20. In mid-September or October, they'll be back to Mason county and Koke's farm for the second picking.

Koke supplies the land and the irrigation facilities and agrees to follow the directions of the contracting firm, in this case Nicklaus. The seeds come from Nicklaus, although paid for by Koke, complete with herbicides and other fertilizer requirements.

The large well supplies ample moisture, from 1/2 inch to one inch per week most of the crop time, but during the last critical days before harvest, the moisture content of the bean itself must remain high...right up to harvest and the cannery.

Koke uses a corn planter to sow the crop and Nicklaus brings in his own crews and equipment for harvest. Mr. Koke has been in the green bean business for the past six years.

When the Nicklaus crew moves into Mason county they drag a lot of equipment with them, complete with a repair shop to keep it running in top shape.

A good many of the crews are recruited from college campuses for summer employment, although there are a few "regulars" in key positions. The pickin'-crews have come a long way during the past several years in Mason county and the Havana area. When they first moved in five or six years ago, they had difficulty getting payroll checks cashed. Nobody ever heard of Nicklaus or anyone else involved in picking green beans. The long hours in dusty sand fields and the long-haired college kids, both males and a few females, kept a few local residents "at a distance." They're warming up a little now, especially in the more enterprising saloons.

14 month old bull, Beau Perfection 0955, and he sold for $7,500. They also showed the first place heifer which sold for $3,250 to the Majic Valley Ranch.

The top cow came from Olen-tangy Farms of Waldo, Ohio, and brought $11,000.

One farmer tried carrots last year but didn't repeat his venture this year because of what he felt was a waste. The carrot-diggers moved in but left the very small and very large ones in the field. They took the uniform size they were looking for in the canning process.

Nicklaus contracts with the grower and even has one man stationed in Mason county to keep tabs on potential crop size, how well the crop has been watered and above all, to show the crews and trucks how to get to where the beans are planted. Koke and his neighbor, both of whom live in what city folks would describe as "out of the way places" steadfastly boast they "have never been lost yet."

Havana and other residents have a keen eye for the bean picking crews and follow them for the "gleaning" process.

The bean-picking machines are pretty efficient, but if you've only grown a couple of rows or so in the back yard garden they seem pretty sloppy.

One person can sit down at the ends of the rows and pick a large grocery sack of beans without moving very far. It takes a few feet to get the picker straightened out on the row and the mechanical buckets are apt to spill some in the loading.

The women and children move in quickly to enjoy the tasty treats. The beans themselves are among the finest grown anywhere and the best part about it is the price...it's free.

By contract, Mr. Koke can't sell the residue to anyone, but he can give the rest away to anyone he wishes. He has some very friendly neighbors who either freeze or can enough for the winter.

Generally, an irrigated crop of beans should be worth (in money) approximately the same as the same area planted in corn in the neighborhood of 150 to 200 bushels per acre. The beauty is you get two crops of beans.

Koke indicated that simply planting beans and waiting for someone to do all the harvesting was no "bed of roses." There is still a risk involved. Last year, for instance, wasn't too good a year for beans but this year's crop should help make up the difference.

To a novice, the harvesting of beans is something that seemed very interesting. It's the kind of operation that lends itself to spending several hours just watching...and wondering "who ever thought up that thing?"

World, More Affluent, — More Beef Hungry

WASHINGTON (AP) — A scarcity of beef in Europe and tight supplies elsewhere are raising serious questions over the benefits to American consumers as a result of President Nixon removing meat-quota import restrictions for the remainder of this year.

An Agriculture Department report today said beef output in the European Community (Common Market) is expected to be down four to six per cent from 1971. At the same time, as in other affluent areas of the world, consumer demand for meat is continuing to rise.

Consequently, beef-shy nations—including the United States—are bidding against each other for available beef from big exporting countries such as Australia, New Zealand and Argentina.

According to the report, by the Foreign Agricultural Service in USDA, European cattle prices have risen more than 20 per cent since last October. By mid-May they averaged $43.25 per 100 pounds of live weight.

That was about $10 per hundredweight more than the mid-May average of all U.S. beef cattle reported by the Agriculture Department.

A week ago the Nixon administration lifted restrictions of imports of fresh, frozen or chilled beef, veal, mutton and goat meat which had been regulated under a 1964 quota formula. Most of the meat is low-quality beef used for hamburger and other manufactured products.

Illinois Farm OUTLOOK

BOOSTING MEAT IMPORTS BRINGS HOPE AND FEAR

The recent removal of restrictions on meat imports brought hope to consumers—and fear to farmers.

Some consumers expected to be able to buy T-bone steaks at bargain prices, while some farmers feared that a flood of imports would severely depress the price of their cattle. There is little basis for either of these emotions.

In the first place, there will be few imported steaks or roasts in our meat counters. The main reason is that no foreign country has any substantial amount of such beef for sale. In fact, we export some to foreign markets.

Most of the beef that we import is used only for making hamburger, bologna, meat loaves and other processed meat items. The principal suppliers of this kind of beef are Australia and New Zealand. Much smaller amounts are obtained from several other countries. The bones are removed, and the beef is frozen before it is shipped to the United States.

We do not buy such beef from Argentina because of the danger from foot-and-mouth disease.

Imports—Five Lbs. Per Person
In recent years imports of hamburger beef totaled about one billion pounds annually, or about five pounds for each person in the United States.

No one knows exactly how much imports will increase as a result of the lifting of import quotas for the remainder of this year, but the flow will be limited. Exporting countries will not increase cattle slaughter just to sell more beef to us. We will have to bid against other beef importing nations to get a bigger share of the supply.

We already get a lion's share of the beef that moves in international trade—about 30 per cent. Other big buyers are European nations and Japan.

If we increase imports of processing beef by as much as 20 percent, which is possible, it would provide an extra half pound of hamburger per person over the next six months. Such an increase in imports would have some influence on prices—especially on the lower grades of beef and cattle. Other price-making forces, however, will be much more important in determining the level of prices during the coming months. These other influences include the number of cattle marketed by U.S. farmers, the volume of consumer spending for beef, and government regulations concerning wholesale and retail prices.

Better Than Price Ceilings
Suspending the import quotas on beef is better, we believe, than one widely discussed alternative: Price ceilings on all meats and live animals. If prices were rolled down with ceilings, it would be necessary to ration meat, as was done during World War II. Customers would have to stand in lines to get their daily supply. Late shoppers might have to do without meat—or buy from bootleggers, as was often done in WW II.

More important, perhaps, price ceilings on livestock would discourage farmers from increasing production, and thus prolong the shortage of meat.

STEADY AS SHE GOES — The driver of a bean picker must have a keen eye for the rows and drive at varying speeds, depending upon the crop and soil conditions.

Farm Machinery Inventory Ebbs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Inventories of farm machinery have been declining in numbers

Farmers Receive Early Set-Aside Acres Payment

Approximately 800 farmers in Morgan county have received farm set-aside program payments totaling $1,500,000 during the first week of July, according to John Sanderson, county executive director for the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS).

By the end of the month, the total will be about $2,600,000 to 1300 farmers.

Payments under the set-aside programs are made to farmers who agree to set aside part of their land from production in order to meet a national objective of balancing supply and demand in certain commodities.

These payments help to offset the loss of returns from cropland that otherwise would be used for income-producing production, and on which the farmer is obliged to continue to pay taxes and apply needed conservation steps, according to officials of the U.S. Department for some years, due to the reduction in the number of farms and the increased size of major machines such as tractors, according to an Agriculture Department study.

This year, according to estimates, there are about 4,469,000 tractors—not counting garden types—on farms, compared with 4,787,000 in 1965.

SQUEEZE ON FARMERS

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI)—The cost-price squeeze affecting farmers since 1953 has caused more and more small farmers to go out of business with only 35,000 farms now in Florida compared to 50,000 just 20 years ago, according to statistics from the Florida Fruit and Vegetable Association.

Insects and disease destroy 2.4 billion cubic feet of wood in U.S. forests annually.

About two million acres of forests are harvested annually in Canada.

Nationally total payments are expected to be about $3.7 billion. Total 1972 farm set-aside program payments in Morgan county are expected to be about $2,700,000.

Australia May Ignore Old Friends In Hope Of Bigger US Quota

WASHINGTON (AP) — Australia may be considering a boost in beef shipments to the United States by slowing down exports to other lucrative markets such as Japan and Europe, according to a government source.

About half the beef Australia exports already comes to U.S. consumers. But now that President Nixon has lifted quota restrictions, Australia may attempt to boost U.S. sales in hopes of getting a larger permanent share when quotas are re-imposed.

In other words, according to the source, Australia would like to set a precedent this year to help build a case for a larger normal quota later on when controls resume.

When he suspended quota restrictions June 26, Nixon said the open door would apply only for the balance of 1972. The action was taken to make more meat available to American consumers at a time when U.S. beef cattle are at record high prices.

Asked about the possibility of Australia increasing beef exports to the United States by paring shipments to other countries, an Australian trade representative would say only it was a possibility.

Meantime, the Agriculture Department expects to have a new estimate soon on the total meat expected to be imported.

Australia through May this year exported 219.6 million pounds of meat to U.S. markets, up 43 per cent from a year earlier, according to government records.

EXPLORING OUR OUT-OF-DOORS

By MARIE HOULETTE

Exploring Lake Jacksonville Vena Campbell and I went on an exploring trip around Lake Jacksonville to check out the "local larder" for edible wild things Thursday afternoon—we were well repaid for our time.

Literally tons of excellent food plants were spotted, and enough gathered to supply a tasty, unusual, and almost free supper, with some to spare.

It started with a bang! We no sooner were out of sight of my car, when a crash sent us flying back, someone in a red sports car, with a light top, had crashed in my rear bumper, though there was room for two more cars to pass my parked heap. They had apparently just remembered an important engagement elsewhere, for they threw gravel leaving. Thanks, whoever—sleep well!

Nothing daunts us, however, so Vena drove while I spotted and kept a list of what, where, and when things might be ready for picking when ripe. (She is shy about my driving, looking, and taking notes at the same time.) There were colonies of bright orange Day Lilies, so we copped a few for my supper.

Mulberries and blackberries went into another sack for a fruit compote; dandelion leaves, sour dock, lamb's quarter (which never becomes bitter), a few tiny violet leaves and some sour grass went into another bag for greens. The dock and dandelions were parboiled first to tame them a bit, all greens simmered with a little bacon and onion. Drained, salt, a dash of vinegar, and a garnish of chopped hard cooked eggs completed this pioneer dish.

The staghorn sumac is just at the fresh, bright red stage to use in sumac ade, which the Indians taught the pioneers to make and enjoy. The fresh heads, picked before rains can wash away the lemon-sour acid, are covered with water, pounded and mashed for about ten minutes, then strained through several thicknesses of cloth to remove the tiny hairs. When chilled and sweetened, it makes a delightfully different pink lemonade.

The Day Lily Blooms? They were washed, drained, dipped in a fritter batter, deep fried to a golden brown, like pumpkin and squash blossoms are.

Vena and I listed twenty-five other food type growing things, saw one small water snake, and counted six rabbits within a two mile stretch. May they have many more—I also hunt.

Next week, rose petal recipes. Any questions, suggestions or additional recipes will be most welcome. Address "EXPLORING OUR OUT-OF-DOORS," c/o JACKSONVILLE JOURNAL COURIER.

AN IMPRESSIVE ARRAY OF MODERN EQUIPMENT, representing no small investment, built to do a specific job lines the end of the Floyd Koke bean field in Mason county, near Kilbourne, Ill. An apparently endless supply of good water below ground and easily raised to crop level at a low cost has caused much interest in irrigated crops on the fertile sand. With proper fertilizer and ample water, most anything seems to grow well in the soil.

POLLUTION?

Try
PMT

Puritan Manure Treatment is an enzyme-based product which speeds the breakdown of animal waste solids and greatly reduces odors in swine confinement pits, anaerobic lagoons and other manure disposal systems.

PMT serves as a catalyst to speed bacterial action. It creates a fermentation process which improves normal decomposition of wastes, solid and liquid. Neither a chemical nor a perfume, PMT is an organic product completely safe for livestock, and is not harmful to equipment.

When used as directed, PMT virtually eliminates odor from manure pits. Try this inexpensive, effective way to control odor and speed up the breakdown of manure solids. For information, contact

Demos, GOP Still Court Shrinking Farmer Vote

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's farmers are still courted vigorously by Democrats and Republicans alike, but the old farm bloc isn't what it used to be.

In 1920, 32 million Americans, one-third of the nation's total population, lived on farms and farm issues played a major role in political campaigns at both the local and national level.

Today only 10 million persons, less than five per cent of the total population, are farm people.

And, says one GOP farm strategist, farmers will cast their votes this year like the rest of the country—on the basis of such issues as Vietnam and the economy rather than clearcut farm issues.

Even such farm advocates as Rep. W. R. Poage, D-Tex., chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, concede that the farmer's political muscle has withered.

"I doubt if farmers, by themselves, could even elect a county attorney in most places," Poage says.

Economics has forced many small farms out of existence and today fewer farms are producing more and more. That trend appears certain to continue.

The larger and more efficient producers are getting bigger and more efficient. The small producers are going out of business.

Everything Not 'Cool' Yet In Frozen Iceland

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (UPI) — The Boris Spassky-Bobby Fischer world chess championship match, already delayed for nine days, ran into new problems Saturday when the chief arbiter left Iceland.

U.S. chess sources said Fischer, the 29-year-old American challenger, is "at peak form and raring to go" into the first game Tuesday against the world champion, Russia's Spassky.

But the sources said there might have to be another postponement—until Thursday—since chief arbiter Lothar Schmid will not be back in town until then.

Schmid, a West German grandmaster and the owner of a book publishing firm in Bamberg, flew home Saturday morning and said he would return Thursday. He said he was leaving because one of his sons had been injured in a traffic accident.

Schmid's assistant arbiter, Gudmundur Arnlaugsson of Iceland, will be in charge of final preparations, which include the tough job of picking the chess sets and board to be used.

Schmid said he had invited the two players to come to the hall together on Sunday to check on the facilities and hopefully approve them. But this meeting was called off Saturday after Schmid left.

Spassky also left town and went north with Icelandic friend and chess player, Freysteinn Thorbergsson, on a salmon fishing trip. Russian officials said Spassky would be back Monday, at the latest.

Thorbergsson also invited Fischer along, but the American turned down the invitation to observe his Church of God's Sabbath from Friday night until Saturday night.

Nearly one-third, or approximately one million of the nation's farms sell $2,500 or less in products annually.

Government analysts say many of these farms are part-time operations run by semi-retired people who prefer to live on the land. Collectively, they produce less than three per cent of the nation's food and fiber.

More than half of the U.S. agricultural output comes from fewer than 250,000 farms, most of them family owned and operated, whose sales total at least $40,000 per year. Ninety per cent of the farm output comes from one-third of the farms—those with annual sales of $10,000 or more.

Thus, nearly two-thirds of the nation's farms account for only 10 per cent of the output.

Jobs in town have become a way of life and survival, particularly for smaller farmers.

The farms with $2,500 or less in annual sales net an average of $1,000 a year while nonfarm jobs, at local factories and other businesses, are providing an average of $8,000 a year, to each of these small-farm families.

This year, according to Agriculture Department projections farm families may take home $18 billion or more from nonfarm jobs, more than the record $17.5 billion predicted by administration officials as farm income.

"Off-farm income is not only the best farm crop, it is better than all the farm crops combined, plus all the government payments," says Dr. Don Paarlberg, director of economics for the Agriculture Department.

Thus, rural development in the form of federal programs aimed at improving job opportunities and income for all people in the countryside, is an essential part of 1972 political talk for both parties.

The forecast is for a continuing decline in farm numbers.

Giants And Marichal Top Montreal 12-1

MONTREAL (AP) — The San Francisco Giants shelled Montreal pitching for 15 hits to help right-hander Juan Marichal to his first victory since June 2 as they defeated the Expos 12-1 in a National League baseball game Saturday night.

The Giants started the fireworks in the fourth inning when they struck for three runs off Ernie McAnally, 1-11.

Bobby Bonds led off with a walk and moved to third on a single by Gary Maddox. Shortstop Tim Lincecum bobbled the relay throw from leftfielder Tim McCarver, allowing Bonds to score home.

Chris Speier then beat out an infield hit and, two outs later, Dave Rader slapped a two-run single.

San Francisco added four more runs in the fifth. Al Gallagher walked, Marichal singled, Bonds doubled home Gallagher and John Strohmayr replaced McAnally.

Speier singled to score Marichal and, after Willie McCovey walked, Dave Kingman drilled a two-run single to left.

The Giants' onslaught continued in the sixth as Bonds slapped a run-scoring double and Ed Goodson singled for two more.

Montreal averted a shutout in the sixth when Ken Singleton scored Bob Bailey with a single to right. But the Giants came back with two runs in the top of the seventh when Bernie Williams, pinch-hitting for Marichal, 3-10, hit a two-run homer, his second of the year.

HARRY GALLATIN RESIGNS EDWARDSVILLE, Ill. (AP) — Harry Gallatin announced his resignation Friday as athletic director of Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

He requested reassignment to the faculty of the education division.

Gallatin became basketball coach at Edwardsville in 1967 and later was named athletic director, the first to hold the position at SIUE. Jim Dudley was named basketball coach in 1970.

"I have become extremely impatient with the lack of response and resultant funding by the State of Illinois for a gymnasium on campus," Gallatin said. "The desperate need for a facility has been expressed by our administration since the inception of recreation, intramural and intercollegiate athletic programs on campus."

The Civil War began April 12, 1861 with the bombardment of Confederates of Fort Sumter.

100 MILES FOR CANCER — Nineteen participants in a 100-mile bike ride that left Jacksonville at 5 a.m. Saturday are shown just before the start. They arrived back in the city at 7:30 p.m. The route passed through Concord, Arenzville, Beardstown, Chandler, Oakford, Petersburg, Pleasant Plains, Berlin and Jacksonville. Members of the Cass County Cancer Society provided donuts and coffee and tea for the bikers about 11 a.m. and the group had lunch at Oakford which was celebrating its centennial. Most bikers pedaled the entire distance, although George Waters provided truck transportation as a "sag wagon" for some of the overtired youngsters. The trip provided funds for the American Cancer Society. Glenn Preston, organizer of the bike tour, said a final count on the funds had not yet been made. All funds collected will be credited to the county in which collected. Participants are shown, from left: Rick Hemmrough, Edith Allan, Leonard Preston, Verli Hickey, Becky Neal, Sharon Schisler,

Jacksonville Art Fair Opens As Biggest Ever

The Fifth Annual Jacksonville Art Fair opened at 7:30 a.m. Saturday with a wide selection of paintings, drawings, ceramics and other works of more artists and craftsmen than have ever assembled on the city square in past years.

Registration of individual exhibitors has increased almost fifty per cent over last year, with 84 booths assigned compared with only 60 in 1971.

The judging of the best works for prizes and patron purchases took place Saturday afternoon. The results of that judging are as follows: $50 Cash Award — Best Painting, Roger Pautz of Jacksonville; Best Print, John L. Rogers of DeKalb, Best Drawing, Ed Fernandes of Jacksonville; Best in Textiles, Lynn Baumgartner of Springfield; Best Photography, Robert H. Meyer of Springfield; and Best in Ceramics, Margy Emerson Filo of Springfield.

The Purchase Awards were as follows: Print, "Untitled" by John C. Seiz of Springfield — $30; Print, "Dance of Life" by Gustav Pautz of Chicago — $50; Print, "Desolation of the Sphere" by John L. Rogers of DeKalb — $30; Print, "Unlimited Possibilities" by Barbara Brien — $40; Photo, "Old Mill" by Don Drone of Dismal — $25; and A Rug by Judith Moore of Jacksonville — $80.

Judges for the event were Fred Brian of Illinois Wesleyan University art department and Betty I. (Mrs. Wilbur F.) Madden, curator of art at the Illinois State Museum.

Brian, holder of a master of fine arts degree, has taught at Illinois Wesleyan since 1953, has worked as a painter and printmaker; and is affiliated with the Lakeside Galleries and Studios of Lakeside, Michigan. His work has been shown in 10 national and regional exhibitions and ten one-man shows. He has won 24 prizes and purchase awards and his works are owned by ten institutions.

Betty Madden, an art graduate of the University of Illinois, has studied art in the United States and five foreign countries. She has illustrated children's magazines, film strips, and advertising. An exhibitor and judge at numerous art shows, her works are owned by many private collectors and by the Illinois State Historical Library. For eight years she has been collecting material on the arts, crafts, and architecture of Illinois for the first book on the subject.

The fair will be open again today from 7:30 a.m. until 6 p.m. with the award winners on display.

The works on exhibit are offered for sale, with the Downtown Jacksonville Associated Merchants, sponsors of the annual event, guaranteeing purchases amounting to $1,000 plus $200 for work presented to the city.

National 'Y' Creates Convention Outreach

The Democratic and Republican Conventions are expected to attract thousands of young people to the Miami area this summer.

They will be coming for a wide variety of reasons but most will come to exercise their right to protest the current policies and influence future policies of the government.

The Miami area, of course, has its own particular expressions of the social and economic issues and problems that confront other areas in the country. This includes the concerns and problems of retired citizens, Cuban-Americans, black Americans, and affluent white Americans.

The combination of the legitimate concerns of young people with the equally legitimate concerns of permanent residents could quite possibly result in conflict, and perhaps violence. In light of this, the Miami YMCA has asked the total YMCA movement to contribute to the effort to establish an environment which enables the concern of all people to be respected.

The YMCA movement has responded to the request with the creation of "Miami Outreach".

Miami Outreach represents a unique task for the YMCA. Rarely, if ever, has a local Association asked the total YMCA for direct assistance in its work in a community. To meet this request, the YMCA has assigned 100 experienced professional YMCA outreach workers from all parts of the country. To this group, another 100 volunteer workers from the Miami area has been added. In teams of two the 200 workers will be in the streets on a 24-hour basis throughout the area.

The basic role for the outreach teams is to serve as a third party force during the two Conventions. The third party role has been carefully thought out and is crucial to Miami Outreach.

This means that the outreach teams will be oriented not to take sides in any disputes or to be singly identified with either the demonstrators or the Miami area officials.

Equipped with current and complete factual information, the teams will attempt to provide alternative solutions in crisis situations and emergency assistance through cooperation with other referral units for the delivery of vital life support services.

An example of the latter service might be emergency help to drug-addicted young people. The basis of the third party role is that the young people who will be coming to the Miami area believe they have a right to express their disagreements with current governmental policies.

In addition, the residents of the area have a right to be concerned about the stability of their community. Very often there is a lack of communication which leads both sides to viewing the other unfavorably. This sets the stage for possible serious conflicts.

Through the third party role, Miami Outreach seeks to assist in the maintenance of vital communication links which can operate to avoid such conflicts. For those conflicts that do arise, Miami Outreach will present alternative solutions which seek to avoid serious conflict leading to violence.

In this role Miami Outreach does not seek to interfere with or inhibit the goals of the people who will be coming to the Miami area or those of the community residents. Miami Outreach is based on respect for the right to protest and the right to a stable community. The program assures that it is possible to achieve dissent without either interfering with the rights of residents or damaging the democratic process. Miami Outreach will work with other concerned groups in the achievement of this goal.

Donald F. Hardesty, executive director of the local YMCA, stated that this role is in line with current National YMCA policy. One of the five major goals adopted by the National Board commits the YMCA to "change the conditions that foster alienation, crime, and delinquency." Miami's "Convention summer of 1972" presents an opportunity for the YMCA to work towards the fulfillment of that goal. In this light, Miami Outreach should not be viewed as a single, isolated event.

As noted, the total YMCA movement has been asked to participate in this project. Hardesty commented that even though the Jacksonville YMCA does not have outreach staff to give physical involvement in the program, we are involved by our support and conviction to the National goals. If there is any meaning to this endeavor, it must serve as a model for the future. Too often local Associations feel that they are isolated without help in their efforts to improve the social conditions of their community. Miami Outreach represents the attempt of one Association to break this isolation and involve the total movement. The success will also be achieved in the demonstration that the YMCA can act as a total movement in the improvement of the social environment. This will be a direct benefit to all local Associations.

Findley Talks To Egyptian News Media

CAIRO (AP) — U.S. Rep. Paul Findley, R-Ill., has told Egyptian newsmen the United States must adopt a balanced attitude toward both sides in the Middle East.

Findley, who told newsmen he favored Egyptian journalists explaining their cause in U.S. newspapers and more congressional visits here, spoke shortly before flying to Israel on Friday.

Earlier he had said it was time for Washington to show even-handedness in the Middle East by calling on Tel Aviv to either pay compensation for oil taken from the occupied Sinai desert or stop taking it.

He also called for a public statement by Washington that Israel should give up Arab lands taken in the 1967 war, as called upon to do by the United Nations.

Soap Box Derby

'Time Marches On But Spirit The Same'

By DENNY HEWETT

As the first Jacksonville Jaycee sponsored All American Soap Box Derby goes into the final few days planning, more and more meetings of the Jaycees are scheduled and with each meeting a new and overpowering excitement is generated, and I'm sure that as the days roll by Jacksonville Derby day will climax the height of that excitement as the forty odd boys assemble their cars for the race.

In the past few days I have poured through old files of newspaper clippings, peeked at scrapbooks from past winners and looked at trophies that still bring out the pride of victory for those that took home the trophy many years ago.

Even though the pages of the scrapbooks are old and yellow and brittle with age and the trophies are not quite as bright as they once were the spirit of the past is not dead.

I've watched the faces of men, now in their forties, beam with satisfaction as I talked about "their" race day. Without hesitation they recall the excitement as they sat in their racers, perched on the starting ramp waiting for the starter's pistol to fire.

Next Sunday On July 16th the same feeling will come for boys ready for the 1972 Jacksonville Soap Box Derby. The spirit that motivated young men in the 1940's still motivates young men today.

It is the spirit of sportsmanship, which basic value lies in teaching youth the joys of creative work, and the values of inventiveness and resourcefulness. I'm sure that the words of John J. Poland reflect spirits of those who competed in the 40's and 50's and illustrate the spirit of the boys to race Sunday, July 16th in the Jaycee All-American Soap Box Derby.

She survives with four daughters, Mrs. Lassell Wade, Jeffersonville, Ind.; Mrs. Byron Hill, Greenfield; Mrs. Carl Davis of Alton, and Mrs. Don Plemitscher, Jacksonville. There are 12 grandchildren and two great-grandsons.

Mr. Valentine was a mail carrier from 1923 to 1957. He was a member of Greenfield United Methodist church, the Greenfield Sportsman's club and Illinois Conservation Association. He graduated from Greenfield High School in 1916 and attended Illinois College at Jacksonville and University of Missouri in Columbia.

"I had a dream last night, my son, I dreamed you entered the race and won; I heard the mighty roar of the crowd And, my son, I was proud—so proud.

"Your mother couldn't hold back the tear As the earth reechoed cheer on cheer, And you were crying, too, my boy; Tears of triumph and of joy.

"And then I saw the other side; You lost the race though hard you tried. Your hopes had vanished in thin air; You looked so gloomy standing there.

"But then a smile so bright shone through For you, my son, were sportsman true. You cheered the rest till race was done And I thought God you were my son."

The people of Jacksonville and the surrounding area have every right to feel proud of the forty-five youths putting their efforts into building derby cars, not only for the July 16th race, but in building them to promote sportsmanship. The Jacksonville Jaycees, individual sponsors, City of Jacksonville, parents, and friends provide an outlet for the spirit in the hearts of these young men.
